But Sharon Poitras' portrayal of Opal Buckingham exhibited the mannerisms one would expect an embalmed lady-villain would assume. Building gesture upon gesture — a delicate touch to the throat, primping — Sharon Poitras carved off the honors for understated characterization.

Steve Bone's Excelsior Colfax injected life and action into the flagging pace. Beating up dastardly Desmond Dalton, played by Brian Duffy, rescuing true-love Faith Throebert, Excelsior Colfax's sixgun heroics brought the villain to his proper fall and the audience to applause.

In the comparatively shorter Then, Greg Hunter and Debbie Anderson may have played with paper bags over their heads, but their performances were among the finest of the evening. One quickly became attached to Phythick, the guilt-ridden former instructor, and Miss Europe, a beauty with Sausage Queen and Miss Robertire to her credit. In the play, they meet on a beak landscape and . . .

Although action - packed and cuss-filled The 101st lost the benefit of consistent performances again. Greg Hunter as Hud son, Tigger as Ethel, and Jennifer Ross as charming hag Mrs. Sump, with a complained, poorly-written plot trick.

The plot turned on the distinction between being on the 100 most 'needy' list and being the 101st 'needy'. That distinction was not clearly written into the play by author Kenneth Cameron.

Playing the central character in the play, Bob Reynolds not only drowned some of his lines in his high pitched delivery, but risked piercing a few ear drums during his performance of his role as caring father of a destitute slum family.

Terror Show Coming to Park

Magic and illusions have been blended into an unusual stage and film show coming to the Park Theatre in Belleville July 28, with matinee at 3 p.m. and evening performances at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

The bizarre entertainment is called Terrors of the Unknown and is now on an international coast-to-coast tour. Producer Philip Morris is a talented magician and illusionist who owns Morris Costume Co. in Charlotte, North Carolina. He has made wardrobes and special effects for ice shows, Ringling Brothers Circus, Las Vegas nightclubs and movies, including the recent Diamonds are Forever.

Terrors of the Unknown, says its producer, is designed to give viewers nightmares for the rest of their lives. An unbalance and nurse will be on call at all times during the Belleville performances.

Family Film Festival Free

A family film festival will be presented by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter - day Saints in Ben Bleecker Auditorium July 28 at 7 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited to "bring the whole family".

Films to be shown are A Place to Stand, Johnny Lingo, Mirror, Mirror, Man's Search for Happiness and other activities of community interest.

Hollywood Film Studios Get Efficient, Make Profit

NEW YORK (CP) — Most major Hollywood film studios are again turning a profit, mainly by producing selective films costing no more than $3 million each.

The Godfather, which cost Paramount $6 million, is not of the exceptions. It is expected to bring in $130 million at the box office.

The turnaround in Hollywood's financial fortunes is due to a "new breed of bright businessmen" who run the show, says Business Week.

In a survey of the movie industry, the weekly business magazine says eight major film companies last year earned profits totalling $168 million.

This compares with the red-ink days of 1969 and 1970, when losses were more than $300 million.

When the musical Sound of Music starred Julie Andrews, was produced for $7.6 million by Twentieth Century Fox in 1966 and earned $72 million in U.S. rentals alone, studios went on a spending spree, hoping for a big hit like it.

Business Week quotes Danfel Melnick, MGM's vice-president for production, as saying:

"Everybody acted as if there were some god of the movies who would periodically come down and save people from their follies by giving them a big hit."

Today, movie producers are sticking to such smaller budget guidelines with the aim of making a modest profit.

They will occasionally spend a bit more. Paramount expects to spend $23 million on three of its present pictures: Godfather Part II, The Great Gatsby and The Day of the Locust.

James T. Aubrey Jr., president of MGM, says if a movie costs $2 million you get your money back. If it costs $17 million, you can lose a lot if it is not a worldwide hit."

Last year, MGM made a $10.7 million profit on revenues totalling $283 million.

Other film-makers turned the following profits: Warner Communications, $20.1 million; Walt Disney, $40.2 million; Paramount (Gulf and Western), $31 million; MCA, $20.9 million; United Artists (Transamerica), $28.8 million; Twentieth Century Fox, $7.4 million, and Columbia, $4 million.

Taking over MGM in 1970, Aubrey lopped 5,000 people from his payroll, moved headquarters from New York City to MGM's Culver City, Calif., studios and cut risk-taking by keeping feature film budgets under $2 million each.

His goal is to impose upon movies people the same obligation to use money responsibly "as in any other company".

Scenes are carefully plotted before the cameras roll. Directors are obliged to do their planning before they reach the set instead of tying up costly operating crews.

There is little question that Hollywood's budget-consciousness has been prompted by radical changes in the movie market.

From a post-war high in the United States in 1946, when box offices sold 80 million tickets, admissions have sunk to just 18 million today. Moreover, of those who attend 70 per cent are under 30, so are seeing more movies than ever—but mainly on television.

Almost two-thirds of Universal's production winds up on TV.

Film makers blame the decline of the movie box office on unsafe cities. They say attending films in downtowns is inconvenient and that parking and baby-sitting costs drive up the film's expense to theatre-goers.

But the foreign market, which once produced half the total revenues for Hollywood, now brings in one-third of the total. And this is a decline that cannot be laid at the crime in the streets in U.S. cities.

MGM intends to make six movies in Europe to be shown only on the Continent. Warner Bros. has made three movies in Italy and three in Spain for European distribution.

"You make these movies for $1 million apiece", says president Frank Wells of Warner Bros. "And you plan to get back all their costs.

"You do it because you have a distribution organization outside the United States that must have products to sell. These national movies are a big help in enabling them to sell other movies."

Showbiz Shorts

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A 31-year-old trapeze performer of the Dianey on Parade show who fell 50 feet into a crowd of spectators died Sunday of injuries, hospital officials said.

Rene Bugler fell from his "sway pole" during a show here July 14. He was taken to a hospital with a skull fracture. Five spectators were injured, none seriously.

Bugler was a native of West Germany, and was hired in Europe for the show, which originated in the United States. It now is in Rio de Janeiro.

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Bruce Lee, star of violent action films that have become known as Eastern Westerns, died here Friday night, police said.

The 32-year-old hero of films such a Five Fingers of Death, which featured Oriental martial arts, died shortly after admission to hospital.

The cause of death was not immediately known; police said foul play was not suspected.

Lee starred in television dramas and taught martial arts in the United States before taking up filmacting in 1971.

His film , including The Big Boss and Fists of Fury, were smash hits in Hong Kong and overseas.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Grand Ole Opry installed its 63rd member during the weekend—Jeanne Pruett, a former Texas housewife who rose to country-music fame with her hit record, Satin Sheets.

The announcement was a surprise to Mrs. Pruett, who tearfully accepted a dozen roses from singers Porter Wagoner and Dolly Parton as she went onstage to perform at the Opry.

"I knew absolutely nothing about it," she said. "I later found out my friends had been planning this surprise for about two weeks."

Mrs. Pruett has been writing and performing music in Nashville for about 10 years.

MOSCOW (AP) — The American movie Oklahoma Crude, directed by Stanley Kramer, shared first place for feature films Monday with Soviet and Bulgarian entries at the eighth Moscow International Film Festival.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, July 27

Aries (March 21-April 19): Definite information about fresh opportunity can be had if you search. Your urge to move on is apt to be strong.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Nothing works as it's supposed to; improvise, experiment, simply. Be flexible with sched ules; enjoy changes.

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): Make room for partners, competitive games, sports. Travel plans can advance. Keep in communication with those at a distance.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Bid for the top spot, in whatever line you are in. Big decisions come on, not to be put off much longer.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You test the ties you have, confirm relationships which have grown quietly. Life seems complete today—but thoroughly enjoyable.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Try to bring your work to a halt or ther finished or in shape for an interruption. Your attention is needed on formal matters.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Confusing conditions come to resolution, leaving overdue changes still unmade. In the midst of business, take a moment to be thankful.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What you do now determines major future directions. Informal approaches are favored, with less motion spent on superficialities.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Press for an indirect resolution of any career question. Expenses should be sensible, but somewhat higher than usual.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Resist temptations to drift—you can wind up many activities with a little extra push.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Cater to emotional needs as you make balancing choices between family and teamwork.

Cut Can Let In Hepatitis Virus

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am receiving a shot of gamma globulin as a precaution against serum hepatitis (without any record of a transfusion or needle in the past year).

My physician doesn't seem to have any educational material for me on the subject and certain aspects of it seem to be puzzling. I heard from him, "I was kept in the dark, and I don't like it."

Sorry you are so grumpy, but I doubt that your doctor was trying to hold out information. More likely, there wasn't much of value to tell you except for what you already knew.

Hepatitis is a liver infection caused by a virus. There are two types of hepatitis, now known as infectious and the other as serum hepatitis. In either case, the virus can be put under considerable strain.

Infectious hepatitis is usually spread by contaminated food or water sources. The incubation period is about two to six weeks.

Serum hepatitis is transmitted primarily by the virus getting into the blood stream as by a blood transfusion or via a needle contaminated with the virus. It is a disease also known as a danger to addicts who inject drugs, the danger arising, of course, that these people use each other's needles without meticulous sterilizing.

It is known that the disease is passed along by means other than transfusion or dirty needles. Since it is essentially a matter of the virus getting into the blood, any small cut or abrasion or scratch could be the point of entrance if the virus happens to be there. It is possible, I dare say, that the virus might be transmitted other than through a break in the skin, but I do not know that that has been proved one way or another. Anyway, there is also this difference between serum and infectious hepatitis: The incubation period of serum hepatitis is much longer, anywhere from one to six months. Special tests can be used to distinguish between the two types.

With the virus suggested by the disease, bile which normally is carried by the gall bladder and thence to the small intestine is absorbed through the liver body tissues causing the jaundice or yellowness that most frequently accompanies liver disorders.

Treatment doesn't lend itself to much discussion. There is no medication to combat the virus so good nursing is the recourse, plus the patient's own defence mechanisms to overcome the virus.

Ample rest is essential, and a restricted diet is followed until the jaundice subsides. Rest indicates that the patient is overcoming the virus. This can take a month or so.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have several skin tags on my neck and under my arm, about a quarter-inch long. What causes them and how can I get rid of them? They are a nuisance to me when I shave. Are they warts?—Mrs. C.L.

From description, probably not warts, but rather overgrowths of the outer skin layers called epidermis. Harmless, but you can make a mess of things if you try to remove them yourself. Wiser to have your doctor remove any conspicuous or annoying ones. The cause of them is not known.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 28 and have had tonsils and adenoids. I have a fear of being put to sleep. Are there any doctors or surgeons who could have them done under local anesthetic?—M.A.

Yes, this can be done with local anesthesia.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

Many players instinctively indulge in deceptive bidding. There is nothing wrong with this style of play if the practitioner can point to more successes than failures in the practice of the art.

The trouble with fancy bids is that all too often partner becomes the victim of deception, instead of the opponent at whom it is aimed. All the same, occasions do arise when a well-calculated deceptive move is so perfectly timed that there is only a remote chance of partner's getting hooked, but a good chance of harpooning one or both of opponents.

Consider this deal where Edith Kemp of Miami Beach held the hand. She and her partner were playing weak notrumps, of the 12 to 14 point variety, which accounts for North's anemic opening bid. East overcalled with two spades.

It was clear to Mrs. Kemp that East-West had the better hands, taking their known spade fit into account. There was not much point to a pro-saic bid of three hearts, since it was obvious that the enemy could establish her in spades.

So Mrs. Kemp pretended she had spade strength by bidding two notrump, hoping to give her opponents cause for concern and at any rate to inhibit them from going sky-high in spades.

West had too good a hand to bid less than four spades and this came around to Mrs. Kemp, who now mentioned hearts for the first time. West doubled, and that was that.

West led the A-K-Q of clubs and Mrs. Kemp would settle down only 300 — a fine score, considering that East-West could have scored 490 points by bidding a game, or 980 points by bidding a slem.

Tomorrow: The opening lead.

Moog Didn't Have Financing When He Bid for Building

TORONTO (CP) — Developer Gerhard Moog said Wednesday he assured Ontario Hydro he could arrange financing for a new $66 million Hydro headquarters but he didn't have the financing when he made his submission to Hydro in January, 1972.

Mr. Moog was speaking to a legislative committee investigating the awarding of the Hydro contract to his firm, Canada Square Ltd.

The committee has learned that financial arrangements between Canada Square and a United States backer have not been made final.

Allegations of political patronage and favoritism by Hydro to Moog's company have been made. Mr. Moog is a close friend of Premier William Davis.

During Wednesday's session, Mr. Moog's lawyer, G. D. Finlayson, gave committee counsel Richard Shibley a file of Mr. Moog's correspondence with Swiss bank.

Earlier this week, Mr. Moog, on the advice of his lawyer, refused to turn over the file, containing correspondence with the Zurich-based bank on possible financial backing for the Hydro project.

Mr. Finlayson had said releasing the file could hamper Mr. Moog in obtaining possible financing for future projects.

A speaker's warrant ordering the production of the file to the committee was served on Mr. Moog earlier in the week but the committee reached a compromise and the file was not made public.

Instead, it was turned over to Mr. Shibley and he was allowed to question the developer on its contents without making the file part of the record.

Mr. Moog engaged in conversation with one banker on the possibility of financing the Hydro situation, while Premier Davis talked to another about the international monetary situation.

Both Mr. Moog and Mr. Davis said the premier was unaware of the developer's conversation on Hydro financing. The Moog conversation was in German.

Wednesday, Mr. Moog said he corresponded with the Zurich bank after returning to Canada on the possibility of raising $30 million at a six and a half per cent interest rate.

But a letter from the Zurich bank Nov. 18, 1971, said the Moog terms weren't acceptable and he dropped the idea of financing the project through that particular bank.

The Hydro contract with Canada Square wasn't signed until November, 1972, but discussions between Mr. Moog and Mr. Candy were under way in 1971, before three other development companies had a chance to make submissions on the job. Their bids were later turned down.

After he returned from Europe with Mr. Davis, Mr. Moog assured Mr. Candy he could raise the money for the project. He said after the deal with the Zurich bank fell through, he preferred to deal in a North American financial market but insisted he could still get the money from other Swiss sources if necessary.

Ontario Trains Stalled

Unions Say Layoffs Bid to Widen Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Amid union warnings of a national railway shutdown and federal government urgings not to panic, Ontario entered its second day today without trains and telegrams.

And the other provinces were wondering which would be next for strike action by the 56,000-member Association of Non-Operating Railway Employees.

About 20,000 workers halted rail and telegram service in Ontario Thursday as they left their jobs for 48 hours in the first of back contract demands. They are in dispute with Canadian National Railways, CP Rail and eight smaller railways.

Despite the shutdown Thursday, no major communications or telecommunications problems had been reported in Ontario to early this morning.

But in Montreal, R. C. Smith, chairman of the unions' joint negotiating committee, said the railways were laying off employees in some areas not on strike in an attempt to "push us into a country-wide strike" and "bring the government down on us with emergency legislation."

It was by use of such legislation that the federal government brought an end to national railway walkouts in 1950 and 1966.

Mr. Smith said the unions are doing their best to stick to the selective strike plan but if "harassment and intimidation" of employees continues, "we cannot guarantee that our policy of moderation can be preserved."

He said up to 50 per cent of employees in some categories had been laid off in areas outside Ontario. Included were employees needed to maintain essential services such as grain shipments and ferry runs which the unions have agreed to keep in operation, he said.

A CP Rail spokesman said Mr. Smith's claims are "typical exaggeration that arises in a labor situation. The only employees laid off are those for whom there is no work because of the strike action in Ontario."

A CN spokesman said the only employees without work outside Ontario are in Manitoba and Quebec. They would have manned the trains that were cancelled because of the Ontario strike.

But CN said if the strikes force it to discontinue certain work there will have to be "adjustments" to the work force.

The Ontario strike, in addition to halting rail traffic in the province has also led to the suspension of transcontinental passenger service and affected services in neighbouring Quebec and Manitoba.

Rail officials in Winnipeg said passenger service to and out of the city was at a standstill as cross-border trains into Ontario were cancelled.

At Thunder Bay, Ont., CP's Canadian was halted Thursday by strikers. A union spokesman said pickets will be maintained on a 24-hour basis and the train won't be allowed to leave until 6 a.m. EDT Saturday when the Ontario strike is scheduled to end.

The 13-car train, with 250 passengers, was en route to Vancouver from Montreal. The railway arranged bus transportation to Winnipeg for the passengers.

CN also announced tighter restrictions on its freight handling across the country because of the unions' warning that little advance notice will be given of where the next selective strikes will take place.

All perishable traffic originating in Canada will be accepted only at owners' risk and subject to delayed delivery, said the railway.

Both CN and CP have embargoed livestock and explosive freight shipments and said no freight would be accepted in Ontario until the end of the strike there.

Many Ontario train travellers have been forced to make alternative arrangements.

A spokesman for a Kitchener bus company reported doubled passenger volume and several industries in southern Ontario switched to truck transport in an effort to maintain normal operations.

Tradeau Plans Trip to China

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is to arrive in Peking Oct. 10 for five days of talks with Chinese officials and travel in China, it was announced Thursday.

In a statement distributed at the conference on western economic opportunities, Mr. Trudeau said the visit is to be "a short and businesslike trip with trade and commerce foremost in our minds."

An agenda calls for him to leave Canada the evening of Oct. 8, arrive in Peking Oct. 10, hold talks with Premier Chou En-lai on the 10th, 11th and 12th, travel outside Peking during the next two days, hold more talks with Premier Chou on the 15th, leave Peking on the 16th and arrive in Ottawa Oct. 18.

There was no indication of whether Mr. Trudeau would meet Chairman Mao Tse-tung or of what places outside Peking Mr. Trudeau would visit.

No agenda was given for the talks with Premier Chou, but the purpose of the trip was stated to be reinforcing, and consolidating the "groundwork" laid by the previous visits of former industry minister Jean-Luc Pepin, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

Mr. Trudeau said he sensed trading with Pacific rim countries would benefit all Canada but "we believe that the initiative will be of particular interest to the West," since its exports outside North America go mainly to Pacific rim countries.

Surprise Canadian Statement Assails Viet Cong Conduct

Saigon (CP) — Canada issued a surprise statement today that lashed out at what it termed the "outrageous" treatment of two Canadian officers detained by the Viet Cong for 18 days.

Vernon Turner, senior ranking Canadian on the International Supervision, (ICCS) read the statement in ICCS commissioners at their regular meeting.

The statement said that the officers, Capts. Ian Patten of Toronto and Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa, "were denied even the treatment accorded prisoners of war."

"They had forced marches through the jungle under guard while bound by the hands and neck, they were subjected to political propaganda, they were deprived of their uniforms and, on occasion, in the case of Capt. Patten, suffered physical violence."

"Treatment of this sort for members of an international organization is intolerable in the extreme, and must be nearly if not completely without precedent.

"It is clearly not the type of behavior one would expect of a serious responsible party, conscious of its moral and legal obligations under an agreement which it has itself signed."

Eight-year Term Given To J. Rose

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Rose was sentenced today to eight years in prison for being an accessory after the fact of the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte by assisting his brother Paul to avoid arrest.

Mr. Laporte, then Quebec labor minister, was murdered Oct. 17, 1970, seven days after he was kidnapped from his home. Paul Rose is serving two concurrent life terms for the kidnap and murder.

CP Air Layoffs Start

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air began laying off passenger agents Thursday as a strike by 1,300 machinists continued. A spokesman said all the non-striking workers, members of the transportation and communications division of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks Union, will likely be sent to training sessions during the strike. Other layoffs in lower job classifications are possible, he said.

White Is Pleased

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial treasurer John White said Thursday Ontario has no immediate desire to get into the banking business although he welcomes the authority to do so. "The very fact the possibility is here gives us a degree of flexibility in the banking system," he said.

On One Point Everyone Agrees, Nothing Lost at West Parley

CALGARY (CP) — There was no shortage of disagreements as the participants ended the successes of the just-concluded western economic opportunities conference, but there appeared to be a unanimous opinion that nothing had been lost.

From the beginning some skepticism surrounded the meeting, called by Prime Minister Trudeau to combat western alienation, and no doubt some skepticism remains. But no one has written it off as a failure, and none of the heads of government seem to have lost political ground.

And on the other hand, there appears to be a unanimous opinion that the four premiers all acquitted themselves well. None of them appears to have suffered from the exposure.

"It's a game for losers," a federal official said in reference to Mr. Trudeau's facing four premiers of oppobing political stripes. "But the score won't be known for months, perhaps years."

Apart from the political implications there seemed little doubt the carefully-managed program produced a plus for the West. Starting with the controversial transportation issue, and ending with the unanimously praised banking issue, each province gained ground, whether in the form of new educational institutes, agriculture programs, resource development or decentralized financial institutions.

And all political leaders agree ground was gained in building new lines of communication and understanding.

Premier Allen Blakeney of Saskatchewan was generally disappointed that more progress had not been made, but in looking toward a possible better foundation for Confederation, he added: "Perhaps we builded better than we knew."

Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta said the conference "was a splendid progress," but qualified that with his disappointments, including alleged lack of understanding by the federal government.

". . . We won't know for some time to come how much progress was made," said Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer.

And Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia summed it up by saying "all in all, nothing has been lost."

Provinces Can Invest In Banks

CALGARY (CP) — Three days of federal-provincial inviting, philosophical discourse, expressions of patriotism, veiled insults, platitudes, praise and terms of disappointment ended Thursday as Prime Minister Trudeau brought down his gavel with evident relief and declared:

"Thus ends the one and only western economic opportunities conference."

Thursday's discussions were, in the eyes of the premiers, a mixture of aggregate and anagnation.

Finance Minister John Turner was showered with praise for promising to amend banking legislation to allow provincial governments to own shares in banks. But inaction Minister Otto Lang, responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, ran into heavy fire for his description of the principles used by Ottawa to form a new feed-grains policy.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, who outlined 18 proposals to bolster the agriculture industry, was a lesser target.

Mr. Turner said the promised banking amendments would permit provinces to own up to 25 per cent of the voting stock of a bank, although this would have to be reduced to 10 per cent over a decade.

President vs. The Law

Experts Fearful Court May Try to Duck Issue

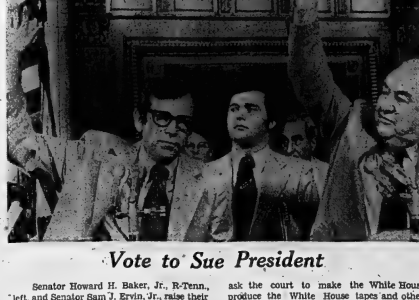
WASHINGTON (AP) — The demands of Watergate, investigators for access to presidential tapes and documents have moved into the courts and onto a road leading toward a Supreme Court test.

In a rapid series of legal moves Thursday, President Nixon rejected subpoenas from the Senate Watergate committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox. The committee and Cox then moved to force him to comply.

Cox was in court less than two hours after receiving notice the president would not obey his subpoena. He asked Judge John Sirica of U.S. district court president to show cause why he should not comply with the subpoena.

In his letter to Sirica, Nixon said that in declining to obey the subpoena he was following "the example of a long line of my predecessors as president of the United States who have consistently refused to the position that the president is not subject to compulsory process from the courts."

Charles Alan Wright, professor of law at the University of Texas, and a special consultant to the president, told reporters Nixon would abide by "a definitive decision of the highest court."



Some constitutional lawyers asked for comment by The Associated Press speculated that the Supreme Court might be interested to avoid the issue.

"My main concern is that the Supreme Court may shirk from its duty in the case," said William Van Alstyne, law professor at Duke University.

Prof. Terrance Sandalow of the University of Michigan also said Nixon would be a great temptation for the courts to duck the issue altogether."

Strike Helps Bus Boom

While railway passenger service is tied up by the strike of non-operating railway workers, bus travel has surged upward fantastically.

"Our business has increased 150 per cent, three times the normal today and yesterday," said manager of the Belleville bus terminal Pete Rozon.

"We've had lineups this morning and in the middle of yesterday afternoon. We expect to have to be busy until about 9 tonight. We're bringing in a couple of other men tonight," said Mr. Rozon. "The majority of the people are going to Toronto, Montreal or Ottawa."

"We're short on our own buses and doubling up on them. We've been renting them from Travelways and Thorncrest, two charter bus agencies in the area," said Mr. Rozon.

While the lines are benefiting from the strike, the post office expects few problems, a spokesman said yesterday.

He said first class mail will not be delayed but there might be some delays in handling parcel post, newspapers and magazines.

Trucks were being used to haul mail normally sent by rail.

The machinists' strike against CP Air was not expected to have any impact on mail service because planes and trains were available to carry domestic and overseas mail normally handled by CP Air.

More Rain Needed Soon

AMELIASBURGH — (Staff) — What started out to be a million-dollar rain fell far short of the mark Thursday in area drought-stricken farmers.

If nothing else, however, the one-tenth of an inch of precipitation at supper time brought welcome relief from the heat.

But farmers needed much more rain to aid suffering Timato, potato and corn crops, observed Prince Edward county farmer Lyle Vandlef.

For some growers in the Wellington-Milford area, no amount of rain can help, according to Mr. Vandlef.

He said he noted whole fields of withered corn on a parched countryside on Thursday.

Apple orchards are said to be holding up fairly well despite the dry weather.

West of Trenton, farmers may have fared a bit better than their Prince Edward counterparts. The government experimental farm at Smithfield recorded a quarter-inch of rain.

A farm spokesman, John Warner, said the rain fall would be helpful if it was general but much more was needed.

Spitter Shorter

Brian Nickle, 129 William St. Napanee, was declared the winner and the North American champion for 1973, in the watermelon seed spitting contest held in connection with Napanee's second annual hoopla days events.

The four-day hoopla days events included soap box derby, bathing beauty contest, pet parade, pancake breakfasts and, a drive-in church service ended on Sunday.

Although he battled all other competitors in the watermelon seed spitting contest, this year's winner of the event failed to match last year's performance—it's distance was 34 feet — 22 feet short of last year's record.

Pole Fires Cause Blackout

Five Centre Street area residents were without power for five hours early this morning after two hydro poles crossed.

The four-day hoopla days events included soap box derby, bathing beauty contest, pet parade, pancake breakfasts and, a drive-in church service ended on Sunday.

Although he battled all other competitors in the watermelon seed spitting contest, this year's winner of the event failed to match last year's performance—it's distance was 34 feet — 22 feet short of last year's record.

Dry Weather Hitting Crops

PICTON — Rainfall in Prince Edward County this year is considerably less than in 1972 and dry weather now is affecting certain crops.

Larry Matheson, agricultural representative for the ministry of agriculture and food in Prince Edward County notes that since June 1 there has been approximately two inches of rain. This unofficial figure was taken from a rain gauge at his office.

Mr. Matheson comments that the yield and quality of some recently combined wheat is below normal because of dry weather. There will be a small second cut for this season's hay crop.

Pea yields are reported as variable with dryness being a major factor in crop reductions.

Fruit and vegetable specialist Robert Cobbledick observes the dry weather has influenced the vegetable crops but apples, a deep rooted crop, have not been harmed by it.

The raspberry crop was shortened this season to approximately three weeks because of rapid ripening. Winter kill also cut production to some extent.

Mr. Cobbledick reports cherries in Prince Edward as a light crop because of cloudy and wet weather in the bloom period. There was little productivity and "good visible pollen" was not encouraged.

He said that Ontario this year will have roughly a 60 per cent cherry crop because of deficient pollination. Prices per pound paid to the farmer for cherries roughly have doubled this season and are indicative of the Ontario crop.

Mr. Cobbledick remarks that the recent twister touching the county did not greatly damage crops. He estimated that it touched 40 per cent of the county's acreage with damage to about 15 per cent of it.

Water Consumption Soaring at Tweed

TWEED — Municipal water consumption has soared in the past month here.

Residents of this village used eight million more gallons in June this year compared to the same month in 1972.

Water consumption for the month was 38,523,700 gallons, council was told recently.

But the amount of water rates collected show only an increase of $511.86 for the same period. Council members felt the situation must not be allowed to continue.

Many complaints have been received by them that the hours published for the watering of lawns are being completely ignored. It was felt the only way that this situation can be controlled is by water metering in the village. In this way, everyone would pay for water used and all householders receive the same treatment.

Council members appointed Elais Wright to make a complete survey of the village. This is to be done immediately to ascertain the number of meters that will have to be purchased.

It is expected that in the near future the new sewage treatment project will be installed. One of the charges that will be made to defray cost of building and operating this plant will be 100 percent of the water billing. For instance, if the water account is $18, there will be a similar charge on the bill of $10 for the treatment charges.

Rain Eases Fire Hazard

TWEED (Special) — A rainfall of better than a half-inch has slightly eased the Forest fire danger in the Tweed district, it was reported today by ministry of natural resources officials.

Rainfall at Tweed Thursday totalled 1.63 inch, while a half inch fell at Verona but only .09 inch at White Lake.

Department officials at Tweed said this morning that as a result of yesterday's rain restricted permits would be issued on a day-to-day basis.

Normal rainfall in the Tweed area for the month of July is three inches. With Thursday's rain the July rainfall this year totals about two inches.

Power Line Critics Organize Campaign

PICTON — The Save Our Bay Committee of Prince Edward County will co-sponsor an advertising campaign with the Sierra Club of Ontario to oppose a high voltage power line at Hayward Long Beach. The advertisements will appear in numerous daily and weekly newspapers.

Part of the advertisement's text states: "We understand the need for additional power in Prince Edward County but we cannot understand why the bringing of such power must take this ugly, unnatural form."

"We are working to stop construction of this thing and we are working just as hard to find another way."

A 220,000 volt power line has been proposed to span the reach and a 3,200-foot span of eight cables would carry red and white balloons in compliance with federal aviation regulation. The new line would replace three 44,000 volt lines now in use.

In addition to the advertising campaign, petitions opposing the project have been circulated and will be forwarded to Ontario Premier William Davis.

Club Builds Tennis Court

TWEED — The Kiwanis Club of Tweed in conjunction with the Hastings County school board, is building a double tennis court at the School.

Paving should start this week and the courts will be completed in the next two weeks.

The project was started almost three years ago.

The courts could not have been built without the support of the young people of Tweed and district who attended the dances that the Kiwanis Club has run the past three years. Hastings County school board also gave initiative and assistance.

An official opening will be held in August and we will advise interested persons of the time and date.

It is hoped that a tennis organization will be formed in the near future and all the citizens of Tweed are invited to make use of these new facilities.

Bicyclist Injured

TWEED (Special) — A 12-year-old Stirling district boy is in slightly improved condition today at Belleville General Hospital following a cardirect accident on Highway 14 South of Stirling late Thursday afternoon.

Provincial police said that a bicylce being ridden by Dwayne Watson, RR 4 Stirling, was in collision with a car driven by Brian Barron of Peterborough.

The boy suffered head lacerations and injuries to his right shoulder and was admitted to the hospital's intensive care unit.

Race Has Its Ups and Downs

Some 14 events were included in Trenton's Junior Olympics Thursday ranging from football throwing to apple bobbing and the three-legged race. The Olympics, at Trenton High School, attracted more than 200 children from town playgrounds.

Wellington To Hold Reunion

WELLINGTON — "Remember when" days in Wellington will begin Aug. 4 when Old Home Week opens with sidewalk sales.

This program of weekend festivities will continue on Saturday night with a chicken barbecue at Wellington Legion. A dance will follow with the village of Wellington picking up the tab for all "Old Sweats."

On Sunday, August 5 a service for citizens' program will be held in the village park followed by a band concert presented by the Concert Brass of Belleville. In the evening a choral concert directed by Muriel McNeill will be performed.

At 8 p.m. on Sunday a plaque honoring Robert Campbell, a village native, will be unveiled in the park.

On Monday, August 6 Old Home Week will close with a free street dance. Pony and horse and buggy rides will be available on Sunday and Monday in the village.

$250 Raised At Bingo

Dairy Princesses Attend Workshop

TWEED — Earlier this month Eastern Ontario Dairy Princesses attended an intensive one day workshop on dairying at Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology.

The day was part of a special weekend program sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Marmora to prepare the girls for the Ontario Dairy Princess Competition at the Canadian National Exhibition in August.

Bruce Wheeler, co-ordinator for the weekend, said that in the past ten years five girls from the workshop have captured Ontario championships and one a Canadian championship.

The course included practice in etiquette, poise, platform and television speaking, and interviewing.

The girls also took part in discussions on present policies in the dairy industry.

Instructors for the workshop were: Jessie Graham, Basil Wren, Terrance Meagher and Garth Doody of the College staff, along with Bill Berry, regional supervisor from the Dairy Commission.

There were twelve candidates in attendance, from various towns and counties.

Rebuilt

The causeway at Big Island off the south shore of the Bay of Quinte has now been rebuilt, linking the scenic area with the Prince Edward County mainland. With reconstruction came another feature. This week the first of two culverts were installed by the county roads department. The pipes are four feet in diameter, 55 feet long. Sophiasburgh township reeve George Foster says the piping will eliminate stagnant water odor along the causeway.

Watergate Confrontation

President Nixon's continued refusal to release tapes that the Senate Watergate hearing believes will shed light on the dark corners of this murky investigation does little to boost the public's waning confidence in him and in the political process in the United States.

On the other hand the President has the courage of his own conviction that release of the tapes would serve no useful purpose. The investigating committee, not surprisingly, disagrees. Regardless of their content, if the committee cannot have access to the tapes, the feeling persists that there can be no satisfactory issue to the present controversy. At the very least they would help clear the present atmosphere of suspicion surrounding the presidency.

At the same time we cannot help feeling there is some self-serving in the attitude of the Senate investigators. There is a tendency by chairman Sam Ervin and his deputy, Senator Baker, among others, to indulge in what has come to be known in political parlance as "grandstanding." Ervin's concept of Watergate as a "greater tragedy than the Civil War," his rather pious utterance about "love of country," his "reverence of the office of presidency," his wishing the president well, he being "the only president we have got right now," are in this somewhat moralizing and patronizing vein.

Be that as it may there is cause enough for disquiet in the United States. Things have come to the proverbial pass in the political conduct of that country. Nothing Mr. Nixon has said thus far and nothing revealed as yet in evidence has served to remove the cloud still hanging over his personal and political integrity.

Camping Anyone?

A trailer site within the city is thought to be not feasible. This has been the conclusion of a special committee of council established two years ago.

Yet, camping is big-time in the recreational sphere these days. The problem is that things may be reaching saturation point if they have not done so already. It is getting so that for anyone seeking solitude the great outdoors may not be their bag at all.

Nancy Cooper, a Kingston journalist on a camping trip out west quotes her husband as saying, "It is getting so bad we shall have to stay in the city to get away from it all."

Mrs. Cooper quotes another camper, heading for Vancouver in a converted school bus with his wife and four children: "I'm not used to having many people around me all the time," and she notes herself that "they come in mobs . . . the whistling wind and the crickets are drowned out by updated camping sounds of flush toilets, zapping chinaware, hair dryers and movies at 8."

So . . . camping anyone? The least Belleville can do is seek means of cashing in on this bonanza, even if the city proper has no available site. It is encouraging to see that the committee is now looking outside the city for a possible site; there is talk also of approaching a private property owner with a view to obtaining a temporary site.

Meanwhile, speaking of Kingston, we see that another young woman from the city, Jacki Berry, who is Miss National Campers' and Hikers' Association of Ontario, won the International title in Los Banos, California, recently.

Southern Winter

In the midst of the heat wave in these parts it is strange to read of winter in South America. Argentina it is the worst in decades. Between rain in northern parts of the country and heavy snow in the south there have been heavy losses in livestock while the capital district is famous. And housewives have been queuing up for kerosene supplies from tank trucks sent out by the state petroleum company. Temperatures there have dipped to 38 degrees. Thousands have had to flee flooded homes, roads have been cut and two travellers froze to death in southern Santa Cruz province when their car stalled in snow. Half a dozen farm workers also have perished. Other parts of the southern hemisphere have been luckier. In New Zealand — around Auckland for example — it has been sunny and mild in what is their winter too.

Moscow Remains at Arm's Length

Shrewd Leadership Keeps Romania on Independent Course

By JOHN HARRISON

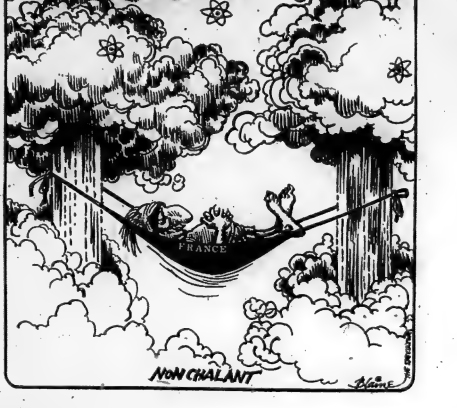
Thomson News Service



Romania, the "independent" Soviet satellite state in Eastern Europe looks very much like Czechoslovakia in 1938 under the half-forgotten former premier Dubcek.

Under President Nicolas Ceausescu, a more disciplined Communist than the fat-faced Dubcek, Romania has increased her ties with the West, permitted extensive trade deals between Western European and North American industries for goods and services badly-needed in that Balkan country's economy.

Ceausescu made closer ties with European capitalists and their governments earlier than Moscow, for example seeking his own rapprochement with West Germany. And during the Czech invasion of August, 1968 by Soviet tanks and troops, the wily and tough Romanian leader refused to mobilize his troops, as did the obedient Hungarians, to support the brutal Soviet invasion.

Instead, Mr. Ceausescu kept his army on the alert in case the Russians invaded his country after dealing with the once "liberalized" Czechs.

Not that Romania wasn't extremely vulnerable to this even-

In fact, the Polish jokes which proliferate in the West, are easily matched by the Romanian ones in the Communist world, almost always associated with their alleged tricky, shifty, gypsy view of the world.

Despite the national psyche, Romanian Leader Nicolas Ceausescu must have been blessed with a large dose of it to survive as well as he has done.

Also he has a tougher political strain than did Mr. Dubcek, long since declared a "non-person" by the Stalinist Czechs who swept him from temporary power.

Romania domestically has not experienced the so-called "thaw" of thought and press control which took place in Communist Poland after the 1956 riots or in Prague in 1968.

Television spot speeches by the prime minister and senior Communist bureaucrats are downgrading personal freedoms, saying these will come after the country has lifted even further its low living standard.

Intellectuals and academics in all totalitarian systems in Eastern Europe have heard that line before, and have experienced only more repression an imprisonment for refusing to accept it.

At the same time, Mr. Ceausescu the unpredictable Romanian Communist, has allowed state payrolls, unheard of in a Communist state where government jobs are the ultimate security. About 80,000 government employees have lost their jobs in Bucharest, the capital city, and a new echelon of bureaucratic management with technical skills is being established.

Obviously the benefits from close ties with Western technology and consumer goods haven't yet appeared deep enough. Industrializing a 1,000-year-old peasant society can't be done overnight.

Brazil—Economic Miracle But People Are Poor

This is the first of three articles on Brazil by Canadian Press Business Editor Irving C. Whyatt.

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
CP Business Editor

BRASILIA (CP) — "The economy is booming, but the population is poor."

That's the president of Brazil, speaking about his country which has had such fantastic growth in recent years that it is commonly referred to as the "Brazil miracle."

The miracle continues and, if everything goes on schedule, will continue for years to come. Sometime within two decades—again if all goes on schedule—Brazil should join the privileged countries of the world that regard themselves as "developed."

The poverty of which President Emilio Garrastazu Medici spoke is not a hypocrite of the miracle of growth but an illness inherited from the past when the country was exploited by fortune hunters and speculators and torn by long periods of political instability and economic maladies.

Brazil's miracle started with the bloodless revolution of 1964 which not only halted the nation's drift to communism. It is based on complete and strict—some say harsh—military government control of all aspects of the economic backbone of the country.

Even the critics admit it has worked—the economy has grown 50 per cent in five years—though some Brazilians there are troubles ahead, perhaps in the next decade. The main thesis is that a country can't be considered great while there is social injustice and inequality.

It is still the happy, fun-loving land of Carmen Miranda and Pele, soccer star who once built a quarter of the people are unable to read and write. It is a country which has become one of the world's major manufacturers of automobiles —but where two-thirds of the 100 million people are still not actively engaged in the work force.

It is a country which took the bold and imaginative step of new and futuristic capital in the wilderness—and which has relatively intensive use with easy-access roads, resorts and cottages.

Above all, there has been the question of continuing the quite heavy lumbering operations in the park.

Under the government policy the park will be retained as relative wilderness, though no: primitive. Only a few hundred cottages will be cleared out and lumber rights returned to natural state, but trails and campsites in the interior will be maintained and developed and new camping parks will be created outside the perimeter.

Lumbering will continue, but it will be carried on by a new Crown corporation.

Essentially what this policy means is that fairly intensive use will be made of the perimeter areas of the 2,900 square mile park, but the interior will be maintained in a natural state.

This policy recognizes that (unlike Quetico Park in northwestern Ontario which is to be primitive) Algonquin is only a few hours drive from millions of people in southern Ontario and the northern states.

With the increase this means it would probably not be possible to keep the entire park as wilderness. So the plan is to let the fringes have some intensive use but all the while protect the core. Which is a practical approach.

The government's approach to logging is a novel one, but again, also an apparently practical one.

It recognizes that selective logging in the park is not bad (in fact at least some leading conservationists advocate it).

The important question is that to be continued. And under a Crown corporation this should be the best possible control.

Algonquin's Future Is Announced

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — In the dispute over the future of Algonquin Park, an argument which has been going on for more than 70 years, the government now has come up with a policy which could seem to admit a middle path right down the middle.

But no matter to what degree it may have been set by politics, the decision on the new policy would appear to be a good thing.

The broad issue behind the Algonquin controversy, though with various off-shoots, has been the extent to which the park should be actively used.

At one extreme there have been those who believe it is kept completely primitive. In an absolutely raw state, with no cultivation at all, and really of use only to canoe trippers and sport fishermen.

At the other extreme have been those who see it as the last large tract of Crown land accessible to the province's industrial heart-land and who have long wanted to have relatively intensive use with easy-access roads, resorts and cottages.

Above all, there has been the question of continuing the quite heavy lumbering operations in the park.

Under the government policy the park will be retained as relative wilderness, though not primitive. Only a few hundred cottages will be cleared out and lumber rights returned to natural state, but trails and campsites in the interior will be maintained and developed and new camping parks will be created outside the perimeter.

Lumbering will continue, but it will be carried on by a new Crown corporation.

Essentially what this policy means is that fairly intensive use will be made of the perimeter areas of the 2,900 square mile park, but the interior will be maintained in a natural state.

This policy recognizes that (unlike Quetico Park in northwestern Ontario which is to be primitive) Algonquin is only a few hours drive from millions of people in southern Ontario and the northern states.

Smaller Car Trend Is Now Well-Established

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

After all these years of being urged to think big, new can we learn to think small?

Take cars. Can we break the longer-lower-wider syndrome, that says that bigger cars are better cars?

Well, yes. The Germans first, then the Japanese, succeeded in changing the minds of many car-buyers about the merits of small cars.

But the concept of the big car as a symbol of big status is still deeply entrenched. You would think a municipal transit system would have a special interest in cutting down traffic congestion—but Toronto's transit commissioners, who all have transit passes, recently bought themselves a new Cadillac with power everything.

Maybe the transit commissioners haven't heard about the energy crisis. Or maybe they think that, like family cancer, only affects other people.

But some people who study urban transportation requirements are becoming increasingly concerned, not with evidence of gluttony and waste in our automobile self-indulgence.

The problem is by no means limited to Toronto or other equally-big cities. Half of all Canadians live in the 21 metropolitan areas that have populations of more than 100,000.

Five mornings a week, 2.5 million people in those 21 cities set out for work. A lucky few walk or ride bikes. Less than one-fifth take a bus or other public transportation. About three out of four go by car, usually alone.

"If you set out to do it deliberately, you couldn't design a worse vehicle for urban movement than the present-day automobile," contends John Grawick, vice-president of research and development at Canadian National.

"It's over-powered, it lacks manoeuverability, and requires more operating and parking space than its single occupant has in his place of work."

"Perhaps a radical change in vehicle width would enable us to increase the capacity of our streets considerably.

"The ultimate in narrow vehicles is the bicycle. It's hardly wider than its rider—in fact, for some rear-end profiles I've seen, it's narrower."

The CN vice-president suggests a "touchable" car. This would mean extending the recently-introduced concept of retracting and shock-absorbing bumpers to the rest of the car, making it something like the dodge-em cars in an amusement park.

The result would be that each lane of today's roads could accommodate two or more touchable cars (if the lane wasn't blocked, as usual, by a truck "on delivery"—sacred phrase).

There will always be a legitimate need for private cars. They get people to jobs that would otherwise be inaccessible, they get people to hospitals in emergencies, and to supermarkets, to churches, to remote campuses.

But the twin pressures of an energy shortage and urban congestion must soon prompt the government to encourage a transition to smaller, less powerful cars, and to discourage the manufacture of big, fat and inefficient behemoths.

Consumers of coal will do much thinking over the problem of fuel supply for next winter season. Yesterday announcement was made that unless Ontario and Quebec householders agree to accept one quarter of the amount of hard coal they burned last year in high volatile bituminous coal, they will not be allowed to buy for next winter more than 50 per cent of the hard coal they used last winter. The Munitions Dept. ordered to this effect shows the seriousness of the coal supply and people will wisely take measures to conserve as far as they possibly can the use of hard coal fuel. And it is provided in the order that no person may order class "A" fuel from one dealer until all such orders placed with other dealers are cancelled.

Three Die In Sarnia Air Crash

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — A flying school operator from Petrolia, Ont., and two Sarnia residents were killed Thursday when a twinengine aircraft crashed into a field about one mile east of here.

Provincial police at Petrolia, 20 miles east of here, said the Piper Apache crashed just after taking off from Sarnia airport. When it crashed, the plane had a furlough 30 to 40 feet long and came to rest on its nose.

Stanley Fisher, 58, of Petrolia, owner of the Lambton Flying School, John Bob Patterson, 52, and Minnie Adelaide Stewart, 42, both of Sarnia, were killed as the victims of the crash.

A witness said the plane appeared shaky before crashing and bursting into flames.

The boy said Bortolotti had been "bugging" him about his room, and getting a job.

Munro Cautions Against Panic

OTTAWA (CP) — Politicians and the general public were advised Thursday by Labor Minister Munro of the importance of the over the onset of a rail strike in Ontario.

Responding to questions in the Commons from opposition spokesmen, Mr. Munro said he thought the parties to the dispute should bargain freely without threat of parliamentary intervention.

In the Commons, NDP leader Tommy Douglas said if Mr. Munro was aware thousands of non-striking railway employees were being laid off by the companies outside Ontario.

Mr. Munro said he knew there had been some layoffs and he hoped dislocation would be kept to a minimum.

Railway union leaders have expressed fears that Parliament will pass special legislation ending any strike action.

The selective strike action—which means the unions will hit chosen regions for low wages—is rather than strike nationally—was proposed by union leaders to avoid legislative action.

Questions in the Commons were particularly concerned with movement of wheat by rail, and Mr. Munro told opposition spokesmen he thought contracts for international sales of grain would be met.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp is of the view government was relying on assurances given by the unions that they would co-operate to move grain.

But Mr. Munro told Les Benjamin (NDP — Regina-Lake Centre) that he had not yet had "absolute assurances" from railroad companies that grain would be moved.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker pressed Mr. Munro on the Commons order in council action when Parliament might step in to force continuation of rail operations.

But the minister said he is optimistic the dispute-free parties will resolve the situation.

NEW YORK (CP) — Directors of Texasgulf Inc., met for several hours Thursday to consider a takeover bid for oil and mining firm from the Canada Development Corporation and then ended the meeting without making any public statement.

Texasgulf secretary David Crawford, acting as company spokesman, said after the meeting he could not say when a statement would be issued and added that no further board meetings were presently scheduled; though the board could be called at any time.

Secret Paper Opposes Limiting Energy Output

OTTAWA (CP) — A secret government document says that a gallon energy quota as well as limiting production to domestic needs would cause considerable levels of unemployment, decreased economic growth and large losses of foreign investment.

The paper, prepared by the energy department, also contests the widespread view that investment in manufacturing industries promises more job opportunities than investment into industries.

The document is a preliminary draft of the government's report on energy policies, which was tabled in the Commons June 28.

Both the unpublished working paper and the final report describe five choices for future resource policies, ranging from a self-sufficiency program to a maximum development program that could generate $11 billion to $46 billion in real output in the year 2000.

Both use the same figures, based on computer projections developed by the Economic Council of Canada.

But the unpublished document, obtained by The Canadian Press, offers significantly different conclusions.

With the self - sufficiency option, energy and "unemployment would be at unacceptable levels."

Loss of jobs would total 850,000 man-years from the employment predicted for present growth rates.

The projections show unemployment below the five-per-cent level in only two years, the first and last years of the decade at a 5.4-per-cent rate. Unemployment intervention would be necessary to prevent unacceptable unemployment.

The published report disputes the unpublished one.

"What is not indicated is that there may exist other and more desirable Canadian savings and that the anticipated decline in energy sector spending will make these alterna.ive development strategies more feasible."

Ehrlichman Says National Security Demands Plumbers' Work Stay Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman has told the Senate Watergate Committee the White House "plumbers" operated in an area so sensitive it must remain secret.

The former presidential aide invoked executive privilege for the first time in the hearings to avoid all questions on the matter. He said national security would be endangered if the censored contents of a White House memo were disclosed.

The subject was raised Thursday by Senator Howard Baker (Rep. Tenn.) who said investigators have been placed in an unbelievable position because they are unable to test or challenge the national security barriers President Nixon has raised in any of the complete disclosure.

Ehrlichman was scheduled for a fourth day of interrogation by senators and staff lawyers today.

Those lawyers, meanwhile, are researching the constitutional issues involved in the president's refusal to obey subpoenas ordering him to produce recordings of his conversations and documents written by his aides.

The committee voted unanimously to challenge the president's refusal in the courts but the method of that challenge has yet to be decided.

Meanwhile, Daniel Ellsberg, the central figure in the Pentagon papers episode, accused Ehrlichman of lying and said he believes the real goal of the White House plumbers was to involve prominent Democrats and perhaps bring them to trial.

Ehrlichman has called the leaking to newspapers of the Pentagon's secret history of U.S. involvement in Vietnam a gift of enormous historical proportions on classified documents.

He said President Nixon created the so-called plumbers unit to stop such leaks by finding out how they occurred.

Ehrlichman said there was "a respectable body of opinion" among some investigators that the matter extended considerably beyond Ellsberg.

At a news conference in Los Angeles, Ellsberg said Ehrlichman's testimony bent him to conclude the White House was aware of the indictments and trials of such top Democratic administration figures as former Attorney General Ramsey Clark and Mr. McNamara and Clark Clifford.

Charges of espionage, conspiracy and arrest were dropped against Ellsberg and co-defendant Anthony Russo but 12 after it was revealed in court that members of the White House plumbers unit had broken into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Baker suggested, and Ehrlichman agreed with him, that the plumbers were involved in a fourth area of inquiry that previously had not been disclosed.

In his statement of May 22, President Nixon said his conversations dealing with Watergate also dealt with discussions of other sensitive topics and disclosure of one would lead inevitably to disclosure of the others.

The Senate investigative unit include the Ellsberg break-in, investigation of leaks concerning the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with the Soviet Union and an inquiry into the publication of National Security Council discussions of the Indo-Pakistani war.

Baker noted that there is a blank space between the fourth and sixth paragraphs of a White House memorandum to Ehrlichman from members of the plumbers team.

Ehrlichman told Baker the missing paragraph deals with an extremely sensitive subject relating to another country." It had nothing to do with Watergate but the forerunner to the Pentagon papers situation," and "more mischief than good would be produced from the disclosure."

When Baker pressed the matter, Ehrlichman said he would be violating three or four laws if he were to answer. His lawyer, John Wilson, said the House memorandum had forbidden him to reply.

Ottawa Makes Proposals To Assist Western Farmers

CALGARY (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan and Justice Minister Otto Lang unveiled almost 20 proposals Thursday designed to bolster Western agriculture.

But Mr. Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, did not spell out an expected new federal policy on the controversial problem of feed grains.

He told western premiers at the weekend federal-provincial ag ministers conference that eh agrees there is a "crisis" in some of the problems of the present situation.

He said the present system is unstable because only a third of the grain it markets is marketed through the Canadian wheat board.

The rest was fed to animals on the farms where it was grown, traded with farmers for barley, or sold to feed mills within the same province.

Instability also resulted because wheat board obstacles to marketing prevented provincial boundaries "prevent the natural growth of livestock and grain production where it is best suited within the prairie region."

He said the federal government is using several guidelines to develop a long-term feed domestic feed grains policy, the first being that no region should be given "artificial assistance" that harms producers of feed grain or livestock elsewhere.

Other proposals included:

— A New Agricultural Development Fund started with $1 million in federal money, for research, production and market development.

— A federal aid in financing and operating a product development pilot facility for vegetable oils and proteins.

—Greater research facilities to improve feed quality, develop meat processing and help solve problems in the production and marketing of livestock.

—Discussions with the provinces on contributions to the cost of new hatching facilities for veterinarians.

—Action to improve the future of our Canadian fruits and vegetables industry, particularly through greater opportunities storage assistance would be offered to marketing boards and producer groups.

—The federal government believes in a prairie grain stabilization program."

"We have to believe that further stabilization measures for other commodities are needed."

Inviting the provincial to help develop Canada's position for discussions on agricultural tariffs.

—Expansion of research programs in supply of competitive protein, domestic marketing merchanisms and market opportunities.

—Expansion of market development activity.

—Creation of a federal-provincial committee to study the different officials involved in market expansion programs.

—More federal funds for research into and testing of agricultural machinery.

NDP Loses Bid to Block Financing Games by Coins

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrats, flying in the face of impossible odds, tried to shoot down the 1976 Olympic Games financing bill Thursday night but were out-gunned 114 to 21 in the Commons.

That was the vote on an amendment proposed by Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming), who wanted third reading on the bill postponed for six months so Canadians who have killed it under partisanmentary rules.

Then the NDP and a handful of other members opposed the bill to raise $30 million for the Montreal Games through the sale of commemorative coins and stamps.

The vote against the amendment—the bill at the second reading stage which it is expected to pass today, leaving Senate approval and royal assent the only barriers to making it law.

Conservative support in the Commons apparently split at the end of the proceedings as the party's amendments during committee study of the Olympics bill.

One sets a limit of $400 million on the face value of the coins and another limits the proceeds accruing to the Games from coin sales to $250 million.

Others provide for a report on sales every six months, seek to prevent kickbacks, and allow the finance minister to recall the coins if necessary. Also, if demanded by 10 MPs, a debate can be called to review the coin sales.

WHY WIVES CHEAT ON THEIR HUSBANDS

"One in four wives commits adultery at least once in her life." That's the estimate of psychiatrist, Dr. David Reuben, writing in the August issue of Reader's Digest. Organ Donor Cards Save Lives

Ann Woolf has to work fast. She gives the gift of sight.

As co-ordinator of The Eye Bank of Canada, Anne has a 24-hour per day She receives donors' eyes, packed on dry ice, inspects them in a lab, and ships them to the first doctor on her Ontario waiting list who has a sightless patient.

This can't take any longer than four hours.

Jim Sanders, public relations officer for The Eye Bank of Canada says an average of 550 to 70 eyes are donated to his centre each month.

"But it's surprising how many people still think they shouldn't donate their eyes if they have poor vision."

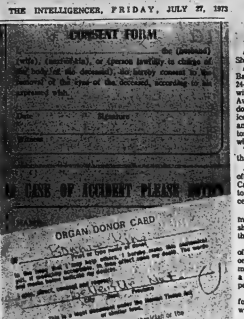
The cornea (or front coat of the eye) when transplanted or grafted onto another eye may be compared to replacing a pane of frosted glass with a perfectly clear one.

The Eye Bank of Canada formed in 1955 when two eyes were donated.

According to the Human Tissues Act, eyes may be legally removed from deceased up to eight hours after death.

The cornea transplant takes place within 48 hours.

After Ann Woolf checks the eyes, sent to her in Toronto, she immediately notifies a doctor who immediately notifies his patient of the transplant.



University of Toronto, Section of Ophthalmology and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind assist the Eye Bank of Canada, Toronto centre.

The university's research department in ophthalmology work with the eyes saving eye fluids and parts for operations and tests.

"It's all team effort," says Jim.

Anyone wishing an eye donor pledge card may write their closest Eye Bank of Canada office - 1929 Bayview Ave., Toronto 17, Ontario.

Donor Cards

Organ donor cards are sent upon request from Toe Kidney Foundation of Canada and The Eye Bank of Canada to anyone over the age of 18 and over in Canada. The cards when completed should be carried in your wallet at all times.

Kidneys-Gift of Life

Dr. George de Veber, Toronto Western Hospital, and member of the Medical Advisory Board, Kidney Foundation of Canada, Ontario says everyone should carry an organ donor card — if they are thinking of the future.

Kidney disease is the fourth major cause of death.

The donor card system according to Dr. deVeber began six years ago not only because of the urgent need of kidneys but for research and other organ transplants.

Every organ has been transplanted and more research is necessary.

This organ donor card allows each individual donor to state which organ they wish donated and whether for transplant or research.

Most Kidney Foundations of Canada have research centres in their local university teaching hospitals.

Foundations are found in Toronto, London, Hamilton, Kingston and Ottawa for the Ontario organization.

At present dialysis, an expensive process of filtering a person's blood through a machine to purify kidneys aids about 400 people annually in need of kidney transplants.

Transplants for that waiting list in 1972 were 75-100. These numbers Dr. deVeber gave were for 1972 in Ontario.

Since 1964 thousands of kidney transplants have taken place. But there are thousands of lives lost each year because there aren't enough donors of kidneys or other organs.

The Kidney Foundation of Canada says: "A donated organ, successfully transplanted, is literally the gift of life — your gift of life."

The age of majority — to most provinces — 18, is the first requisite needed to donate your kidney.

The card must be signed in the presence of a witness who signs his name. The card (a pocket wil) is then carried in your wallet or purse. Your doctor or family physician should be informed that you want to donate your kidneys at death.

If you want to change your mind about donating your kidneys simply rip up the card. Nothing else is necessary.

For transplanting organs must ordinarily be removed within an hour after death. According to the Human Tissue Act (the 'model law' that governs such matters in the provinces), the physician in attendance has the responsibility for determining that life has ceased and that the donor's wishes may now be carried out. The Act specifies, however, that the physician attending the dying person should not participate either in the removal process or in transplantation. That's the job of the hospital and the transplant team.

The nearest kidney foundation where persons may receive organ donor cards is Kidney Foundation of Canada (Ontario Branch), 1630 Yonge Street, Sie. 2208, Toronto, Ontario M4T 1Y5.

Cardin Shows Again

PARIS (AP) — Pierre Cardin returned to the haute couture fold today with his first showing in two years.

As usual, it was a long show. Cardin is known not only for the diversity of his ideas but also for their number.

This year for fall and winter he likes horsehlanket, plaids, tweeds, suede and fur. Slink is for shoulder bags and huge pockets and collars, not for coats.

Long circular plaid capes sometimes come with colored fox collars. They go over printed pants and a long smock, for instance. Sleeveless jackets in al shades of suede are belted over tweed or checked dresses and suits with straightish skirts at the knee.

This winter's bodystocking look is in brown, green and jet-line jacquard jersey. It also goes on the new Cardin beanbag cap, which leaves the hair to the imagination.

In contrast, enormous fox toques go with his group of skinny sweaters and full skirts in yellow or orange voile. The mufflers trail aqua fox pompons.

There is also an interesting group of coats in solid wools, fushia tweed or grey flannel. They are suffleced in big backs over the yoke and stick out from there down. One has an Elizabethan ruff.

For evening, Cardin shows an unusual wig that curls up all around, slightly like the straw hats that donkeys wear. They go with everything from his draped and tucked crepe gestic sheaths to his long crepe and chiffon gowns.

As everyone knows, Cardin is where to buy a "drop-dead" evening dress. His new ones are spectacular and grow out of themselves in unexpected places.

Good Bets For Travel

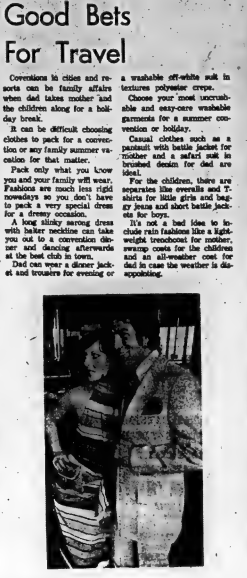
It can be difficult choosing clothes to pack for a convention or any family summer vacation for that matter.

Pack only what you know you and your family will wear. Fashions are much less rigid nowadays so you don't have to pack a very special dress for a dressy occasion.

A long slinky sarong dress with halter neckline can take you out to a convention dinner and dancing afterwards at the best club in town.

Dad can wear a dinner jacket and trousers for evening or a washable off-white suit in textures polyester crepe.

Choose your most uncrushable and easy-care washable garments for a summer convention or holiday.



Casual clothes such as a pantsuit with battle jacket for mother and a safari suit in brushed denim for dad are ideal.

For the children, there are separates like overalls and T-shirts for little girls and baggy jeans and short battle jackets for boys.

It's not a bad idea to include rain fashions like a lightweight trenchcoat for mother, swamp coats for the children and an all-weather coat for dad in case the weather is disappointing.

RAIN FASHIONS are handy to pack for travelling or for any family summer holiday. Mother is prepared for rain in her white nylon trenchcoat and the children in blue swamp coats. Dad sports a safari suit in brushed cotton denim.

EVENING LOOK for her is a strong halter dress in hot pink, yellow, orange and white striped jersey. He wears a washable suit in polyester crepe.

LITTLE SISTER wears red cotton print overalls with fruit pattern and white T-shirt for sightseeing while brother is in navy and white checked bags and battle-jacket. Dad wears safari suit and mother, sand pants and battle jacket.

Everyone Should Take Time — For Some Special Delight

By DORIS CLARK

It is beyond a doubt that everyone should have time for some special delight, if only five minutes each day to seek out a lovely flower or cloud or a star, or learn a verse or brighten another's dull task.

What is the use of such terrible diligence as many tire themselves out with, if they always postpone their exchange of smiles with Beauty and Joy to cling to irksome duties and relations — from "The Faith of Helen Keller".

Dear Doris: My uncle, who lives with us takes to play with little girls. I am grown up now but I can remember how curious he always seemed about me, especially when I had a very few clothes on, like getting ready for bed or something. He never touched me except to kiss me; all he did was watch.

But now I notice that if he goes visiting with us and there are little girls in the house or tries to get them off alone and maul them. Because of his behavior I have stopped having any company who bring children along with them.

Does he act this way because he really never grew up or because he has never had children of his own? If I try to even kind him a little about it he immediately flies into a rage. — Getting On My Nerves.

Dear Getting: Adult men who are fascinated by little girls are usually very immature themselves. Your uncle can only be helped if at this stage of his life he can recognize that he is the one with the problem.

Probably others have noticed this. It is likely that he will not actually molest any child, but his "mauling" as you call it is in itself a serious criminal offence.

Ask for your doctor's assistance. Make sure that someone is always around when there is a young girl visiting. It doesn't have to be you all the time.

If you can't talk to your uncle, write to him that you are aware of this weakness of his and that you will no longer cover up for him, in spite of the fact that you love him. Let him know that his behavior cannot be considered normal and that you want to help him stop or at least control it.

Confidential to Unnerved Son: With your dad and mother hurling threats at each other and your dad's drinking problem getting worse, it is surely time for action. Your father's threats of non-support can be legally challenged - and he probably knows this.

Your mother may be tired and discouraged, but the support of a good legal counsellor and a social worker would be the beginning of better things. Act now, by getting to your own local family counselling service.

(Every day Doris hears from readers who report success after taking her advice on a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

'They Never Dreamed They Were History'

EDMONTON (CP) — "They never dreamed they were making history."

The statement sums up the frustrations of Julie, 25, and Cathy, 18, two Edmonton women searching for historical material to complete an Opportunities For Youth (OFY) project—a booklet on Prairie suffrage.

In trying to trace the role women played in political movements on the Prairies and how they won the right to vote, Cathy and Julie often found that their subjects apparently thought nobody cared about what they were doing.

Margaret Lewis, Alberta's first woman factory inspector in 1917, was known for her stirring speeches—but Julie and Cathy found she only spoke "off the cuff."

They did manage to find documents belonging to Emily Murphy, Alberta's first woman magistrate. They were in the province's public archives, gathering dust in a box on the floor.

Cathy and Julie, who don't want their last names used because the project is a collective effort, wrote several newspaper articles last winter on prairie suffrage.

They obtained an OFY grant this summer so they could search for additional information in books, letters, speeches, tapes and interviews.

"Women have been misrepresented," Cathy said. "We want to get a better picture. Women don't realize how few rights they had. They were considered nonentities and didn't even think they were equals.

"It is widely believed that it was a nice smooth road for women on the Prairies. History seems to be full of successes but we want to know how women got together originally, what they were afraid of at the time, and the difficulties they encountered from men and political parties."

The $2,700 OFY grant pays for a $30-a-week salary, travelling expenses to small towns to scout for material and $200 towards publishing costs.

Cathy and Julie say the booklet will be distributed at high schools.

Women have been put down in Canadian history, especially by male teachers in high school, Julie said. "They've been left out. We want to give the students something concrete."

Many women who have not been left out of history books are made to look either like "militant freaks" or as "nice" ladies pampering the men in power.

"I always had an image of a suffragette as an old battleaxe," Cathy said, pulling out a book with an early 1900 cartoon showing five women with beaked noses and scowling mouths. The caption says: "Suffragettes who have never been kissed."

That is a myth they intend to dispel. Women like Nellie McClung, who helped organize the Winnipeg Political Equality League in 1912, or Miss Parlby, United Farmers of Alberta minister in 1921, were politically astute, said Cathy. They were great speakers, and had great popularity. "If they were around today they'd be a thorn in our side."

The booklet will also go to the Archives and the Women's Educational Press.

Cathy and Julie said their work is a reflection of the women's movement in which they are deeply involved.

"Every woman who identifies with the women's movement has a curiosity about suffrage. When you know your grandmother was chaining herself to the Parliament Buildings, it makes you feel less militant."

The finished work will not only bring personal satisfaction. They say it will make Prairie women feel good to know their own history, to know the "greats" among their own sex.

The biggest challenge is to keep in mind that the facts they find are history.

"You can't just transpose your 1973 consciousness to women at the turn of the century. It's hard to resist finding women who fit into our own time."

Ann Landers

'Unclaimed Jewel' Asks Why

Dear Ann Landers: What does a man really want in a woman? What do they go for? You're the expert. Please tell me.

I grew up thinking every man wants to feel he is in command—that the woman who builds him up and makes him look good would surely be his choice. I worked overtime being ultra-feminine so he would feel super-masculine. But I figured it wrong. Dead wrong.

This morning the cruelest, loudest-mouthed broad in the office showed up with a diamond the size of a golf ball. "Edward and I are going to be married in September," she bellowed. (Even her voice is like a drill sergeant's.) She's loud, bossy, domineering, never lets a guy finish a sentence and butts in on everybody. Her personality is thoroughly obnoxious. Yet she snagged a man—and he's rich, too—while five girls in this office who have it over her like a tent can't get a nibble. I am really depressed. And so are several other "unclaimed jewels" as you call them. How about an explanation?—Green Around The Gills

Dear Green: Never mind the ring. Write to me when you see the guy.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife keeps telling me she hates housework. I asked her how she knows. She hasn't done any for years.

We had an argument about it again last night and she made some very interesting statements. First she claims any dumbbell can clean house. She would rather do something creative. Next she says housework is degrading because most men are slobs and they expect their wives to clean up after them. Then she says that you, Ann Landers, have no right to give advice on this subject because you have household help and are therefore automatically disqualified. How about it? Do you have the courage to answer this letter in the paper? We're see-Battle Fatigue In Elk Grove.

Dear Elk: Your wife is right. I do have help, but I did plenty of housework during the first 12 years of my marriage—and I mean washing, ironing, floor scrubbing, furniture-polishing and cooking.

And you can also tell her that my house looked pretty good, my husband's shirts had all the buttons, and nobody ever died from my cooking.

For the past 18 years I have produced 365 columns a year and lectured in hundreds of cities. If your wife is putting half as much energy into a career she should be excused from housework. If not, tell her to quit beefing and clean up her house.

Dear Ann Landers: You owe your readers an apology for saying, "All men are brothers in the family of God. This would make Al Capone a brother to Pope John. Well, I don't want Al Capone for a brother and I don't think you ought to give him to Pope John.

Some writers don't care what they say so long as they get paid for it.—Fed Up With Yes

Dear Fed: The accurate wording was, "We are all brothers in the family of man." However, if you believe that God is the Father of all mankind you must then believe that all men are brothers. Even Al Capone and Pope John.

Dear Ann Landers: If a woman is walking with a man and his hairpiece flies off in a high wind, should she help him chase it? This is no joke.—Chicago

Dear Chicago: Certainly. By that time they both know the score, so why be coy about it?

Alternatives For Family of Retarded

EDMONTON (CP) — Parents of children in the Edmonton area who have severe mental and physical handicaps have only two choices with regard to their care.

They can place the child in an institution like the Alberta School Hospital in Red Deer or keep him home without the chance for a break or holiday for the rest of the family.

The Association for the Dependent Handicapped has been working to provide parents with another choice.

It operates an activity centre in Edmonton and its main objective is to establish a community residence where children can live full-time or part-time according to the parents' needs.

The 90-member group was formed in 1971 by parents who were unwilling to send their children to Red Deer, but whose children have been rejected by agencies in Edmonton.

Agencies for the retarded will generally not accept children with severe physical handicaps, while centres for the physically handicapped usually accommodate retarded children.

"The physical demands alone are tremendous. The child must be lifted in and out of a wheelchair," carried up stairs and lifted into bathtubs.

"Then there is the constant strain of communicating with your child because these children can't talk. A mother must be tuned in and caring for, the child becomes a 24-hour job without relief.

"Parents will extent themselves beyond reason, but eventually the endurance and willpower wear thin."

The staff, supplemented by volunteers, work with the children on a one-to-one basis in group activities and skill development. Musical therapy is carried out under the supervision of a therapist from Glenrose Hospital.

Through the activities we hope to give the children a sense of community," says centre supervisor May Diver. "They never had the feeling of belonging to a group before so they've always been segregated from other children."

It can handle only 13 children on a regular basis and 30 during the summer. A grant of $15,800 from the provincial department of health and social development only covers three-quarters of the operating costs.

Good Violin Is Like A Beautiful Woman

VICTORIA (CP) — Violin-maker Sigvald Hoibakke says a violin is like a beautiful woman.

"The sound must be soft and silky, like a woman's voice. The shape, if you add a head and legs, is like a woman's body. The music imitates a soprano's singing. There is no instrument more perfect or more beautiful."

Mr. Hoibakke's love of violins extends back to his Norwegian childhood, when as a boy of 13 he made his first violin.

He estimates he has made about 100 in his lifetime, each a product of love and art.

"He says factories make violins by the thousands but they are "just noisebox-es."

But his are "not just noisebox-es. Each takes an average of two to three years to complete, chiselled and sanded by hand until the tone, shape and glazing are perfect.

"The varnish I use takes months to dry. If I used a fast-drying varnish it would become hard and make a raspy sound. The raw wood used to make a violin is stored at least 10 years in free, open air and never in a heated room. If not enough time has been taken to season the wood, the instrument will crack."

The wood is scraped until the tonal qualities of top and bottom are perfect, a skill requiring a musical ear that cannot be duplicated by machine.

"The bottom of the violin must be higher in pitch than the top," he says. "The difference in pitch between the top and the bottom goes from a half tone to 1½ tones on different violins. The best violins are approximately one tone in difference.

"A good handmade violin sells for up to $2,500, and uses $100 worth of materials. For two years work, perhaps that isn't very much profit."

Antonius Stradivarius was the greatest violin-maker of them all.

"He made 1,200 to 1,500 violins in his lifetime. His violins were the most beautiful of them all; his workmanship is unsurpassed.

"The highest price paid for one of his violins, as far as I know, has been over $30,000," says Mr. Hoibakke. "I suppose today one cannot get a genuine Stradivarius for less than $30,000 to $40,000 because the antique value is so great.

"There are 500 absolutely genuine Strads remaining in the world and another 300 that some experts say are real and other experts say are not. There are millions of forgeries, with fake Stradivarius labels inside."

It's clearly chow time for this quintet of barn swallows whose nest is the centre of attention at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Fardell in Longview Wash. The nest is built of mud right outside a door to the Fardell home and so far, the birds have not shown any fear of the nearby human traffic. (AP Photo)

Life Style Threatens Kookaburra

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuter) — Australia's laughing kookaburras are threatened by a combination of their curious sex life, communal family background—and man.

Because of the bird's extraordinary home life and breeding pattern, it is vulnerable to the invasion of agriculture and the spraying of DDT that follows in its wake, says American biologist Veronica Parry.

Specimens taken in the New South Wales cotton growing district of Naomi Valley show that the content of DDT is alarmingly high in the blood-stream of kookaburras.

There is also concern for kookaburras in Victoria's tobacco-growing districts, but the situation there is less serious.

Miss Parry warned that unless prompt and sensible action is taken, the combined impact of DDT and the destruction of the kookaburra's natural habitat by the inroads of agriculture may eliminate this unique bird from some areas within 10 years.

Kookaburras have a life-span which averages 12 to 15 years and is sometimes as long as 25 years.

Because of this long life-expectancy they have evolved a low rate of reproduction which maintains an even level of population.

They achieve this first by a reduction in the number of eggs laid. To ensure the survival of these few, the adults spend much time in incubation and care.

Up to eight adults—but more usually three or four—live together in one home territory. But only one pair of this family will breed.

The other "auxiliary" family members help the breeding pair to incubate the eggs, feed and tend the young and ward off predators.

From observations during a two-year study of individually color-tagged kookaburras it was noted that when the breeding male of one territory died, an auxiliary moved in and mated with the resident female breeder.

No City Hospital Cutbacks

Budget estimates for Belleville General Hospital approved by the Ministry of Health will not necessitate any cutback in patient services, s a y hospital officials.

The total operating budget allowed by the ministry f o r the year now has been set at 19.5 million, hospital executive director Philip Rickard s a i d Thursday.

This compared with $9,015-000 in 1972.

The maximum allowed in- hospital for in-patient operating costs amount to $7,377,-300. The hospital originally had asked for $7,250,600.

The difference is so marginal, indicated Mr. R i c k a r d, there will be "no need for a reduction in services."

Total cost allowed for out-patient services is $808,500 - up five per cent f r o m last year.

CN Strike Duration Uncertain

It is not known when picketing by non-operating railway workers in Belleville will cease and members will return to work.

This is what Jack Thomas, local chairman of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, said this morning.

The 400 non-operating railway workers began the first of a series of what was to have been 48-hour rotating strikes. Now the possibility exists that the strike may be extended past the 6 a.m. deadline set for members to return to work tomorrow.

The company sent a notice to the union membership yesterday advising them to return to work only when directed to do so by their supervisors.

Mr. Thomas, chairman of one of five unions striking for wage increases, job security, shift differential and sick leave said the heads of various unions will be assessing the situation of this latest development some time today.

Robin and His Merry Maids

Robin White gathers seven budding artists around for an informal chat about painting. Along with fellow artist Lynn Stevens, Robin is giving art instruction to anonye interested until Sunday at Harmony Public School in Thurlow Township. Besides paint supplies, equipment is also provided — at no extra expense to participants — for sculpture, batik, printing, knotting, weaving and other crafts.

Art Treks Across Province And It's Free to Anyone

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

The nicest thing about the Ontario government's Art Trek isn't the pots of paint. Or the bags of clay. Or the unstructured workshop. Or even the two knowledgeable instructors.

What really m a k e s it attractive is the fact that it is for free.

What's more, anyone interested in art is invited to come out to Harmony Public School, at the corner of Highway 37 and Thurlow Township's Fifth Concession, while the five-day session is in operation.

The ministry of community and social services, which, along with the Ontario Society of Artists, sponsors Art Trek, calls the workshops "a group of travelling artists encouraging people to discover a creative potential in themselves that they may not have been aware of."

This is achieved by hiring artists and art students - at a total cost of $80,000 - to travel across Ontario during the summer in vans that contain materials for painting, printing, sculpture, b a t i k, knotting, off-loom weaving and other crafts.

Now in its third year, Art Trek opened a workshop at Harmony Wednesday and will continue afternoons and evenings until Sunday.

"While we're not excluding anyone," says instructor Robin Scott, "the course is aimed at people between the ages of 16 and 25."

Robin is a former sculpture student at York University who has been painting for seven years. He and Lynn Stevens, a painter and printer from the University of Windsor, have spent the past month in a variety of communities encouraging people to see art as part of their everyday lives.

Their last stop was Port Hope where 150 persons turned out. This week, more than 30 came to the Thurlow school, many from Belleville and other communities.

Mohawk Jamboree For Council House

DESERONTO — Mohawks of the Tyendinaga Reserve are holding a big jamboree — covering everything from canoeing to cake sales — near here Saturday.

Proceeds from the program will go to the reserve's council house building fund.

The jamboree runs through from 11 a.m. to midnight at the Mohawk Recreation Park on the eastern outskirts of this town.

Canoe racing on the nearby Bay of Quinte is scheduled to start the day's events. Indian dances, barbecues, track and field events and games are among program highlights.

The event is one of a series the Mohawks have been organizing to finance the council house project — still in need of finishing touches. It replaces a building that burned two years ago.

Weaving New Talents

Framed by this weaving loom, Adam Poste, five, and Anna Shannik, 10, both of RR 1, Corbyville, dip their paint brushes at the Ontario government's Art Trek, a travelling workshop now under way at Harmony Public School. Adam and Anna were among 30 residents of Thurlow Township and other communities nurturing hidden talents or brushing up on old techniques this week. The five-day course concludes Sunday.

Teacher Group Reviews All Courses of Study

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

How much arithmetic should a child learn in grade 3, and what kind?

At what level should a grade 5 child be able to spell?

How much formal history should be have absorbed by the time he has finished school?

These are some of the questions — among several thousand others — that 63 teachers Hastings county teachers are grooving with, this summer.

What is an optimum musical education in public schools, and what should art instruction include?

How do you measure a child's level of accomplishment?

Put together, the q u i z amounts to a complete outline of what is to be taught in grade from kindergarten to grade 13, the best way to do it, and the best teaching aids and student activities to use.

A complete exercise — but 100 school boards in Ontario are now grappling with it.

It's called curriculum development and it is designed to respond to many of the criticisms levelled against education in recent years.

When the 63 teachers here have finished writing this curriculum outlines at the end of July, each teacher in each grade will know exactly how much territory he should cover in each subject in a year. And if he is inexperienced, he will have a handbook to tell him exactly how to go about it.

In the distant past, the department of education defined the learning boundaries for each grade. But it has failed to revise programs to meet current demands and has tortured the task over to even 60 of Ontario's 100 boards of education. The professional judgement of teachers has been trusted for the past few years and they were left to control the content of studies. But the theory didn't work out in practice — it was difficult for the grade 4 teacher to build on the grade 3 teacher's instruction if one lived in Bancroft and the other in Belleville and neither knew what the other was up to.

Add to this the fact that education has changed much in the past 20 to 40 years. Can it did in the last 400 and the complexity of the problem becomes obvious.

By September, most of the muddle will be cleared away. The 63 t e a c h e r s in the county will have mapped out a course in each subject in each grade. They will have drawn upon the findings of similar curriculum development committees in 99 other parts of Ontario to come up with a s o m e standardization across the province.

Guidelines are being prepared in nine a r e a s. The teachers now working at Centennial Secondary S c h o o l have drawn upon the research done last year by larger committees comprised of l a n g u a g e specialists and one teacher - representative from each associated school group in the county.

They will write curriculum guidelines in science, mathematics, language arts (English, spelling, reading and writing from kindergarten to grade 8, English from grade 7 to 10, music, art and drama, history, geography, French and measurement and evaluation.

One thing the curriculum development committees will eliminate is repetition — making weed collections e v e r y year for three years, memorizing Indian Summer from grade 7 through g r a d e 10, studying the Norman invasion of Britain four years in a row in high school and never finding out what happened at the same time in China and North America.

If your child didn't measure up on the last standardized spelling test, don't despair or blame the current level of teaching. The measurement and evaluation committee has discovered that the best standardized test was drawn up in the 1920s and features many words now dropped from the common vocabulary.

These and similar discoveries will go out in printed form to t e a c h e r s in September. With them will be examples, prepared by master teachers, of how to teach each unit of knowledge, and what slides, films, text - books, library books, games, puzzles, and excursions and activities will best reinforce (drill in) the learning.

Trustees will get a special report on the curriculum committees' results in December. For the rest of the year classroom teachers from kindergarten to grade 13 will be putting the results to practical application in their c l a s s-rooms. All the bugs will be worked o u t by September 1974 when the best program of learning for Hastings county youngsters will be put into effect—and be subject to constant revision. Continual updating is the concept behind county-by-county curriculum planning.

LIP Funds Received

MADOC — James Wilson, official sponsor of the Local Initiatives Project at Madoc Medical Centre received a cheque this week amounting to $7,500 from the federal government of Canada which is a partial payment of the LIP grant arranged with the government.

This cheque brings to date an amount in excess of $14,-000 which has been received and turned over to the Madoc medical centre director for re-imbursement of expenditures incurred.

Charting A Course

Teachers from throughout Hastings county have spent the month of July preparing curriculum guidelines for use in schools from kindergarten through grade 13. Three of those working on the geography course of study chart units of instruction at Centennial Secondary School. They are Gary Thomas (at desk), George Empson and Al McNeil.

Crusher on Tour To Flatten Wrecks

STIRLING — Joe McKenna, who is in the car-crushing business, agrees with provincial government legislation aimed at clearing the countryside of abandoned automobiles.

But he thinks the government should maybe be more involved — aside from passing penalizing legislation.

One suggestion: Official dumping stations where owners could haul wrecked or obsolete vehicles. From such points the cars would be dispatched to recycling centres.

In the United States a number of state governments already have shown how it works, says Joe.

"New Jersey pays $3 to have a car crushed," he says.

Mobile car crushers — similar to the one he operates as partner in an Oshawa company — are one answer, he suggests.

Such units can daily press scores of cars to easily-transportable bales of metal.

Thursday, residents of this village had an opportunity to see just such a device in action. The McKenna machine was being used to clear the wrecked-car lot of Bert Woodbeck.

The big, mobile press—hauled to the site by trailer — is only one of six in Canada, says its operator. With it, he covers a territory from Windsor to Montreal and north to Timmins.

The press crushes a vehicle down to 30 inches along its length. The lengths are stacked in bales and hauled away by tractor-trailer to recycling plants in Toronto and Hamilton.

The method has several advantages over more conventional crushing methods by bulldozing or weighted ball, claims Joe. Haulage capacity is more than doubled — he figures he can press up to 100 cars a day.

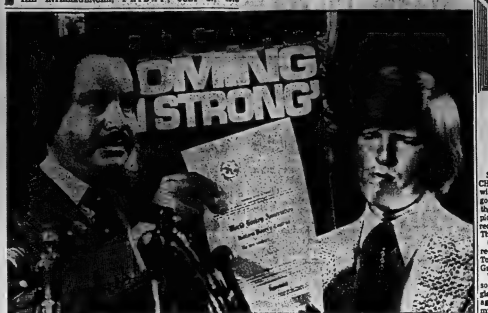
It's also tidier — minus the flying debris caused by other methods, and left scattered around car yards, he says.

"In its way it's a form of pollution control."

New Ontario legislation now makes disposal measures imperative for persons with two or more derelict vehicles on their property. The regulation, under the Environmental Protection Act, carries a penalty maximum of $5,000.

Leaker Moved

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton firemen Thursday night removed a leaking refrigerator from a home at 126 Macmillan Ave.



Mrs. Louis Newton was permitted to return to the residence after firemen used a smoke ejector to remove the toxic fumes of the refrigerant coolant from the home.

Cleanly Scrapped

Joe McKenna explains operation of mobile car crusher to Stirling wrecked-car lot operator Bert Woodbeck. Machine can press car down to 30 inches and is claimed cleanest method of processing abandoned vehicles for haulage to recycling centres.

Rogers Shows What He Can Do With One-Hitter Over Phillies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It hasn't taken long for Steve Rogers, a Missourian from the show-me state, to show the National League what he can do.

"I've done everything I'm capable of doing in these last two games," Montreal's 23-year-old right-hander said Thursday night after firing a one-hitter, Jose Pagan's infield single down the third base line in the fifth inning, in pitching the Expos to a 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in the opener of a doubleheader.

Called up from the minors July 16, Rogers made his debut two days later and pitched eight innings against Houston Astros, allowing two runs on four hits.

Although he came within a hair of becoming one of the few rookies ever to pitch a no-hitter, Rogers said it never crossed his mind.

"I'm not disappointed," said the six-foot-two, 177-pounder, "because the hit came too early in the game to be thinking of a no-hitter.

"I just wanted to keep runners off the bases. I felt shaky at first, but my sinker made them hit a lot of ground balls. Pagan hit a good sinker. He just hit it softly in the right direction."

Steve Renko and Mike Marshall checked the Phillies 5-1 on six hits in the nightcap and Hal Breeden hit a home run.

An adopted Missourian, Bob Gibson of St. Louis, also showed 'em. The veteran pitcher drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a single while pitching the Cardinals to a 13-1 rout of New York Mets in their opener. St. Louis also took the nightcap 2-1.

In other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers shaded Houston 3-1, Chicago Cubs outlasted Pittsburgh 10-9 in the completion of an April 21 suspended game but the Pirates took the regularly scheduled contest 3-2, Cincinnati Reds downed Atlanta Braves 5-3 but lost the nightcap 8-4 and San Francisco Giants won two from San Diego Padres, 10-2 and 6-5 in 10 innings.

Rogers may have been deprived of a no-hitter because of third baseman Bob Bailey was too smart.

WHA Will Expand

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The World Hockey Association plans to add teams in Denver and Phoenix and possibly Indianapolis by the 1974-75 season, league president Gary Davidson said Thursday.

Herzog Elated with Texas Sweep

Texas Manager Whitey Herzog hates to get enthusiastic about his club's performance in American League vicotries because something always occurs to deflate his spirit.

But after the last-place Rangers swept a doubleheader, 7-1 and 8-0, from California Angels and their star pitchers Thursday night, Herzog would have needed a massive dose of tranquilizers to subdue his enthusiasm.

"I hate to get too enthusiastic about this team because everytime I do something bad happens," Herzog said.

"They ought to declare a pob lic holiday," added Ranger general manager Joe Burke.

And, if Texas needed a reason for a celebration they could choose from the following highlights:

—Jim Bibby threw a no-hitter as the Angels in the first game and a five-run seventh inning chased California's Nolan Ryan from the mound.

—Rookie David Clyde pitched seven shutout innings in the second game with support from Jeff Burroughs' first grand slam—the first in the two-year history of the Rangers—in the third inning of Bill Singer.

—It was the first doubleheader sweep of the season for Rangers. The sweep also gave Texas five triumphs in a row, swept Oakland 4's 3-1 and 7-1 in single games, New York Brewers 10-1 in 12 innings and Chicago White Sox 7-3 and Red Sox 6-5.

In today's action, California visits Texas, Kansas City entertains Chicago, Oakland is at Minnesota, Boston in Detroit, Cleveland at Baltimore, and New York at Milwaukee.

Triples by Vic Harris and Larry Bittner started the blitz that sent Ryan, only the fifth major league hurler in history to post two no-hitters in one season, to the locker room.

George Mitterwald hit two homers in the nightcap, his final blast the game-winner in the 10th inning, and Dick Woodson fired a five-hitter in the opener of Minnesota's sweep of Oakland.

Carl Taylor's run-propditching single combined with Paul Splittorff's three-hit pitching for the Royals' victory in the second game and designated hitter Ken Henderson's three-run homer helped the Sox take the opener.

Thurman Munson's single in the 12th inning scored Bobby Murcer from second and gave the Yankees their victory.

St. Catharines Club Leads Henley by 10

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharines Rowing Club entered the second day of the 81st annual Royal Canadian Henley Regatta today with a 10-point lead on their closest rivals, Detroit Boat Club.

But their only victory Thursday wasn't easy for the club which has won the Maple Leaf Trophy the last 12 years.

St. Catharines won the junior eox four, one of the four finals on opening day of the four-day Canadian rowing championships, but the crew had to battle a strong challenge by Newport Beach, Calif.

After leading the seven-boat field by open water after 1,500 metres, the St. Catharines oarsmen had to sprint in the closing stages to win by a deck in 6:24.8, with Ottawa in open water in third. Toronto Argonauts, Hamilton Leander, Detroit and New York Athletic Club trailed.

Besides winning the junior eox four, St. Catharines added a pair of thfrds for a total of 34 points on the day.

Chomedey Rowing Club of Montreal scored 25 points, all of them coming from Rejean Beauregard's triumph in the 135-pound single, one of the other finals Thursday.

Ottawa held fourth place with 12 points and Leander had 11.

The Argonauts, Wyandotte, Mich. Boat Club and Newport Beach were next, each with 10 points, while the Minneapolis rowing Club and Club Antares of Mexico City tied for last with six points each.

Chomedey was second to Detroit at 7:12.6 in the junior eox pair and St. Catharines finished third.

Bearegard had to cover the 2,000 metres in the singles event through a blinding rainstorm that plagued the opening day's program. The 20-year-old nipped Hugo Enriquez of Mexico City by a deck in the time of 7:12. Jim Dwyer of St. Catharines was open water.back in third place.

U.S. WIN

The first heat of a special lightweight eight rowing competition on the Henley course was won by a United States crew from Cambridge, Mass.

The American boat finished ahead of Canada, represented by St. Catharines, and Mexico in the time of five minutes 27.2 seconds.

Canada faces Mexico in a repechage today and the winner goes against the U.S. crew again on Saturday. The winner of the series then earn a trip to Moscow for lightweight eight exhibition competition at the European rowing championships in Moscow, July 30 to Sept. 2.

The 150-pound, eight-oared competition at St. Catharines is not part of the regular regatta competition.

Rain all but obscured some of the boats during Thursday's four finals, but the weather cleared late in the afternoon. The majority of the entries in the 15 heats designed to cut the field for today's finals, rode in and out of intermittent showers.

The 47-race program will get underway this morning and run every 10 minutes until eightfull.

Irwin Leads Canadian Open With Record Setting Round

STE. JULIE DE VER, Quebec, Que. (CP) — Hale Irwin led by two strokes today going into the second round of the Canadian Open golf championship after shooting a course record of seven-under-par 65 Thursday.

Grouped at 67, the old course record, were Forrest Fezler, Tom Weiskopf and Egbert Green.

While Irwin was troubled by some early rain because of the glasses he wears, he still managed to fire "the best round of my career" as he travelled the front nine of the 6,905 - yard Richelieu Valley course in 33, counting four birdies after getting the first hole. He was one stroke better on the back nine.

Fezler, meanwhile, was 33-34, counting four birdies and a bogey on the front, and then carded two birdies on the final nine holes.

Weiskopf fired 33 on the front nine and finished with a pair of birdies on the back nine, while Green shot a 34 on the front and and covered his final nine in 33.

Of the top four golfers, Weiskopf was the only one without a bogey throughout his round. Irwin could easily have had a 63, but caught a bunker on the 520 yard, par-four first hole for a bogey and then missed a 40-foot birdie putt on the 18th, leaving the ball two inches short of the hole.

Lee Trevino, winner of the Open the last time it was held here two years ago, was grouped with Lenny Thompson and Bob Lunn of the U.S., and Bobby Cole of South Africa with four-under-par 66.

Trevino was forced to seek medical aid for pain "just under the shoulder blade" midway through his round. He said he had not been hampered by the ailment.

Trevino took a disastrous double bogey on the par-four 16th.

"My drive was in the rough then I was in a bunker," Trevino said. "I blasted out but over the grass. I pitched to three feet and two putted.

There was a lot of sand behind the ball in the bunker and I caught too much of the ball and not enough of the sand."

Delvecchio to Houston Aeros

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings center Alex Delvecchio, following the lead of former star Gordie Howe, probably will sign a contract with the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros next week, a Detroit sportscaster said Thursday.

"Houston general manager Jim Smith told me he and Delvecchio were talking contract," said sportscaster Vince Doyle of WWJ.

The meetings, which apparently started Wednesday, probably will go on several more days before something happens, Doyle quoted Smith as saying.

"I asked him if he meant the signing of a contract, and he said yes," Doyle said.

Delvecchio, 41, has been with the Red Wings since 1950 and ranks high in National Hockey League record books in several categories including most total points scored, most assists and most games appeared in. He also received the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy for the 1956-58, 1965-6 and 1968-9 seasons.

The Wings are trying to keep Delvecchio's services, but he's known to disagree with the way Coach Ted Garvin and General Manager Ned Harkness are handling the team.

But the Wings are trying to deal with him on a year-to-year basis with a salary offer of $125,000 next year, while the Aeros are offering a high salary, long-term contract, Doyle said.

Whitley's Holds Tony's to Tie

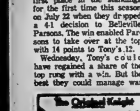
COBOURG (Special) — After Whitley's Travelers of Trenton found the playing field here Wednesday, they proceeded to play the role of stoller in their Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match with Cobourg Tony's.

The Cobourg club fell from first place in the standings for the first time this season on July 22 when they dropped a 6-1 decision to Belleville Parsons. The win enabled Parsons to take over all the top with 14 points to Tony's 12.

Wednesday, Tony's could have regained a share of the top rung with a win. But the best they could manage was a come-from behind 2-2 draw with Whitley's.

The Whitley's—Tony's kick-off was delayed nine minutes when the visiting squad encountered problems locating the Cobourg pitch. But five minutes into the match it was evident Trenton knew where they were.

Whitley's goalkeeper Terry Hore kicked the ball from his goal area to the left side near centre field. Then Whitley's was there to head the ball along to Henry Sonnervald where high shot to the left side of the goal found the mark. Fifteen minutes later, the visitors made it 2-0. Len Taft crossed the ball from a corner kick. The ball landed on the head of Bob Mayhew, who had moved into the goal area from his left half position. Mayhew's powerful header the goal might well have cost Tony's the league championship.



Because of other commitments, Mayhew has missed the team's games for the past month. He chose an appropriate time to return to action.

Responding to a pep talk from Coach Tony Verdilli, Tony's took over in the second half. Two minutes after the kickoff, Dave Miller put the home team on the scoreboard after accepting a pass from John Van Balen.

Travelers appeared able to hang on as Hore turned back scoring tries by Doberaco Sisca, Miller and Van Balen. But with five minutes to play, Van Balen's persistence paid off.

Van Balen shot the ball from a free kick after Travelers' were unable to clear and his shot eluded a diving Terry Hore.

Commenting on the outcome, Travellers' playing coach Shannon saw room for optimism concerning upcoming Cup games but he observed, "Tony's must play 90 minutes of soccer instead of 45".

Too High for Me

Laura Clarke makes an all out effort to get the ball up to the hoop but in it is in since the 10 feet up to the rim proved too much to combat. Laura and friend Fabia Jafri enjoyed the sports facilities offered at the Centennial Secondary School gym which is open to the public every afternoon.

OASA Playoffs Are Coming Up

The Quinte Area will be well represented in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoffs this year, with 28 entries being received from local teams.

There are 68 entries for the annual playoffs in which top softball competition in all categories from senior to squirt is played.

The Zone Four total representing this area is 106 entries mostly coming from the minor ranks.

Among the local entries, Rollins' Construction sees Senior B action and will play Peterborough in their first round. Trenton Motors has entered the Intermediate A category and will meet a Peterborough team as well.

In the Intermediate C category Barden Supplies has filed an entry to be based in Demorestville. Their first round opposition will be in Kingston township. Howard and Robert Fleming will be back to defend their All-Ontario championship in the Intermediate AA division. They will start their defence of the title against a five team field.

In the Junior A ranks the only entries received in Zone Four were Ottawa and Belleville Ellis Printing. Cobourg and Brighton are entered in the Junior B ranks.

The only area entry in the Juvenile series is Picton in the C division. In Midget B, Trenton will play Gananoque in their first round.

In Bantam A play, Belleville will take on Peterborough in the first round. Two from Trenton in the Bantam B series. O'Malley's and Gimpel Electric have both filed to play OASA ball this year. They will meet teams from Picton and Cobourg in their first rounds.

In Peewee A play, Belleville will meet a team from Peterborough to start the playoffs in their series. In Peewee B Trenton will meet Cobourg.

In the Peewee C division, Stirling will meet Newburgh and Napanee will meet Harrowsmith.

In the youngest series in OASA play, the Belleville Squirts will be out to try and regain the championship they captured last year. They will meet Kingston in the first round.

In Squirt B, Napanee will start out against Cobourg.

JOHN SHEPPARD

Sheppard Entered In Games

The Quite area will be represented at the Metro Police Games Saturday by middle distance runner John Sheppard. The 17 - year - old Sheppard has been invited to the international meet to run in the 800 and 1500 metre events.

The Games will be held at the CNE Stadium and will feature such runners as Grant McLaren and Brian Winsor-Reed. Sheppard will be matched against some of the athletes who competed in the Olympic Games in Munich last October.

A member of the Belleville Kinsmen Track Club, Sheppard will be making a club date Saturday at the Cobourg Highland Games.

The Kinsmen meet is the most important the Quinte Secondary School Grade 13 student has entered. Officials of his home club have gladly given up the services of their prize runner for the day.

Pony Rally

The day of the horse and buggy may be dead but for the Highlands of Hastings Pony Club the day of the horse is just coming.

The BR 4 Stirling farm of Henry Vaaden Bosch will be the site of Saturday's 2 at Central Region D Rally of which the Highland club is the host.

Up to 40 entries are expected in the day long rally events with clubs represented Salisbury, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Brighton, and Peterborough tentatively scheduled.

The rally involves three stages of competition, the dressage which will begin at 9.30 a.m., the cross country at 1 p.m., and stadium jumping which precedes the award presentations at 2.30 p.m.

An added attraction of the day's events will be the Prince Philip Game competition for riders under the age of 14. Approximately 50 entries are expected in the relays and races that make up the Games. Games are held in many centres in Ontario with points obtained in each game adding towards a trip to the Toronto Exhibition and the finals.

The public is invited to attend the rally.

Rained Out

As did most games last night, the Commercial League contests fell victim to the weather. The doubleheader at the Alemite was about ready to start when the rain came. The games will be scheduled for a later date.

Also rained out were games in the Industrial and Ladies' Leagues.

No Pastes in EFC This Time Around

If there's anything the four-Eastern Football Conference coaches agree on at this late, like last year, there won't be any pastes in the league this season.

In 1972, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders finished the regular season with 11-3 identical records while Montreal Alouettes struggled into the playoffs with a 4-10 mark and Toronto Argonauts were so inept last at 3-11.

Toronto and Montreal now have new coaches. John Rauch (as in couch) took over the Argos and Marv Levy became boss of the Als.

Hamilton

Offence seems to be the big pest question mark because of Dave Buchanan's retirement. He led the EFC in rushing in 1972 with 1,165 yards, averaging about 20 carries a game.

So far there's no one in sight to replace him, but the Ticats have a reputation of being the best shoppers in Canada when National Football League clubs cut down.

Chuck Ealey, the Canadian Football League rookie of the year in 1972, is back and should be even better this year. His crop of good receivers include Tony Gabriel, probably the best tight end in Canada, and Stoney Henley.

Williams hopes Andy Hopkins and Cranmer can carry the ball, but the pass, and Ealey's scrambling will be the club's strength.

Veteran wide receiver Tommy Joe Coffey will be gone. The all-time scoring leader in the Canadian Football League was cut Thursday.

All-star defensive back John Williams will miss the start of the season with an ankle injury, but Al Brenner, Lewis Foster, Dave Fleming—he's been switched from offence to defence—newcomers Louis Clare from University of Minnesota, and McKinney Evans from New Mexico Highland should provide a strong backfield group.

Ottawa

A fearsome front four anchors what is likely to be Canada's best defence, Wayne Smith, Rod Sims, Tom Cassella and Jim Piakkoski will be tough to move the ball against.

Last year, Ottawa's defence gave up only 228 points, the best in the CFL by a wide margin. With Gerry Campbell at middle linebacker, Dan Devine and Tom Scholte on set corners, and Wayne Giardino in reserve, Ottawa won't be pushed around.

If there's a weakness, it's an offence. Rick Cassata at quarterback still hasn't realized he can throw the ball to a championship.

Cassata has faith, saying all Cassata can do "is win." One thing going for Cassata, and his backup man Frank DiMiggio, is Evenson's inside running, something the club badly lacked last season.

With Evenson, the Riders expect Art Cantrelle to be a more effective running back because defenders won't be able to key on him.

Newcomer Lee Fobbs from Gramling College will provide backfield speed, probably from the slotback position, while Hugh Oldham, Terry Wellesley and Tom Pullen are all able receivers.

A big plus for Ottawa is that they're the only club with a proven placekicker, Gerry Organ. He led the CFL in scoring last year with 131 points, including an EFC record of 29 field goals.

Montreal

George Mira has one of the No. 1 quarterback jobs and an all-American Heisman Trophy winner, Johnny Rodgers, from Nebraska, has earned nothing but praise.

The Als' prize catch—he's said to be getting $100,000 a year—will alternate between running back and split end. Coach Levy, almost ecstatic about Rodgers, says:

He has all the ability we thought. Quickness, team effort a lot of durability. He'll run the ball more often than he did in exhibitions.

Mira has been in one of the best wide receivers in the league and with Peter Dalla Riva at tight end, the Als should have a good passing game—if Mira can get the ball to them.

The starting backfield will probably be John Harvey, Larry Smith and Ike Brown. Rookie Jimmy Jones from Southern California will be Mira's backup with Sonny Wade going on the injured list.

Levy says his club will play hard, rough, basic football," but refuses to predict how it will fare in the woo-ful column. Gord Judges, Cecil Pryor, Glen Weir and Junior Ah You will present a tough front four, aided by what may be the best linebacking crew in Canada—Marv Luster, Mike Widger and either Carl Crennell or John Huard.

If there's a major trouble spot—except at quarterback—it's in the defensive backfield. Mel Code, Dick Harris and Gene Gaines are set, but Cas dians Ron Perowne, Tony Proudfoot and Barclay Allen are short on experience.

Toronto

The Argos went from Grey Cup finalists to doormats in a year. Can they come back?

Rauch isn't the type to make predictions. He says the club will be better.

Joe Theismann and Leon McQuay, the former out most of last year with a broken leg and the latter in a temperamental slump, have been impressive in exhibitions. McQuay has even offered to run back punts to help the team, a sharp change in attitude from his "I'm a star" pose of 1972.

If both play to potential this year, the Argos' offence will be potent.

The Argos also have Bill Symons in the backfield and two great receivers in Mike Eben and Eric Allen, rescued by Toronto partisans to be the best split end in the CFL.

The offensive line, the Achilles heel last year, still is suspect. However, Rauch will find out early if his guards, Noah Jackson and Ron Mikolajczyk, can do the job.

The Argos open the season to Ottawa Tuesday and play the Rough Riders in Toronto Wednesday, Aug. 8. If the two can stand up to the Ottawa rush, Toronto will be in business.

The defence looks reasonably sound, as would any defence that contained Jim Sullwagon, Jim Corrigall, Steve Smear, Tom Scott—a new linebacker with superstar potential, Tim Anderson and Gord Mack.

The deep secondary, however, appears weak. Rookies Wayne Allison and Barry Finlay will be back there and that could spell trouble.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, July 22

Aries (March 21-April 19): Different opinions needn't conflict; try to stay out of arguments. Personal sensitivity is the main difficulty.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A rash of family readjustments has repercussions. Hold hasty reactions within bounds, take no James with mechanical things.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Morning seems to be a point of departure; see the rest of your life as a journey beginning now.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You needn't expect a quiet day. Take a conservative approach with methods that are known to work.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It seems that everybody is doing his worst. Vigorous reactions merely reinforce present matters. Patience is the practical course.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Believably, you catch up on news like the weekend personal readjustments, putting career aside.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Progress comes within bounds if you are seeking it. If not, things get so intense, something must be done to smooth things over.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The big promise of the day is that a long-standing source of irritation clears up. Exchange opinions!

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Special activities run into complications, require care, special arrangements. This evening help your beloved sort things out.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Make yourself clear, but avoid the impression that you don't care—unless you really don't.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your adventurous spirit leads to more than you expect. Personal resources can cover comfortably.

Seasons, and not unusual, explanation is that the throat-clearing is just a nervous habit which can be corrected with a little effort on his part—granting that habits are hard to break, but it can be done.

Why not call it to his attention? He certainly doesn't do it on purpose; others, and it is altogether possible that he is so used to it he doesn't realize he is doing it.

Besides, if it annoys the family and if he does it elsewhere, it must annoy others at work or in any of his activities. For his own good he ought to do something about it.

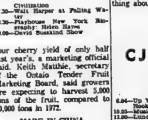
Not Medicinal

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — A resident, appearing for the fourth time in court on a charge of drunken driving, was asked by the judge if he had a drinking problem. The driver said the only reason he drank was because of his hay fever. Magistrate Marcel Trahan fined $100 and his licence was suspended for a year.

Smaller Crop



NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Poor weather during pollination has resulted in a Niagara Peninsula sour cherry yield of only half last year's, a marketing official said. Keith Maithie, secretary of the Ontario Tender Fruit Marketing Board, said growers are expecting to harvest 5,000 tons of the fruit, compared to 10,000 tons in 1971.

To Your Good Health

Clearing Throat May Be Reflex

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has a very annoying habit of clearing his throat at the supper table while eating. What would cause him to keep doing this? He is 45, his weight is good and he doesn't smoke.

He doesn't seem to realize he has this habit and I haven't let him know how nerve-wracking it has been to the rest of the family. Any suggestions?—Mrs. M.E.

First question is whether he does this other than at the table. If he does, then I certainly suggest examination by his doctor to see if some chronic irritation is present.

But if he does it only at the table, we can suggest another explanation. The one that primarily comes to mind is the fact that some people have what is called an "active gag reflex." They appear to gag often when having the throat examined; they also gag when the dentist tries to make some have this gagging occur as they try to put their best foot, the back teeth, that is.

If that is his problem, this throat-clearing may be a means of making swallowing easier for him. In that case, chewing his food more thoroughly and eating slowly should help.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 11 years old and the nipples on my breasts are prominent, so just wait a year or two or three.

There is no need of treatment of any kind now. If, in the years to come, the depression is a problem for you, a breast feeding) a plastic surgeon can correct it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have arthritis in my right knee. Obviously the knee is full of fluid because it is almost four inches larger than the other knee.

I have been given my own injections of insulin, would it be safe for me to try to remove the fluid from my knee with a sterile syringe?—Mrs. B.H.

Positively no. For a lot of reasons.

First it must be determined whether the swelling is fluid or thickening of structures in the joint (or both).

Second, if aspiration (withdrawing) of fluid will be of any help, it must be done under strict surgical sterility. You are in no position to do this. It's demanding enough even when you have assistance and other necessary equipment. Joint fluid is an ideal medium for germs to grow in, and you would be inviting much more misery than you now have.

Finally, you have to know exactly where to guide the needle, and if you were familiar with that problem you wouldn't have asked your question in the first place. No! Don't fool around with that syringe!

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

You are the dealer, both sides vulnerable. What would you bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ AQJ4 ♥ K10732 ♦ A ♣ 8 6
2. ♠ AK9 ♥ AQ8 ♦ AJ7 ♣ Q864
3. ♠ 5 ♥ K10 ♦ QJ1085 ♣ AKQ106
4. ♠ AKJ87 ♥ AJ4 ♦ 972 ♣ 962

1. One spade. In general, a six-card suit is named ahead of a five-card suit. But when the suits are adjacent (like the spade and the heart) the point of the hand is close to the allowable minimum the higher-ranking suit is bid first — even though it is the longer suit. The direct effect of this is that the bidding is kept at a relatively low level in a hand of limited strength.

2. One club. Players who are not point-count conscious might open the bidding with one or two notrump. Admittedly, this 20-point hand looks very notrumpish, considering its flat distribution and high-card strength, but it is far better to identify these suits later on.

An opening one notrump bid shows 16 to 18 points; two notrump shows 22 to 24 points. These upper and lower limits are inflexible and cannot be varied without the risk of confusing. It is better to open a club and then jump to three notrump; this delivers the message much more accurately. If partner passes one club, the odds are great that there is no game in the hand.

3. One diamond. The fact that there are only 12 highcard points is one good reason for passing. It is dangerous to pass such hands, chiefly because you would have a hard time later on making up for the pass.

Once you decide to open, it is better to start with a diamond than a club, in line with the general rule of first bidding the higher-ranking of two equally long suits.

4. Pass. The only other call that can be reasonably considered is a spade, but this would be begging for trouble because of the rebid problem that would arise if partner responded two clubs, di a monds or hearts.

Each of these responses would constitute a forcing bid, and it would be impossible to find a rebid that would misrepresent your high - card values or your distribution. It is better to pass originally on a borderline hand than run the risk of being faced later with an insoluble bidding problem.

Tomorrow: Psychological warfare.

Texasgulf Takeover Stalled by U.S. Court

TORONTO (CP) — A temporary order restraining the government-owned Canada Development Corp. (CDC) from proceeding with a $280-million takeover bid for Texasgulf Inc. the United States-based resources company, has been granted in a Houston, Tex., court, CDC president H. Anthony Hampson said Friday.

In an interview, Mr. Hampson said he understood from CDC counsel in Canada and New York that Texasgulf management based its application on a Texas statute declaring that any company owning minerals in the state must have a majority of U.S. shareholders and a majority of directors from Texas.

"This is like saying that a U.S. company with a subsidiary in Timmins must have a majority of Canadian directors," said Mr. Hampson.

Asked if the move indicated that Texasgulf directors are opposed to the takeover bid, Mr. Hampson said:

"I am hardly think that they would have involved themselves in this course of action if that was not the case."

Mr. Hampson said the CDD offer was to all share-holders except Canadian residents. He said the restraining order would apply to all shareholders to whom CDC made the offer.

Mr. Hampson said that while directors in Canada normally make a recommendation to shareholders in the face of a big bid they nevertheless remain neutral, permitting shareholders to make up their own minds.

"It seems that in America the directors make the decisions," he said.

But we made what we considered a fair and reasonable offer and we intend to see that the (Texasgulf) shareholders are given every opportunity to make their own judgment.

"We made the offer seriously and plan to pursue it seriously."

The CC announced its offer for 10 million shares of Texasgulf at $28 U.S. a share Tuesday. The offer expires Aug. 10. Friday's court action was the first reaction from management of the U.S. based company.

Earlier this year, the CDC bought 748,000 Texasgulf shares in preparation for the takeover bid. The additional 10 million shares would give it about 21 per cent of the issued shares and about 35 per cent of outstanding shares.

Texasgulf owns large base metal mining operations near Timmins in Northern Ontario. Discovery of the metals in 1964 sparked off one of the wildest penny mining booms in Canada's mining history.

Mr. Hampson said Friday's temporary order was issued after a hearing before federal district Judge Woodrow Seals. A further court hearing on the order has been set for Aug. 8.

The public would be kept informed of the status of CDC's bid, said Mr. Hampson.

Texasgulf is incorporated in Texas but has executive headquarters in New York. Mr. Hampson said he thought the minerals in Texas which the CDC would own if its bid is successful—and on which the restraining order is sought—include sulphur and salt "with some oil interests."

"But their major operations are outside Texas," he added.

Texasgulf's most recent annual report shows that at Dec. 31, 1972, the company had 80,247 registered shareholders.

Moog's Lawyer Wins His Point

TORONTO (CP) — A hard-nosed lawyer with the courtroom aplomb of a hungry bantacuda has driven a wedge into the unanimity of an Ontario legislative inquiry.

George Finlayson, a 46-year-old litigation lawyer representing Canada Square Corp. Ltd., succeeded Thursday in sending behind closed doors the inquiry into how the company got a $41-million Ontario Hydro contract.

In doing so, the committee split for the first time along party lines as The Conservatives used their voting strength to hold secret sessions.

Mr. Finlayson, who has been accused by committee members of being abrasive and belligerent, had argued that public disclosure of financial matters relating to the company and its president, Gerhard Moog, could be damaging to future and present dealings of the company.

Mr. Moog, a millionaire developer, is a close friend of Premier William Davis.

On Friday, committee chairman John MacBeth, a conservative, said the unanimity of the select committee hadn't been fractured beyond repair.

However, he said in an interview:

"The committee is a political animal" and it has had to be regarded in this light since its inception.

Mr. MacBeth said the Conservative members of the committee would be happy to see the inquiry come to an end.

"Some think it has served its purpose already and if it continues it could become a ridiculous charade."

He noted that criticism by the committee of the Hydro contract would be criticism of the government.

Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) blames Mr. Finlayson, in part for the vote that split the committee on party lines.

Mr. Deans said the tough-talking lawyer had apparently set out to divide the committee and isolate committee counsel Richard Shibley from the elected members.

"He has almost succeeded," said Mr. Deans.

Mr. Finlayson has made his presence felt at the committee all week.

His interjections have started acrimonious exchanges between members snarling at him and on two occasions the meeting adjourned (Conservative Riverdale) suggested the lawyer's ouster was imminent.

When the committee moved proceedings into secret session, Mr. Finlayson was all smiles.

His interjections, according to Mr. Shibley, have disrupted the sequential examination of testimony.

Originally Mr. MacBeth said the committee would likely be an hour in closed session and opposition members doubted it would be that long.

They spent four hours in-camera Thursday and are scheduled to resume in secret again Monday.

Mr. Finlayson, who had gone as far as to shout "shut up!" at his client, has gained a number of concessions.

First he succeeded in preventing Mr. Moog's so-called "Swiss file" from being presented in public and then he got the committee to lock out both the public and the press. The file contained financial correspondence.

There were indications that he may have scored more points in the closed door-session.

It was learned that when committee met with Mr. Shibley, they questioned him as to the relevance of his questioning and where it was leading.

Railway Strike Goes West Today

TORONTO (CP) — The rail strike rolled west today while Ontario struggled to get back on the tracks in the wake of 48 hours without trains or telegrams.

Alberta, British Columbia, North West Territories and the Yukon were the second target of strike action by the 2nd 4 member Association of Non-Operating Railway Employees.

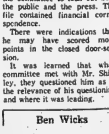
Workers left their jobs at 6 a.m. local times, bringing to a halt any freight and passenger traffic and cable and telegram services operated by affiliated telecommunications employees.

The strike will last for 86 hours until midnight Monday night local times. The third region to be hit by the operation of rotating strikes has not been made public by the unions, who are meeting Monday with contract disputes with Canadian National Railways, CP Rail and the smaller railways.

Although strike action by 30,000 non-operators in Ontario ended officially at 6 a.m. EDT today, the possibility of a new confrontation lingered.

The strikers were told by their unions to report for work.

Cyprus Erupts



NICOSIA (AP) — The Cypriot Justice minister was kidnapped from his home here by two armed, masked gunmen during the night of about 40 retaliatory bombings by rival political factions.

An official announcement said the minister, Nicholas Yakis, still was missing hours after two men in military uniforms took him from his home with the promise he would return in two hours.

Yakis was at home with his wife when the men entered and said: "Your brother wants to see you, and we assure you on our military honor you will be back safe and well and that we shall return you to your home within two hours."

The reference to "our leader" gave rise to speculation the kidnappers were members of the underground of Gen. George Grivas, who is waging a campaign to overthrow President Archbishop Makarios and merge the Mediterranean island republic with Greece.

PC Gets Judge's Vote

WINNIPEG (CP) — Progressive Conservative Gurnie Pollard has won the Winnipeg seat of Crescentwood in the next Manitoba legislature—if unofficial results of a judicial recount stand up.

Following completion of the two-day recount conducted by Judge Benjamin "Hawk of County Court, Mr. Pollard had a seven-vote lead over New Democrat Harry Patterson.

Mr. Patterson was declared winner in the June 28 provincial election with a 48-vote lead over Mr. Pollard.

Unofficial results of the recount Friday gave Mr. Pollard 3,727 votes, Mr. Patterson 3,720 and Liberal June Menzies 1,734.

Judge Hawk said he would announce his official results Monday morning.

If the judicial recount is upheld, standing in the 57-seat legislature will be NDP 30, Conservatives 22 and Liberals five.

Canadian National and cp rail took the position the only workers they wanted were those who needed.

"We are not about to put people on the payroll for whom there is no work because of (the effects of) the strike," said a CP Rail spokesman.

Said cn: "We won't be able to do everything immediately."

Notices of termination of employment went to all striking workers by the companies, were "routine procedures," a company spokesman said, but union officials disagreed.

The notices, saying "all employees who have withdrawn their services will not return to work until required by the company" were "far from routine," said Charles Hunter, regional vice-president for the non-operating unions.

The unions claim the layoffs are lockouts, and that the companies are trying to force a national strike to bring about federal government intervention.

There is no mail, freight and express in railway sheds in major cities in Ontario to keep every box busy, they said.

The carriers remained adamant that while they were anxious to resume full service as quickly as possible, workers not needed—such as those on the trains—will not be recalled until there are jobs to be done.

The strike in Ontario led to the layoff Friday of about 1,200 CN employees in Quebec and about 400 CP Rail workers, said the companies.

A union spokesman said about 100 CP Rail workers in southern Saskatchewan were also laid off. They are not laid off, said the company—they are expected to be on call for duty because of lack of work.

In Winnipeg, railway officials said no train trains were moving east because switching crews in Thunder Bay were not crossing picket lines. But some eastern grain cars to yards where elevators are located.

CP Rail was nevertheless assembling freight and grain trains in Winnipeg and other centres in the hope they could be moved into Ontario today.

The cn said freight service said they would facilitate movement of grain trains if requested to do so.

CN said grain trains are moving east in Churchill Manitoba.

In the Maritimes, CP Rail's ferry Princess of Acadia will not be affected by the current round of strikes, said Richard Smith, chief bargainer for the unions. The ferry operates between Saint John, N.B., and Digby, N.S.

Railway officials emphasized Friday that it would be "some hours" before trains would begin to move again in Ontario because of safety reasons.

Items such as rail, ballast, track conditions, signals and switches.

Freight trains would move first, said the officials, because their weight would prevent rust from rails and whatever trouble spots would be cleared trains travel the routes.

Spokesmen for the two companies, including Gray Coach, Greyhound said the number of coaches has been doubled "on most routes until rail service returns to near normal.

Jim Hunter, Toronto representative for the union, said the railways "have received their position" that only workers required for immediate operations would be taken back and that all members in Ontario have returned to work.

Skylab Astronauts Right on Target

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Three United States astronauts rocketed into orbit today to start man's longest planned space journey, a 56-day study of the sun, stars, earth and man from aboard the Skylab space station.

"We're really moving out," commander Alan Bean reported as the astronauts' Saturn 1-B speed into an orbit ranging from about 94 to 140 miles high.

Dean, 41, Jack Lousma, 37, and Jack Lousma, 37, immediately began a 17,100-million-dollar journey in the manned 85-ton laboratory, which passed over Cape Canaveral just minutes before they started the marathon space adventure.

By the time they reached orbit, the station was 2,300 miles ahead.

With Bean at the controls, the Apollo was to be steered through a series of intricate rocket-firing manoeuvres to close in on the Skylab, which is the size of a three-bedroom house.

Linkup of the two space vehicles was scheduled for 5:33 p.m. EDT, 11:33 a.m. Pacific.

Once aboard the Skylab, navy Capt. Bean, solar physicist Garriott and marine Maj. Lousma hope to remain in orbit during a 28-day space flight record set last month by the Soviet Union crew, whose efforts saved the damaged station.

The mission will be the most rigorous test yet of man's ability to withstand the physical and psychological stresses of prolonged space travel. The medical results will have a bearing on whether astronauts one day will embark on long voyages to other planets.

The spacemen started the trip on the crest of a 22-storey-tall Saturn 1-B rocket that thundered away from Cape Canaveral right on time at 7:11 a.m.

Thousands of persons in the area watched the fiery flight, but the rocket quickly vanished into low-hanging clouds 24 seconds after it left the pad.

Ten minutes later, Mission Control told the astronauts they were in a good orbit.

"Tell the guys at KSC thanks, it was a real nice job," Bean told the control centre, referring to the Kennedy Space Centre launch team.

Once in orbit, the astronauts separated the Apollo from the burned-out third stage and turned around to take a look at it.

Riots Hold State Prison

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Police and National Guard troops appeared ready, if necessary, to fight their way to the Oklahoma State penitentiary today, where rebellious convicts still held hostages.

Two convicts were killed during 14 hours of rioting Friday, and at least 4 cellblock buildings were destroyed by fires set by the insurgents, prison officials said. Two guards suffered stab wounds.

A prison doctor said one of the dead convicts apparently was beaten to death by fellow prisoners. It was not known how the other was killed.His body was still lying in a prison yard under the control of the rioters.

The physician, Dr. Rafael Cot, said he treated 12 other prisoners for injuries but was not allowed to examine the hostages.

A U.S. Forest Service spokesman said it was not known how many persons left the community but said the evacuees were from 12 families. Rancho Haven is about 20 miles north of here.

Auction Collapses

MEAFORD, Ont. (CP) — Seventeen persons were taken to hospital Friday after a section of a barn floor collapsed during an auction, sending about 30 persons on a 12-foot drop to a cement floor. A provincial police spokesman said that "no one was badly injured . . . just a couple of broken arms."

Holy City Dry

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jerusalem sizzled under a heat wave Friday and the Holy City was hit by a water shortage. Irrigation water was cut off to collective farm settlements in the area and drinking water was brought in by tanker trucks to dry parts of the city. The main cause of the shortage was a two-week wave that has kept the mid-day temperature in Jerusalem at about 95 degrees.

300,000 at Rock Concert

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — An estimated 300,000 young persons were expected in this western New York village today for what would be the largest rock concert on the East Coast since 400,000 (ans crowded into Woodstock in 1969. The concert Saturday-Sunday Jam. proved fitting as traffic engulfed all roads for miles around the concert site at the U.S. Grand Prix auto race course.

Back to Work

Anyone taking an early-morning visit to the headquarters of Bellevill[illegible]non-operating workers would find this stack of picket signs hung on a doorknob the only evidence of their 48-hour strike. The signs stay hung on the doorknob of strike headquarters and the workers back on the job, but for the last few days the signs were carried by workers picketing Canadian National for higher wages, job security and an improved shift differential. No one is sure whe nthe signs will be taken up again by Bellevile railway employees.

Exhibition Access Will Be Limited

Reports submitted to the Quinte Exhibition executive management board by committee chairmen indicate good progress is being made towards a successful fair opening day August 8.

Few problems, besides those of minor building or display area alterations, were brought up at the Exhibition board meetig Thursday night.

While touring the fair's buildings before the meeting, the directors discussed final arrangement of produce and food displays, needed construction of stalls, and made sure of the availability of necessary notices.

With only one meeting remaining before the exhibition kicks off its four day, five-night run August 8-12, finishing touches will have to be made soon, according to board president Douglas Rollins.

"We have to have an early notice of any changes," said Mr. Rollins. "Because of a local labor shortage, there's no way at all any alterations can be made after next week. If we know this week what is needed, there's the possibility it can be done."

In his report, manager Ev Gowsell notified the assembly of the closing of Sidney Street from Catherine Street north to Moira Avenue. Coming into effect Monday, July 30, the construction will close off the only access to the fairgrounds directly from the north. Sidney Street will remain closed for three weeks.

"Only the Yeomans and Catherine Street approaches will be available during the fair says," said Mr. Gowsell.

Security arrangements remain to be ironed out. "We're a little in the dark just where we stand with security," noted the Exhibition manager. Mr. Gowsell explained he has been unable to ascertain the availability of security staff.

Cadets Off To Camp

Twenty-four summer cadets with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will get a chance to put their lessons into practice after Monday they leave for a four-day outing at Camp Meaford.

The cadets, who are halfway through a two-month, federal students' summer employment program with the militia will learn additional skills at the camp in the Georgian Bay area.

Such skills as compass training, weapon-training including knowledge of a machine gun and an introduction to nuclear, biological, and chemical warfare — have been taught to the summer cadets, at the Belleville Armories under the direction of Sgt. Jerry Bethel.

At camp, the will be given exercises in patrolling, moving into a defense area and learning to move on their own by map and compass. They will also practise camouflaging.

At the end of the eight-week course the students will take part in a parade at the Belleville Armory. The students return from Camp Meaford on Thursday afternoon. They were inspected by Belleville Police Chief Douglas Cowles in a morning ceremony at the Armory yesterday.

A Real Doll!

It was a dominant feature among novelties at sale this week in Picton, where home staffers Marlene Kerr and Monica Conley were among viewers. Strike Ends
Job Curtailment Possible at CN

It was back to work this morning for most of Belleville's non-operating railway workers.

But they are being recalled as their services are needed by Canadian National. A few may be laid off because of effects of work due to the strike which started and ended this morning.

A spn posted on a front door of the company's offices on Station Street says that shop workers will be recalled as services are needed and that some positions may be curtailed because of the strike.

The return to work this morning signalled the end of Ontario's 48-day-old strike against CN, first of a series to hit Canada. The strike has now shifted to British Columbia, Alberta, The Northwest Territories, and the Yukon for a 96-hour walkout ending Sunday at midnight.

Railroaders in Belleville, who had been picketing since 6 a.m. Thursday, hung up their picket signs at the same time today. The first shift to shift started at 8 a.m.

"The freight service is running normal today," said George Van De Water, manager of the CN Railway in Belleville this morning.

"Passenger service has not yet back to normal," he said.

"There are two Montreal-to-Toronto lines now working normal."

Meanwhile at union headquarters on Hambley Street, the only evidence of the hasle of the past few days was a stack of picket signs tied together and hung on a door knob.

Hydro, Telephones Cut As Storm Hits Tweed

TWEED (Special) — Hydro and telephone service was cut in parts of Tweed Friday evening as a result of three trees being toppled during a heavy wind and rainstorm which swept through the area.

Nearly half an inch of rain mixed with hail fell during the, brief storm.

One tree was toppled at the corner of Minnie and Bridge Streets, another on North Metcalfe Street and a third, also on Metcalfe Street, south of Lesage Fuels.

Hydro in some parts of the village was out for up to three hours before servicemen were able to repair the lines downed by the falling trees.

Ehrlichman Says Sex and Drinking Campaign Subjects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political campaigns may focus on more than the candidates' views on issues, says John Ehrlichman.

Drinking problems, sexual habits and domestic situations also are valid campaign subjects, President Nixon's former chief domestic adviser told the Senate Watergate committee Friday.

"I know of my own knowledge of incumbents in office who are not discharging their obligations to their constituents because of their drinking habits," he said.

"Constituents at home have no way of knowing that you can go over here in the gallery of Congress and watch a member totter onto the floor in a condition of at least partial inebriation which would preclude him making any sort of sober judgment on the issues that confront this country."

Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep. Conn.), questioning Ehrlichman, asked:

"Do you really want to bring the political system of the United States, of our campaigns, down to the level which you are talking about right now?"

Ehrlichman answered: "I know in your situation your lifestyle undoubtedly is impeccable and there wouldn't be anything at issue like that.

"Maybe my standards are all haywire, that everybody in the Congress ought to be immune from scrutiny in that subject but that seems to me to be an indefensible position on your part," the former White House aide said.

Ehrlichman and Ehrlichman squared off after the Connecticut Republican questioned Ehrlichman about the hiring of former New York policeman Anthony Ulasewicz to handle investigations for the White House. Ehrlichman defended the hiring.

"I am quite satisfied that our system, our institutions, are perfectly capable of passing decent judgment, fair judgment, hard judgment on political figures, public officials, without the covert operations of men like Mr. Ulasewicz," Weicker said.

Ehrlichman stressed that the only investigation of an individual politician Ulasewicz conducted while under Ehrlichman's supervision concerned Senator Edward Kennedy (Dem.-Mass.) and the incident in which a young woman, Mary Jo Kopechne, died in Chappaquiddick Island, Mass.

The sexual habits, drinking problems, domestic difficulties and personal social habits of Nixon's political opponents were investigated by Ulasewicz, the former policeman told the committee last week.

Ehrlichman said such habits wouldn't reach the public unless political opponents brought them out. He said the news media has an unwritten rule against publicizing such situations.

In other Watergate developments Friday:

—Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox said he has asked the White House to hand over files on the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. He said the files were "of utmost importance" and that the request had been pending for some time.

Cox did not say what might be in the ITT file but his office has under investigation the administration's handling of an anti-trust case against the conglomerate. It is possible that the file contains details of ITT's contributions in support of the 1972 Republican national convention. Allegations have been made that ITT made the contribution to seek a favorable judgment in the anti-trust case.

—John Nixon Eisenhower, the president's daughter, said her father will publicly discuss the Watergate scandal soon, perhaps within two weeks.

Ehrlichman refused to dispute the testimony of fired White House counsel John Dean about crucial White House meetings on Watergate.

Ehrlichman said he didn't think Dean told Nixon as much about the cover-up as Dean says he did.

Ehrlichman said he wasn't assigned by Nixon to investigate the Watergate affair until March 30, nine days after Dean said he revealed everything to the president.

Food Lift To Continue

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Forces airlift of food into drought-ridden regions of Africa will be extended two weeks, it was announced Friday.

The extensions of the three C-130 Hercules aircraft and crews, please operation to mid-August, follows a request from the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations, and the recommendation of Paul Gerin-Lajoie, president of the Canadian International Development Agency.

The defence department said fresh flight and ground crews have been flown to Lagos, Nigeria, to replace men who have been in the ferry operation since the beginning of July.

But weather and long hours have taken its toll in crew fatigue, the department said.

The airlift is the biggest the forces have ever mounted for the UN. By July 21, 11 million pounds of food will have been flown from the port city of Lagos to the interior.

The government has also granted $8.8 million in food aid.

Skyjack Bill Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — As the final minutes before their summer recess ticked off Friday, the Commons gave third and final reading to a bill legalizing tougher security measures against airplane hijackers.

Swift passage in the Senate and royal assent were expected later in the day.

The bill gives government security officers wide powers to search passengers in aircraft and airports for security reasons.

The measures were introduced in the Commons June 7 and snapped through committee study Thursday. Officials said quick passage was necessary if Canada is to play a role in an international conference on skyjacking in Rome next month.

Major air carriers have handled security measures at airports since February, waiting for the government to put on authority to take over.

The RCMP is expected to train private security officers to handle the searches.

Parliament Adjourns Until Next October 15

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament adjourned Friday until October after a sitting that lasted 122 days and saw the fortunes of the minority Liberal government hit up and down like a storm-tossed boat.

At times the fury of opposition critics threatened to blow the election-weakened administration out of office.

But it managed to survive on the strength of surprisingly durable support from the New Democratic Party, one of its severest opponents in the last Parliament.

The Commons will resume sittings Oct. 15, the Senate Oct. 30, providing no emergency such as a prolonged railway strike leads to an earlier recall.

The adjournment, four weeks later than normal, came after a flurry of last-minute activity in both houses ended with royal assent for 12 bills awaiting final approval.

Included were some of the most important measures of the session—corporate tax cuts, personal income tax reductions, Olympic financing legislation and federal sales tax reductions.

Predictably, the government summed up the session as productive and positive while the Conservatives called it a lackluster sitting that did little to solve the major problems facing the country.

Statistically, 28 bills were approved by the Commons during the 132 sitting days compared with 16 in the final 89-day session of the last Parliament.

After losing their majority in the Oct. 30 election, the Liberals came back to Parliament Jan. 4 with only 109 of the 264 Commons seats, the smallest proportion held by any government since Confederation.

The government's life-span, at the outset, was measured in days by many and there were predictions of a speedy Conservative takeover or an early general election.

The speculation subsided as the session wore on and the Conservatives, with 107 seats, saw one non-confidence vote after another blocked by the government and the 31-seat New Democrats with their effective balance of power. Completing the standings were 15 Social Credit members, and two independents.

The notable exception was Finance Minister John Turner's corporate tax cut, which the NDP opposed vehemently. It was passed finally after a time-limit compromise was reached by the Liberals and Conservatives.

At adjournment early election speculation had dropped almost to nil and many were betting no vote would take place before the spring of 1974 at least.

The two most controversial issues of the session emerged as capital punishment and the corporation tax measures. The tax measure sliced the corporate tax rate to 40 per cent from 49 per cent.

The capital punishment bill provoked controversy from its introduction in January, and split the House into two roughly equal camps of death-penalty abolitionists and retentionists.

The bill would restore the five-year period during which the death penalty that expired last December, retaining capital punishment for the killing murderers of policemen and prison guards.

The corporate tax measures posed the most serious threat to the government.

With the NDP pledged to vote against them, the government was forced to win Conservative support by overcoming Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's main objection. He demanded a one-year time limit on the reduced tax rate.

A compromise was worked out allowing a parliamentary review next spring if 40 or more MPs sign a petition demanding it.

Other major measures adopted during the session include:

—A net two-per-cent personal income tax cut and higher basic exemption levels.

—Housing legislation to foster community planning, help non-profit housing groups and provide land-assembly programs.

—Legislation to suspend redistribution of Commons seats on the basis of changing population patterns.

—Passage of a heatedly-debated resolution endorsing the government's bilingualism program in the public service.

—Legislation to give immigrants living illegally in Canada a chance to clear their names and qualify for landed-immigrant status without penalty.

—Establishment of a food prices review board to monitor cost increases and recommend action to the government.

—Authority for tighter security measures against airplane hijacking.

Another list of bills, some hotly-contested, still were on the order paper when the House recessed. Some may be approved when MPs return in the fall to end the session. But others will be put over to be introduced again in the next session, expected to start a few weeks after MPs come back.

The unpassed list includes legislation to control foreign ownership, limit wiretapping by police, increase mortgage interest without penalty, limit election spending by political parties and candidates and raise family allowances.

Nickel-A-Month Drug Plan Suggested

Pensioners Have Strong Advocate in Cape Breton MP

By RICHARD JACOBS

OTTAWA — In his 18 years in the Commons, Cape Breton Conservative MP Robert Muir has asked a lot of questions, pleaded many causes and made so many speeches he long ago lost count and stopped piling them up in his files.

But never in those 18 years has he had the massive reaction to a speech he has had to buried him under a mountain of mail since he moved a resolution in the House for provision of free drugs to pensioners.

Individually by the hundreds and in organized groups by the score, pensioners here have been writing to assure him of their appreciation of his efforts and to pledge him support in the next election.

It does not matter that only $ tiny fraction of pensioners in Canada live in his constituency of Cape Breton — The Sydneys.

Letter after letter says that if they can not vote him personally because they live in Hamilton or Sudbury or Victoria — just about everywhere except that part of Cape Breton they are going to vote for "somebody like you".

A careful reading of his mail indicates to Bob Muir that perhaps the pensioners, finally, are beginning to organize themselves into a special interest group.

He says "finally" because nearly every other segment of the population from the Chamber of Commerce through the professional associations, trade unions, youth to welfare recipients have their pressure groups.

Even the homosexuals have organized themselves to demand from the State Secretary and receive — an Opportunity for Youth grant.

So how large a voting bloc could the pensioners muster if they voted as a special interest group, as so many say they will?

National Health and Welfare says there are 1,800,000 pensioners.

So one of every seven electors is a pensioner which gives the 61-and-over group considerable campaign clout.

One of the better letters — mailed by the pensioners are organizing — came to Mr. Muir from D. Ferguson, chairman of the Senior Citizens of Vaughan, a heavily populated township north of Toronto.

He writes a script, based on Bob Muir's free-drug-for-the-pensioners resolution, and promises it with the hope:

"If someone wants a word with you,

"Be patient and stand still.

"You never know how hard life is

"For those grown old and ill.

"To let them have their own say

"May give them comfort for the day."

In his script Mr. Ferguson lists the "good guys" in the Commons: Conservatives Muir and Robert Coates of Nova Scotia, Social Credittor Henry Latulippe of Compton, Quebec, and New Democrat Grace MacInnis of Vancouver.

The "bad guys" are Liberals Gaston Isabelle of Hull, Quebec, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Lalonde, and Victor Railton of Welland.

The "good guys" supported the Muir resolution, while the "bad guys" Victor Railton argues that there were enough "E. P. Taylors" on the old-age pension roll with 75 percent of pensioners receiving no such assistance and Dr. Isabelle

Jesus Defined True Religion In Terms of Foremost Commandment

By Rev. Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

The words that provide the subject for this column have been described as the definition of true religion. They go beyond that. Appearing as they do in three of the four Gospels, they involve what is basic in our relation to God and to man.

A scribe asked Jesus to outline the foremost commandment. Our Lord replied, "The first is, Hear O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is one: and you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind and with all your strength." The second is like unto it, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." There is no other commandment greater than these." (Mark 12:28-32).

"With all your heart." Some people have the role of feeling in the religious life. They may view with optimism evangelistic rallies and yet shout themselves hoarse at a ball game. If religion is founded on logic, it is founded on emotion, too.

"With all your heart." Some Old Testament, is never mere head-knowledge. It is essentially the life principle. It has to do with one's inmost being. Of course, it is easier to say prayers than to pray. It is easier to think that you can commune with God in nature than to really confront the God who said and who still says, "With all your mind."

Too often men and women have made of religion an unreasonable thing. People who are afraid to bring their minds to bear on the subject lest they lose hold of it. Others imagine that they have the whole truth by the tail. These need the prayer that St. Paul uttered for early Christians, "that you may lead a life worthy of the Lord, increasing in the knowledge of God."

"And with all your strength." Thomas Carlyle described a real ideal believer when he wrote of his father that "he was religious with the cement of all his faculties". That is real religion! It calls for a living God with every fervent feeling, every devout hope, and every searching thought, we would exclaim the joy of an unreasoning love, and his purpose for all men kind!

"You shall love your neighbor as yourself." Let us be grateful for Luke's version in Chapter 10 of his Gospel, verses 25-37, Dr. James Moffatt tells us that this section stands nearer to the original event than does Mark's account. Luke has preserved the priceless parable of the good Samaritan, in answer to the question "And who is my neighbor?"

Jesus did not make the neighbor a Jew at all, let alone a priest or a Levite. His test of truth a man regarded as a moral guide in race and a heretic in religion. Today He might take a member of the IRA and a Loyalist, of all Irishmen, go to the aid of an Orangeman bleeding in a Belfast street, following the latest senseless slaughter.

I think that we do well to clarify at this point right here. A Samaritan is a good person. He is not merely a good-hearted individual. For your good man is always and naturally a good hearted man, but your good-hearted man is not always a good man.

You can no more trust good-hearted people as the basis of steady feeling, steady devotion, steady doing or steady giving than you can trust the weather. They at once visit the new widow and then forget that her sorrow ever existed. They attend the least and kick the most when parishes are amalgamated.

They show no interest in community affairs until your competition is threatened. They lip read boys once a year with a $10 bill, leaving the impression that they are doing God a favor.

If churches, societies, service organizations, humanitarian agencies in general had to depend on the good-hearted, they would languish. In one way or another, inside a year, it is the man or woman who is vitally and radically good who is the backbone of the community, and not of it only, but of the entire nation. And, ultimately, these are God's Samaritans.

Therefore, if we can define religion as "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength, and your neighbor as yourself", we will be 100 percent correct in the answer to the one question put to us in the final examination by the Teacher sent from God. He will regard us with approval. He will have but one more thing to say, And yet it is everything. "Do this, and you will live."

Jesus Christ Superstar Film Draws Conflicting Reactions

NEW YORK (AP) — Strong but sharply contrasting reactions are coming from religious leaders to the film version of Jesus Christ Superstar, now showing at seven theatres across North America.

It is "anti-Semitic, demeaning" and "nothing less than a catastrophe," says Rev. Gerald S. Strober, a Presbyterian authority on intergroup relations in the Reform tradition.

Rev. James M. Wall, a Methodist and editor of the interdenominational weekly Christian Century, says it is "superb theology, outstanding theology and in no way anti-Semitic."

It is "a witches' brew of venom," says Rabbi Marc H. Tannenbaum, interreligious affairs director of the American Jewish Committee, noting that Judas, the betrayer of Jesus, is played by a black actor.

A reviewer for the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, says the movie is "extraordinarily direct and evocative," and while not essentially religious, "rich in appeal to spiritual values."

It's not intended to be a "religious tract," says Universal Pictures, the film's maker, which contended the charges of anti-Semitism are not supported by the content of the film.

Nevertheless, three major organizations affiliated with the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council termed the film a "singularly distasteful setback in the struggle against the religious sources of anti-Semitism."

The most detailed analysis of the film was made by Strober, a Hebrew scholar and Protestant consultant on interreligious relations to the American Jewish Committee.

Active in various interdenominational projects to cleanse Christian textbooks of anti-Jewish bias derived mainly from traditions of the middle ages rather than the Bible, he says of the film:

"Every device of cinematic art is here paraded into service to spread the old falsehood of the Jews' collective responsibility for the Christ-death."

This demeaning notion, which "has scarred Jews and Christians from the time of the middle ages to the era of Auschwitz", now is regarded as "historically and spiritually untenable," he says.

Roman Catholicism's Second Vatican Council repudiated the idea as non-scriptural and a slam at Jesus Himself and His first followers, all Jews. The World Council of Churches, including most Protestants, took a similar stand.

Strober says the discredited notion is hauntingly revived in the film, which shows the Jewish priesthood as "sadistic and bloodthirsty," the Jewish Temple as a scene of "prostitutes, drug pushers and sellers of machine-guns" and the Jewish people as hysterical with "callousness and blood lust."

In contrast, Pilate, the Roman governor who actually sentenced Jesus to death and whose troops arrested Him and executed Him, is presented in the "most favorable light" as a "man of the well-meaning man," Strober says, retorted:

"This is wildly unhistorical, deriving from cliches of the medieval anti-Semitic passion plays which reduced special concern about potential influence of the movie since it probably will be seen by millions, in contrast to the stage version, which reached thousands, and because of the stronger impact of the film medium.

"The film version is worse than the stage play," Rabbi Tannenbaum says. "The stereotypes are more extreme. He says it also is "more insidious" since its G rating means it will be seen by countless Sunday-school-age children.

Israelis Obey Bible, Give Land Year's Rest

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Jews are once again obeying the biblical law of the Sabbatical Year, which all farmland must lie fallow. But farmers are exploiting a variety of loopholes to keep their country in fruit and vegetables.

"Six years thou shalt sow thy land and shalt gather in the fruits thereof," God told Moses in handing him the Ten Commandments 3,000 years ago. "But the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still."

Ever since, pious Jews have set aside the seventh year as a Shnat Shmita or Sabbatical Year. The land may not be plowed, no crops may be planted, no fruit or vegetables picked. The Sabbatical follows the Jewish lunar calendar, beginning and ending usually in September.

It seems an added burden for a country whose economy leans heavily on exports of citrus, flowers and winter crops.

But there is a loophole. The Bible says nothing about land belonging to non-Jews.

So every seventh year, all land owned by the government, agricultural condominiums and semi-public land is "sold" by the State Rabbinate to a non-Jew, usually a Christian Arab.

The buyer, whose identity is secret, signs a bill of purchase whereby he will theoretically own the one million acres of farmland during the Sabbatical Year.

Payment is postponed until the Sabbatical ends and the buyer is bound to "sell" the land back to the Jewish owners. He receives a small commission for going along with the elaborate deign.

Critics of Israel's union of religion and state call it a farce. But to religious Jews it is a vital process, for it enables them to work the land without fear of violating Biblical law.

The more orthodox Jews refuse to avail themselves of even this comfort. Some close their farms for a year and live off a kind of "Sabbatical fund."

One religious settlement in Central Israel, HafetzHaim, has employed modern technology to get through the Shnat Shmita. It grows plants in water to avoid using the land. Many desert farmers are copying the method.

Religious consumers, fearful that crops will overlap into the Shnat Shmita, turn to Arab farmers for part of the year rather than risk eating fruit and vegetables accidentally picked in violation of the law.

A special network of produce merchants operates in major religious communities and rabbis accompany the merchants to the Arab markets to make sure no fruit from Jewish-owned land is slipped into the orthodox Jew's kitchen.

"Apart from the Biblical aspect, agronomists have found that Shmita is physically good for the land," says Rabbi Aqiva Druk, spokesman of the religious affairs ministry. "It is enriched by a year of inaction."

Today, Rabbi Druk says, the majority of Israelis, largely non-observant of Jewish law, are unaware that they are going through a Sabbatical Year, so efficient are the loopholes.

A Rose Is A Rose--Is A Rose--Or Is It?

Roses in Full Bloom

If you own rose bushes and have a gardening spirit, you have the main ingredient for wine, vinegar, lotion, cologne or syrup or even tea. Roses also have medicinal uses as for curing wounds, coughs and sore throats, and even migraine headaches. Rose petals and rose hips found on any type of rose give the main ingredient for rose recipes.

That may well be. But if you've a little pioneering spirit and a few rose bushes around your garden, a rose can be wine or vinegar, lotion or cologne.

Our pioneer fathers planted roses as soon as they planted vegetables and herbs - and with as much practical forethought. The flowers added not only beauty but health to their lives.

Rose conserve was thought useful for palsy and constipation, rose hip syrup was given for coughs. Honey of roses was a salve for wounds and rose petal lotion was used as a gargle for sore throats. All these healing effects came from the kind of roses considered old-fashioned today.

If these claims seem extreme, think of the native Indian population who are said to have survived on rose hips during famines.

Warning: If you spray your roses with insecticide — or chemically fertilize them — don't use the roses in these recipes. It may be dangerous.)

Rose Petal Vinegar

Fill a glass bottle with fresh red rose petals. Heat white wine vinegar over them, filling the bottle. Stand the bottle in the sun for about two weeks. Strain. Recommended for fruit salads. (The pioneers used it for migraine headaches!)

Candied Rose Petals

Spread clean fresh rose petals on waxed paper. Do not let them touch. Using a fine paintbrush, coat each petal with egg white which has been very slightly thinned with water. Sprinkle generously with white sugar. Allow to dry. Store in layers in a tin with waxed paper between.

Rosehip Syrup

The pioneers who used roses and rosehips for tea or anything stumbled on something valuable: rosehips contain fantastic amounts of vitamins, especially vitamin C. Rosehips are the base of the bud after the petals have died. To make syrup used as flavoring wine, use ripe rosehips from plants which have not been sprayed or fertilized chemically. Mince about 1 lb. rose hips. Add to 3 cups boiling water. Boil then remove from heat, and allow to stand 15 minutes. Strain. Return liquid to pan and add 1½ cups boiling water. Let stand and strain into other juice. Boil liquid down to three cups. Add one-half cup sugar. Boil five minutes.

Rosehip Conserve

Cut and seed about one pound of rose hips. Pour boiling water over the rose hips and allow to stand until soft. Drain and sift through a sieve. Add an equal amount of sugar. Bottle.

Rose Hip Wine

6 oz. dried rose hips
8 oz. raisins
one campden tablet
one gallon hot water
one tsp yeast nutrient ½ oz. acid blend

three pounds sugar
wine yeast

Mix all ingredients except yeast in a large plastic container. Cover with plastic sheet. Add yeast when the mixture has cooled. Ferment for four to five days, stirring daily. Strain and syphon into gallon jug and attach a fermentation lock. Rack in three weeks and again in three months. Bottle when clear.

Remember not to use sprayed or fertilized roses for any recipes.

It's Grandma Kreger New Primitive Artist

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Magdalena Krueger and the late Grandma Moses have much in common, not least the fact that they both embarked on artistic careers late in life.

A 86, Magdalena has been painting for only 30 months and already her work is reflecting the attractive simplicity of the internationally famous American master of primitive art.

An avid gardener, Magdalena started painting to bring the vivid colors of her garden into her home. She draws her patterns freehand and transfers them onto silk, painting directly from the tube.

"I've never had an art lesson: I just paint for fun," says Magdalena, a white-haired great-grandmother. "I like to see flowers blooming in the garden—that's the place for them. I don't like to see them cut for indoor floral arrangements."

Thus, the only way she can bring her blossoming garden beside "is to decorate my walls with flower paintings," she says. "And I thought I may as well paint them myself."

Painting is only a part of her artistic flair. Her two late husbands were both carpenters and much of their craft rubbed off on Magdalena.

She has built her own bed, several pieces of lawn furniture and a wheelbarrow.

Probably her finest piece of woodcarving is a miniature grandfather clock, operated electrically, with musical chimes.

"It is the reflection of a youthful dream, she says. "I once saw a grandfather clock that chimed music on the hour. It's been my dream to make one."

Another hobby she pursues is woodcarving. She has completed several intricate pieces, including a colorful wood afghan for her chesterfield and a white spread for her hand-made bed.

Her primary love, inherited from country living, is her garden. During the summer, she has little time for anything but her flowers.

"I don't have time in the summer to paint my flowers," Magdalena says. "I'm too busy working among the original."

Before buying a freezer, remember that purchase and maintenance expenses can exceed savings on storage of bargain food, advises Consumers' Association of Canada. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Women Are Property on This British Isle

LONDON (Reuter) — British's most militant women's magazine, Spare Rib, has attacked a feudal approach to women on Sark, a tiny segment of the British Channel Islands.

The women liberation monthly announced an editorial campaign designed to bring the women of the island into the 20th century.

For more than four centuries, Sark women have been legally classified as chattels of their husbands.

"It's incredible," said Rosie Boycott, 22-year-old news editor of Spare Rib, whose seven-woman staff has offices just off Carnaby Street in the heart of London.

"Attitudes to women on Sark are completely feudal, that's the only possible word, and we're sending three reporters out there to bring back the story," Miss Boycott told Reuter.

She said things have hardly changed in Sark since the 14th century.

Spare Rib's campaign was sparked when its editors heard that Sark's parliament, officially known as the Chief Pleas, had shelved plans to do something about a property law for married women.

Miss Boycott snorted when told that Sark's hereditary feudal ruler, 89-year-old Dame Sibyl Hathaway, had not only proposed the investigation but backed sympathetically on the idea of an investigation.

"Simply not true, according to our information," Miss Boycott said.

"Just think of the irony. Here is this feudal island, ruled by a woman, and women in the mass have no rights at all."

On Sark there are no divorce or adoption laws. Legally, a wife owns nothing except trifling personal effects. Husbands are not only entitled to any money their partners earn, they can beat them—in moderation and without drawing blood—if the women misbehave.

John York, a settler from Britain heading a women's rights committee, called for changes allowing wives to dispose in their wills of assets such as money, investments or furniture.

York told Sark's Parliament there was no question of changes in Sark's ancient laws of inheritance. But defenders objected to any discussion.

Packed into the tiny school room that passes for the Sark Parliament's debating chamber, tourists listened in amazement as tempers flared.

Hilary Carre, clerk of the Parliament, asked snarkily: "What has a wife to will? My wife and I worked together for the things we have. These laws have worked well for 400 years."

Malcolm Robson, one of 40 landowner members of Parliament, said the laws may have been fine for four centuries, but they are not effective any longer.

"A man has it all his own way," he said. "He can play fast and loose and throw his wife into the garden if he wants to."

A motion to postpone debate was carried by 19 votes to 12, with Dame Sibyl supporting deferment.

One woman settler said Sark women do not really want reform.

"It's a matriarchal society," she explained. "It's the wives who have the business heads. They rule their husbands—so why change?"

The islands, with a population of just over 100,000, are the only portions of the ancient dukedom of Normandy still retained by the British Crown to which they were attached at the time of the Norman conquest of England in 1000.

Ann Landers

She Uses Two Phones

Dear Ann Landers: We took our advice three months ago and now we have a worse problem.

We gave our daughter her own telephone for her 16th birthday, as our neighbors certainly did solve the problem of her tying up the phone for hours. A whole new atmosphere of peace and harmony was restored by everyone—until last night.

My husband and I were out for the evening. He was expecting an important business call and tried to phone home to learn if it had come in. He tried for 40 minutes. The line was busy. He checked with the operator to see if the line was out of order. She said, "Sorry, sir, someone is talking."

He became upset, got in the car and drove home. There he found Betsy lying on our bed, yakking on our phone. He asked her why she didn't use her own phone. She said, "I was expecting an important call and I wanted to leave my line free. Now what do you suggest?—Displaced People

Dear People: Tell Betsy that if she uses your phone again for an outgoing call, hers will be taken out immediately,—and don't hesitate to do it. That's some brassy little girl you have there.

Dear Ann Landers: My only daughter is getting married soon. She has asked me to be the organist. I refused. She doesn't understand why I can't do it. She says, "All you have to do is read the music. I've tried to explain that the emotional conflict would be too much for me.

Also, can you tell me what the seating arrangement should be? Her father and I were divorced and we have both remarried. She lives with her father and his second wife.

I have not participated in any of the things a mother dreams of when her daughter gets married. I love her dearly and feel like an outsider. Please advise.—Mother

Dear Mother: You have omitted several facts that could help me make a good judgment. For example: How old was the girl when the divorce took place? Why did her father get custody? Is your relationship with your ex-husband and his wife friendly?

If you don't want to play the ding, she shouldn't insist. As for your having been left out of the wedding plans for daughter's wedding plans, I can't comment because I don't know the answers to those vital questions.

Dear Ann Landers: I see a lot of people are mad at you because you advocate the "forgive and forget" policy for certain unfaithful husbands.

Unfortunately, too few people understand the true nature of forgiveness. It doesn't mean the offender goes free. He often suffers a great deal. No man lives who has not made a mistake. We all know the warmth fills our hearts and the deep sense of gratitude when we have received badly and are forgiven.

Forgiveness can spell the difference between a life of bitterness and hate and a life of compassion and understanding. Being forgiven gives us the magnanimity to forgive those who wrong us. Your column teaches this beautiful generosity of the spirit and I, for one, want to thank you for it.—Been There Myself

Dear B. T.: We have all been there—if we'll only admit it. Forgiveness can be the most priceless gift of all, yet it costs nothing. Thank you for writing.

WITH AUSTRALIA IN MIND . . .

"A journey earned by personal planning, is a journey kept, as a blue-chip investment in effort." — Sydney Clark.

* * *

Today, Geoff Utley's friend and companion, Stephen Lee continues with an account of their travels enroute to Australia, by way of North Africa, India and Southeast Asia.

Steve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lee, 23 Lansdowne Drive, is a graduate of BCI, and attended MacMaster University as a Science student, before working for several years at the Ottawa Archives. He became interested, in the restoration of old documents and the near-forgotten art of book-binding. This interest he hopes to further by delving in various Australian archives.

The following is composed of much appreciated excerpts, from his letters to his parents who graciously share them with our readers:

Darjeeling, India, February 16, 1973

"We arrived in Calcutta by train. It is a seething city of over five million, out of which 95 per cent have to fight for an incredible battle each day to exist.

"One day I was walking do this narrow little street and I saw a girl with blond hair walking about ten yards ahead of me. She looked familiar, so I hurried along and caught up to her. It was a girl I went to BCI with and also dated a few times. We just stood and looked at each other and could hardly believe our eyes. She left Canada three years ago and has seen about the same number of countries as I have.

We got permission for one week in Darjeeling and one in Assam. In Darjeeling District we walked to the highest place called Tiger Hill "where they watched the sun rise." It was incredible to be in the mountains. I changed colors like a rainbow in the sun all day. There were about six huge ones over 20,000 feet, 40 miles from us and one was Mt. Everest; about 70 miles away."

Shillong in Assam, "we met some college students who have been giving us the royal treatment. And while at Kaziranda, March 29, "we have just returned from a week trekking in the mountains." At this point Bruce Brown another Belleville friend joined Geoff and Steve.

Rangoon, Burma, April 9, 1973.

"Rangoon is quite a city, clean and few signs of war-ravaged to India. Everyone wears sarongs, including the now. They are comfortable and cool. All the people smoke cigars. The women smoke the biggst ones, some an inch in diameter.

Pattaya, Thailand, April 25, 1973.

"Thailand has been great, except for the heat. It is the hottest month of the year, over 100 degrees every day. We flew into Bangkok, a huge city which completely overwhelmed us, at first. It is a modern city . . ."

Laang Prabang, Laos, May 2, 1973

"We have had quite an exciting time getting here from Thailand. When we left Fang, we went down to a tributary of the Mekong River and got on a boat going up the river for eight hours. The river was very shallow, full of rapids so they use long narrow boats (you sit in the bottom and the shaft of the motor is 8 feet long) the prop just goes under the water. They are about 25 feet long and four feet wide.

The river is surrounded by jungle, sometimes we shot through the rapids but if they were too bad we got out and walked through the jungle for 15 minutes. The driver would go through by himself and pick us up, down river.

When we arrived in Chaing Rai there were rumours about communist insurgents bothering the local hill tribes but everything seemed calm when we were there.

We next went up to a place on the Burmese border called Mai Sai. There is a river through the centre of the town dividing Thailand and Burma. We were not allowed in the Burmese side. That whole area in Burma (the Shan state) is run by a pseudo general who has an army of 1,500 men to protect the opium and heroin trade.

Oh Mother We Prayed....

Our story about one stout-hearted girl of 11 who was able to save the life of a curly-headed little Austrian boy of three who was drowning in a ditch has brought in several letters.

The little girl, Kim, is now back home in Hamilton. I have seen pictures of the little fellow she rescued, along with his four brothers, and they are a lovely family.

"Two little girls strayed from their home one day and were brought back to their mother by a stranger.

brought up in a Bible-believing home and were taught by their mother to pray whenever in trouble, that God would help them. On a lonely street it happened that the elder girl did not feel well and was not able to walk home. After some deliberation the children decided on prayer. Some time later an elderly man came by and took them home.

"Now the question: Was this happy outcome a lucky coincidence or was it an answer to prayer? The man himself seems to have the answer, giving his own side of his story to the surprised mother.

"As man, a manufacturer of writing materials, was at that particular time working at his office. While busily engaged at his desk, making out accounts, suddenly a great anxiety came over him - his eyes went blurred and he could not see the figures. He also had the impression that someone needed him.

"He goes on to say, 'I went out, looked up and down the street, but seeing no one went back to my desk and wrote a little. Presently the darkness was greater than before, and the impression stronger than before, that someone in the street needed me.

"Again I went out, looked up and down the street, walked a little way; puzzled to know what it meant. Was my hard work and were the cares of business driving me out of my wits? Unable to solve the mystery, I turned again to my shop and to my desk.

"This time my fingers refused to grasp the pen. I found myself unable to write a word or make a figure but the impression was stronger than ever on my mind that someone needed my help. A voice seemed to say, "Why don't you go out as I tell you? There is need of your help!

"This time I took my hat on going out, resolved to stay till I found out whether I was losing my senses or there was a duty for me to do. I walked some distance without seeing anyone, and was more and more puzzled, till I came opposite the children and found that there was indeed need of my help!

"As the man was about leaving the children's house, the younger girl had the courage to say: 'O Mother, we prayed!'

"Thus the mystery was solved."

Big Sisters Want Brothers

TORONTO (CP) — There is a movement in the Big Sisters organization to admit males.

Gordon Wolfe, 37, is the group's first male worker and when he takes over as director in the fall, he plans to start a pilot project for counselling boys as well as girls.

"Big Sister counseling services are primarily a youth service and if a girl comes into counselling we try to find out about her parents and family," he says.

Although the 60-year-old organization has served only females until this year, he believes there is an urgent need by counsel brothers and boys friends of female clients who seek help from Big Sisters.

He says youth counselling services must change and grow rapidly to cope with stresses felt by today's children.

GROW UP FASTER

"Today's 13-year-olds are doing what 16-year-olds were doing five years ago. They use drugs and have sexual experiences much earlier and the drinking age has been lowered.

Mr. Wolfe, who holds a master's degree in social work from University of Toronto, has worked with the Jewish Family and Child Service for six years.

He says conflict with parents is a major reason girls are referred to Big Sister associations' counselling service. The association assists girls between age 12 and 21 who are referred by school counsellors, children's aid services and frequently by their older sisters.

Mr. Wolfe says conflict between adolescents and children is a normal part of growing up but frequent battles at home are a danger signal.

"If there's a battle every time the child walks into the house he begins to feel that life is just one long feud."

The group employs 20 full-time professional social workers, psychiatrists and psychologists in counselling services.

Canadian Is Designing Mars Testing Device

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian space scientists is working overtime on an sophisticated instrument that will check for life on Mars when the United States' Viking spacecraft blasts off in 1975.

Prof. Barry French of the Institute for Aerospace Studies, University of Toronto, says research and testing is gathering final momentum to perfect a mass spectrometer that will enter the atmosphere of the red planet.

"We are looking for signs of liquid water on Mars, in the continuing search for life beyond this planet," he said. "Our instrument will be able to measure any traces of oxygen, nitrogen or other vital gases in the Martian atmosphere."

The Viking space vehicle, scheduled to land on Mars a year after take-off in 1975, will rely on its Canadian components to analyse atmospheric gases during the final five minutes before landing.

Prof. French said this critical period will have its spectrometer hurtling through Martian air at three miles a second. Never before have space scientists been able to measure the chemical composition of air travelling at such speed, he added.

A simulation chamber which has been in operation here for six months at a branch of the university has been subjected to extremes that are unlikely even on Mars.

Gases and water vapor have been forced into a vacuum chamber at speeds surpassing three miles a second and the mass spectrometer has successfully identified and analysed them, he said.

If the Viking spacecraft succeeds in making a soft landing, findings are expected to broaden the startling discoveries of the Mariner Nine mission which orbited Mars in 1971.

Mariner discovered four large volcanic mountains, larger than anything on earth, and led scientists to speculate that Mars is just starting to heat up inside and that volcanic action can soon be expected on its surface.

Dust storms impeded the spectrometric analysis of the Mariner vehicle, Prof. French explained, but the Viking instrument has been designed to sample air molecules undisturbed either by dust storms or by motion of the spacecraft.

In his latest contract with the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Prof. French received $74,000 to test the high-speed impact of gases on the spectrometer in the simulation chamber.

The spectrometer itself is being manufactured in the U.S., following the specifications of the Canadian scientist and his American colleague, Prof. Allan Nier of the University of Minnesota.

If all goes as planned, future space exploration will use the Canadian spectrometer to analyze the content of comet tails.

Prof. French said he hopes plans will materialize to shoot a spacecraft into the tails of comets due to sweep close to the solar system in 1978, 1983 and 1986.

"These comets are deep-frozen remnants from the formation of the solar system and their chemical composition could unlock the origin of the solar system."

Curb Pouring - - - Without Forms

Jerry Catenacci, Toronto contractor, is seen at controls of his sophisticated $70,000 road machine which extrudes concrete curbing without use of forms. Premix concrete is poured into the front and the finished curb is pushed out the rear as the machine passes along the street.

Machine Cuts Labor

Street Work Automated

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Instant concrete curbing and gutters — and all without the use of construction forms.

That is the hard-to-believe mechanical wizardry of a newly developed road — making machine now making its Belleville operational debut.

The machine — known in the road building trade as the "Easy Pour" — lays concrete curbing at the rate of 10 feet per minute and does it all automatically.

The machine was at work last week on Dundas Street West, where street reconstruction and widening by McFarland Construction is heading toward completion.

On Wednesday of this week it went to work on Sidney Street, where reconstruction and widening to four lanes is being carried out by Cobourg Construction.

Introduced in Canada only last year, the machine at work in Belleville is owned by Toronto contractor Jerry Catenacci, who does curb laying across Canada on a subcontract basis.

When he is through in Belleville he will load his machines on a float truck for transfer to Saint John, NB, where he has another contract.

The big feature of the $70,000 machines is that they abolish form construction of the save up to 90 percent in labor costs.

Pre-mix concrete is dumped into a front - end hopper and instead of being extruded out behind.

The machines can be fitted either for preparing the base for curbing or laying curbing on the base. Catenacci prefers to use the two pieces of equipment for one special operation.

"It saves changing back and forth," he says.

Although relatively unimpressive in appearance the curb laying machines are nevertheless packed with sophisticated electronic and hydraulic equipment.

The machines are completely automatic and are even self steering.

First, a slender rope guideline is set up along the path where the curb is to be poured.

Sensors on the machine follow along the rope guideline, and through a system of electronics, operate hydraulic equipment, which automatically steer the machine and keep it level.

A pre-mix concrete truck travels along beside the machine keeping its hopper filled with concrete.

The speed of the curb laying machine is governed by how fast it can be supplied with pre-mix. The machine can actually operate faster than it can be supplied with concrete.

Standard mix concrete is used in the operation out the high pressure with which it is extruded makes forms unnecessary.

After the machine passes the only work needed is brush finishing of the soft concrete to give it a smoother finish, and filling in of sections left for the installation of storm sewer catch basins.

A three man crew follows along — usually the next day — to hand set the catch basin covers.

Even the driveway depressions are set automatically by the curb laying machine and manoeuvering around corners at intersections poses no problem. The machine simply follows along the rope guideline.

The curb-laying machines are built in South Dakota and supercede an earlier caterpiller track-equipped machine which has now been made largely obsolete.

Record Run on City Water As Weather Stays Hot, Dry

Hot and dry July weather, together with the demands of serving a growing population, have pushed daily city water requirements to an all-time record.

James Scriven, city water filtration plant manager, reports that daily water consumption has been constantly over eight million gallons throughout July with the highest one Friday passage being at 8,840,000 gallons.

"It's the hottest, purpose we have ever had," he said.

Reason for the high consumption is a combination of the hot and dry weather, together with the fact that many people are using hoses to water parched lawns.

However, Mr. Scriven said the plant was not being pushed for filtered water as it has a capacity of up to 12 million gallons per day.

Also, with the new 2.5 million gallon underground storage tank in the Herchimer Ave.-Symington Street area, the city's water system now has a much greater storage capacity.

With the elevated tank on the East Hill behind Tabernacle United Church and the underground tank at the plant, the system now has a storage capacity of approximately 4.5 million gallons, or more than half of one day's consumption requirement.

The new underground storage tank in the east end of the city went into service in the spring.

Remote controlled pumps allow plant personnel to pump water from this new facility to serve the east area of the city.

The new storage tank, along with the trunk mains built in the newly laid east end has made it possible for the filtration plant to maintain a fairly even water pressure of about 80 pounds in all parts of the city, it was stated.

Family Musical Team Booked for Exhibition

PICTON — A Prince Edward County brother and sister combination that has been booked to perform next month at the Quinte Exhibition.

Brenda and Stephen Wilson of Hillier will present a 30 - minute performance daily from the CJBQ bandshell. It will be broadcast over the radio station beginning at 6.30 p.m. on August 7.

Terry Sprague of Big Island, agent for the duo, notes that the singers and their band were hired by the Belleville Merchants, one of whom had seen them perform at a local dance earlier in the year.

The crowd was both receptive and spontaneous, thoroughly enjoying itself despite the scorching afternoon heat," says Mr. Sprague.

Exhibition's Clown at Playgrounds

The big red nose of Conko, the Conklin Clown, will be poking about at the playgrounds in Belleville Monday. Reports have it that if any youngster reaches up and squeezes it, it'll squeak.

However, unless the clown bends down to pet a head or tell a joke, reaching up to Conko's eight foot 6 inches could be difficult for toddlers.

Although no itinerary is set positively for his playground tour, Albert Elliott, public relations director for the Quinte Exhibition, said Conko will be visiting Hastings Manor later Monday evening.

The Conklin Hickory clown comes to Belleville on a promotion jaunt prior to taking up residence in Conko's House during the Exhibition August 8-11.

Director Appointed

Dental Health Program Now Being Organized

The preventive dental program recently approved by Hastings and Prince Edward counties health board already has a director appointed and organizing the service.

He is Dr. Dennis A. Warwick, of Cobourg, who also is director of public dental services for a wide area of central Ontario that includes Victoria, Haliburton, Northumberland and Durham counties.

Dr. Warwick's additional assignment in the two Quinte counties calls for organizing a program for 22,500 school students in 76 elementary schools. Certain services also will be offered in secondary schools as the program progresses.

In his first few months — since the opening of the school term in September to the end of the year — some classroom education will be carried out, information dispensed to parents and statistics collected.

As it gathers momentum the program will see regular instructions on dental health, fluoride brushing and other preventive measures.

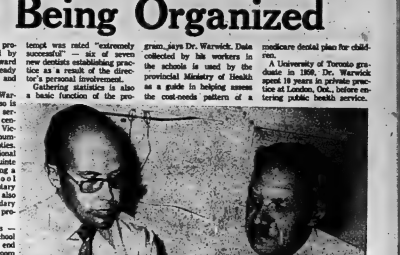
Like other areas of preventive medicine, results of the service may not be immediately apparent, cautions Dr. Warwick. But when they do emerge they can be fairly dramatic.

In Victoria County when he first launched the dental care program three years ago, statistics showed only 36 per cent of youngsters examined without tooth decay. Last year this had multiplied to 48 per cent.

The need for such services in Ontario is emphasized by the fact only 40 per cent of the population see a dentist each year, says Dr. Warwick.

Education of adults is a basic aspect of the program in bringing home to parents the importance of dental health care for the young and the need to budget for such attention, says Dr. Warwick. At least 80 per cent of decay problems can be prevented if easily-available measures are taken, he says. These include use of fluoride toothpaste and proper dietary habits. Communities with fluoridated water — like Belleville — provide an automatic 65 per cent of decay prevention.

About 15 per cent of children in urgent need of dental care come from families under financial stress, Dr. Warwick says.



There has been one local attempt made to offset this problem under the auspices of the program in Northumberland, The Kiwanis Club of Cobourg began providing limited dental care for area families on financial distress in March 1932. Since that time 23 children have received it.

Other projects stemming from the program to date include the supply of mouth guards at cost — about $4 — to hush school athletes.

In the past year Dr. Warwick also worked to attract new dentists into the area serviced by his program. The attempt was rated "extremely successful" — six of seven new dentists establishing practice as a result of the director's personal involvement.

Gathering statistics is also a basic function of the program, says Dr. Warwick. Data collected by his workers in the schools is used by the provincial Ministry of Health as a guide in helping assess the cost-needs pattern of a medicare dental plan for children.

A University of Toronto graduate in 1930, Dr. Warwick spent 18 years in private practice at London, Ont., before entering public health service.

Groundwork Begins

Dr. Dennis A. Warrick, newly-appointed director of schools dental care program in Hastings and Prince Edward counties, discusses plans with area public health officer Dr. C. R. Link. Program will begin in fall and will take about a year to achieve maximum working goals, estimates director.

Water Quality Improves

BANCROFT — The Ministry of the Environment reports an improvement in the water quality of Tait Lake at L'Amable, south of here.

Some time ago Dungannon township council, fearing robbins from septic tanks on the shores of the lake, reported its concern to the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

The ministry study involved collection of information on water clarity and algae in the lake.

"Excellent" clarity conditions exist showing a 50 per cent improvement over last year, said the ministry. A "considerable" reduction of algae also was reported.

In some Ontario lakes, inputs of phosphorus, nitrogen and other dissolved materials have fed excessive algae and water plants. Tait in turn has deteriorated recreation potential.

But, said the ministry, there is "little evidence of water quality problems of this type in Tait Lake".

County Home: Some Cautions

By MARG HAYLOCK

PICTON — Prince Edward county council has pared almost $60,000 from the estimate of $2,000,000 for construction of a new county home for the aged to win a nod from the provincial government.

To bring expenditures in line with the cost figure originally estimated, council has recommended a reduction in the size of the home from 100, to 80 beds. Other suggested economies include the elimination of a greenhouse, six sun rooms and one of two elevators.

The present driveway of the home would be used instead of construction of a new road. The community centre area also would be cut in size.

When tenders for the county home were opened this month the lowest was that of Kowsey Construction Company Ltd. at $1,704,000.

The ministry of social services has frowned on this figure as being approximately $400,000 over budget.

At the July session of county council it was pointed out by one mover, that the construction costs of the home are being increased because of the many wings projecting from a central core.

This apparent extravagance has been explained, however, as a necessary step in preventing the building from resembling an institution.

Even the name of the new building will be changed from "County Home" to County Home for the Aged to something better suited to this modern facility.

The need for a new county home has been stressed in numerous grand jury reports. The building now in use was constructed in 1905 and in the event of fire it could be hazardous to the patients residential from the two-storey building.

County council has shown concern for Prince Edward's senior citizens and has worked commendably towards a new home for the aged.

The proposed structure, however, will not be a simple and comfortable building for the elderly can enjoy living at a slackened pace. It has been designed as a hospital of super-sanctuary that inevitably will cost the ratepayer money.

It is interesting to note that six sun rooms will be eliminated in the new plan. If the size of the home had been cut in size it is fair to assume tha, these six sun rooms with others would have been deemed necessary for 100 residents. This in simple mathematics, means that there would have been at least one sun room for every 17 persons.

The county home is situated on rolling lawns where small vegetable and flower gardens could easily be started. The proposed new building included a greenhouse in spite of the facilities already available.

Since growing old is a recognized hazard of birth it seems difficult to understand why the government should insist on a home for the aged that does not look like a home for the aged.

It may be costing the ratepayer substantially more to preserve the illusion that the county home is a resort for senior citizens but never mind, it is economy.

The elderly should not be railroaded into a short-surroundings. They are entitled to modern rooms, recreation, programs and other facilities.

The proposed new home, however, will offer conveniences that luxuries most of these senior citizens never enjoyed, in their own homes in their youth. Greenhouses are not commonly found in back yards.

Prince Edward's new home for the aged hopefully will couple consideration for the senior citizen's comforts with concern for Prince Edward's tax bill.

Two Hurt In Crash During Rain

TWEED — Two people were hurt Friday in a one-vehicle accident on Highway 62 about 25 miles north of Madoc during a heavy rainfall when a car pulled off the roadway and ran into a rockcut.

Police said Arthur T. Gibbs, 33, of R.R4, Belleville tried to pull off the highway but ran into the rockcut before the vehicle stopped.

Mr. Gibbs was treated at Belleville General Hospital for a rib injury, while Ernest Jenkinson, of Brantford, a 19-year-old hi chbiker riding in the front seat had his leg cut when it jammed against the glove compartment door which flew open as a result of the impact. Mr. Jenkinson was treated at Bancroft Red Cross Hospital.

Provincial police said Miss Walker was westbound on the 13th. concession of Rawdon township north of Bonarlaw when on a curve her car was in collision with the eastbound car driven by Mr. Smith.

Neither driver was injured but property damage to the two vehicles totalled about $800.

Campers Crowd Parks

TWEED (Special) — Camping sites at provincial parks on holiday stretches of Highway 7 were expected to be filled by Friday afternoon, ministry of natural resources reported.

Bon Echo camp was full Thursday night, as was Algonquin Park. Only sites available Friday morning at Black Lake and 50 at Silver Lake. All sites in the last two named parks were expected to be taken by Friday afternoon or evening.

Napanee Mall Is Under Way

Construction has commenced on a $3-million enclosed shopping mall to be built west of Highway 41 on Centre St., north of Napanee.

Completion of the project is scheduled for March of 1933, with some of the stores expected to open by January 15.

Town council earlier this month assured the developers that a 13-inch water main would be installed along Highway 41 to meet the expanded requirements of the shopping mall.

Boy Struck By Car

Allan Dawson, 10, of R#1, Carrying Place, suffered bruises to his face and minor chest injuries when struck by a car while walking along the Redmerville Road Friday.

He was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Driver of the car was Allan Henry Jones, 32, of R#1, Carrying Place, said Picton Provincial Police. The accident occurred three miles west of Redmerville, about 4 p.m.

Green Poor Putts Into Open Lead

STE. JULIE DE VERCHERES, Que. (CP) — Hubert Green, a native of Birmingham, Ala. who now plays his golf out of Florida, had putting miseries in Friday's second round of the 73-hole, $175,000 Canadian Open Golf championship, but wound up tied for first place with Forrest Fezler of San Jose, Calif.

"I putted miserably—to be where I am, I could have putted much better," Green said.

Green and Fezler had six under-par, two-round totals of 138 over the par 72, 6,966-yard Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club course in their search for the $35,000 first prize money.

Bobby Mitchell, one stroke back with 139, could have had sole possession of first spot had he not hit a triple bogey seven on the par-four, 445 yard 18th.

Mitchell skipped through the front nine with a four-under 33 and added his fifth birdie on the 325-yard 10th before his disaster.

Hale Irwin, who set a course record 65 in Thursday's opening round while looking for his first tour victory this year, and English Open champion Tom Weiskopf were two strokes behind the leaders at 140—four under.

Like most of the leaders—with the exception of Green—Irwin had trouble with the gusty wind conditions that prevailed throughout most of the day.

"I didn't play well from the start today and I seemed to hit a lot of 'flyers' to the wind," Irwin said after that it took him 75 strokes to get around in comparison to his opening round 65.

On the ninth—his 18th hole—Irwin's third shot flew over the green, but a male spectator caught the ball back t.. within 15 feet of the pin. Irwin had to drop the ball off the course and then sank a 45-foot chip shot for his par.

Seven golfers—including Lee Trevino of the U.S. and Bruce Crampton of Australia—were bunched at 141. Others there were Americans Pete Moran, Bob Lunn and Australian Graham Marsh.

Eight Canadians survived the cut from 31 starters. The top man was Bob Rose of Hamilton, Ont., who won more than $5,000 on the Florida winter circuit last year. He had a par 144.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., and Ken Vessling of Brampton, Ont., had 146; Phil Giroux of Montreal carried 147, while Ben Kern of Toronto, Gary Bowerman of Belleville, Ont., John Morgan of Victoria, B.C., and amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., all had 148. Cowan was the only nonprofessional to survive the cut.

Defending champion Gay Brewer, along with South African's Gary Player and U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller failed to make the cut, as did Canada's top pro on the tour—George Knudson of Toronto.

Knudson ended when his second shot on the eighth hole struck a woman spectator on the head. Knudson was right over par at the time. The woman was not injured.

Despite intermittent thunder claps throughout the afternoon, no rain fell on the course during play. Attendance was 14,958.

Knudson Out

STE. JULIE DE VERCHERES, Que. (AP) — Misfortune continued to dog George Knudson Friday.

The Toronto golfer withdrew at the eighth hole during second-round play of the $175,000 Canadian open golf championship with a pain in his chest and on the hole flew over the green and struck a woman spectator on the head.

The spectator was not injured seriously and was taken to the clubhouse of the Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club for medical examination and released by the doctor there.

Knudson was reported "as shook up" by the incident as he told his caddy to go and pick up the ball, thus eliminating himself from the event. He had fired a two-over-par 74 in Thursday's opening round.

Knudson' Canada's top pro on the tour, broke a bone in his right foot two weeks ago in an accident in his suburban Toronto home. He limped through Wednesday's practice round and Thursday's initial 18 wearing his regular size 9½ shoe on his left foot and an 11½ size on the injured foot.

He stands 52nd on the tour money list with earnings of $21,374 this season.

Sun Shines For Pierre

WINNIPEG (CP) — The sun finally came out at the Canadian closed tennis championships Friday but it couldn't outshine the smile of Rejean Genoh.

The 20-year-old Lorettieville, Que., player provided the only upset of the last three days, beating sixth-seeded Pierre Lamarche of Montreal 6-3, 7-5.

The win moved the junior Davis Cup champion into the quarter-finals of the men's singles against Don McCormick of Victoria.

Only two other singles matches were played Friday: Peter Burwash of Toronto beat Glen Bradshaw of Victoria 6-4, 6-2 and Shirley Haig of Edmonton whipped Pam Gollish of Toronto 6-1, 6-2.

Other play was restricted to doubles as officials caught up on play lost because of rain Thursday.

Men's, women's and mixed doubles all moved into the finals with the last matches played under the lights at the Winnipeg Canoe Club.

Janice Tindle of Vancouver, the top-seeded woman, played five matches and McCormick four, but the pair had enough left to move into the mixed final with a 6-2, 6-1 win over Eleanor O'Gorman and Bob Moffat of Winnipeg.

In the other semi-final, Bob Bantley teamed with his brother Tony's wife, Stephanie, to beat Andree Martin of Montreal and Jean Prevost of Morin Heights, Que., 7-4, 7-5.

In the women's doubles, to will be Tindle and Susan Stone of Vancouver against Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Andree Martin of Montreal.

Burwash, the 1971 champion, had little trouble beating Bradshaw despite the close opening set score.

Calgary Has Surprise, Axe Goes to Keeling

Calgary Stampeders, preparing for the forthcoming Canadian Football League season, had a few surprises Friday as they trimmed their roster to the 22-man player limit.

Getting the axe just before the nine teams reached the midnight Friday night deadline were four Eastern transfers left over from the 1971 Grey Cup champions.

Quarterback Jerry Keeling, ineffective in four pre-season games, was the big surprise although it became apparent this week he was expendable when Calgary reacquired Pete Liske from the National Football League.

Injuries plagued three other former all-stars who were released—tight end Herm Harrison, defensive end Craig Koissan and offensive end Herb Schumann.

There were several other surprises around the league as teams cut back for the season opener. Tuesday when Toronto Argonauts visit Ottawa Roughriders in an Eastern pre-season game and two Western Conference fixtures—Edmonton Eskimos at Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders at Vancouver British Columbia Lions—are held.

Ottawa reached the limit of 17 Canadians and 15 imports by cutting guard Roger Perdrix, a seven-year veteran, tight end Nick Russell of St. Catharines, defensive end Bob Kunnitz of Wyandotte, Mich., were third. The winning time was 6:37.

In the 135-pounders from St. Catharines took an early lead in the five-boat final and never looked back. After 1,000 metres they were a length in front and sat cut 1½ lengths over another St. Catharines entry at the finish. The winners were timed in 5:59.7. Brockville Rowing Club was third.

In a separate event Friday, the lead changed hands three times before Canada, repre-

St. Catharines on Steady Course

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Although rowing clubs from Atlanta to the Pacific have claimed victories during the second day of the 81st Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, the host St. Catharines crews maintained a steady course Friday to enter today's competition with a formidable 83-point lead.

St. Catharines finished the day with 114 points, compared with 31 for Minnesota Rowing Club which was second on the strength of its victory in the junior 155-pound eight.

While St. Catharines continued its relentless pursuit of its 12th consecutive championship, Wyandotte, Mich., Boat Club and Buffalo West Sides moved into a tie for third position with 25 points each.

Mic-Mac Athletic Club of Dartmouth, N.S., won the junior 145-pound four and completed the day in a five-way tie for fifth with Lachine Rowing Club, Hamilton Leanders, Detroit Boat Club and Minnesota Boat Club of St. Paul.

The Vancouver club took the junior four and its victory and the one by Mic-Mac, were the first for them at Henley.

St. Catharines captured the junior 135-pound eights.

The Dartmouth lightweights were two lengths in front of Belmont, Mass., at the gun with Minnesota in third. The smoothstroking easterners covered the wind-whipped course in 6:19.3 to become the first Maritime crew to win an event at the Henley.

Vancouver's lightweights, the junior four, won a four-length decision over the Leanders, with Newport Beach, Calif., rowing third.

The junior single was won by Chris Allsop, 18-year-old sculler from the Vancouver Rowing Association of Hickxville, N.Y. He won by a deck over Pat Dolan of Minnesota in 7:00.1, over the 2,000 metres of choppy water. Mike Dolan, the University of Victoria was third.

Dennis Normile paired with Stephen Shaul of Philadelphia's Malta Boat Club to win the junior 145-pound double by half a length over Brian Thorne and Nick Russell of St. Catharines, the North American lightweight repechage by defeating Mexico by a half length.

The Canadians, stroked by Jim Marino, covered the 2,000 metres in 5:57.7 and entered the final against a United States crew today.

The eventual winner will compete in a special lightweight exhibition at the European Rowing Championships in Moscow next month. The Canadians finished second to the United States Thursday while Mexico was third.

In Friday's race, Canada began to pull out at the 1,800 metre mark and clinched the result when the Mexican boat popped an oar.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals have traded infielder Ed Crosby to Cincinnati Reds for right-handed pitcher Ken Sprague in a National League baseball waiver deal. The veteran left-hander also sustained abrasions of the left ear canal when he was felled by a drive off the bat of Chris Chambliss.

McNally didn't report to Memorial Stadium for Friday's twi-nighter against the Indians, but told Manager Earl Weaver by telephone that he felt fine. Another examination is scheduled on Monday.

"Goodbye Nick"

Good guy Nick DeCarlo gets the heave-ho from despicable villians Eric the Animal and the Wolfman in Friday night's featured bout of professional wrestling, the seven man battle royale. Big Angelo Mosca was a little late in arriving but paid his respects to the Animal anyway. Eric had the eventual last laugh however surviving the seven man brawl to win the $1,000 prize money.

Behind The Mutuel Scene

By AL TESWORTH
Sports Staff

Did you ever wonder what it looked like in the mutuels booth on a racing night? We thought you might like to take a look, and with the co-operation of Track manager Ed Gowsell and Mutuel Manager Drury Denyes we will explain what goes on in the "back room" while the patrons of the track are outside betting their money.

The money is first bet by the race fan he start the works in motion. After the race has been started the total bet on each horse is calculated. As the results of the race are made available, the winning payoffs are calculated. This is done by special business machines which automatically take into consideration the 16.6 percent of every dollar taken out for taxes, both federal and provincial, and the track's share of the money bet.

It is to be noted that these calculations are done under close scrutiny of Department of Agriculture supervisors who are experts in the field. The prices are computed twice, separately to insure proper figures are arrived at. The prices are then double checked against each other to again make sure everything checks.

The prices are then given to the cashiers, who pay the amount for the particular horse bet on back to the bettors.

It should also be noted that all prices are calculated in separate pools, including the feature type bet. The payoff price is arrived at by taking the amount bet on each horse after the 10.6 percent is removed, and dividing it equally among the winning ticket holders on that particular event.

This tells the tale on sometimes what appear to be strange payoffs. For example in the fifth race last night, Dundee Clair had a whopping payoff of 17.50. The Quinella in the same race paid only 19.30, with the sum of many inquiring remarks from the patrons. It is explained how even, in the separate pool system.

Odds are another thing which most people do not really understand. The odds given on the tote board are merely a comparison of the winning money currently bet on a horse as compared to the winning money currently bet on the other horses in the race.

It is to be noted here also that the odds that you see before you are for the win pool only. The other odds are not posted.

Now that you know a little of what happens in the processing of your $2, aren't you glad that all you have to do is pick the winner?

Tykes In Tournament

Officials of the Belleville Elliott Motors Pontiac and Buick Up's baseball squad learned Friday that the team has been accepted in the Dorchester Tournament.

The Elliott Motors youngsters made their first tourney start at 10 o'clock this morning and are scheduled to see action again at 4 p.m. today.

Everyone Gets Into the Act

Wemp Double Winner At Belleville Oval

Henrietta Sue was clocked in a time of 2:13.1 to record a new best for this year while Dorothy Rick led the field for the-entire distance in the feature, in recording a 2:09.1 win.

In the first race Quinella Frank Wofeam combined with Wee Rythm for a $36.80 payoff.

In the fifth race Quinella, the combination of three and two, Norden Clair and Carman Chuck returned $19.20.

Race No. 1 — Purse $2600.00 — Frank Wofeam, J. Cochrane, 748, 470, 270; Wee Rhythm, W. Demaillie, 540, 360; Custer Byrd, A. Gallagher, 270; Time: 2:12.1; Quinella: Amie Super Indian, Fresco Demont. Time: 2:16.4, Quinella 7 and 3 paid $36.80.

Parent to Flyers

Favell to Join Maple Leafs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Keith Allen, general manager of Philadelphia Flyers, received a telegram on Thursday night from Jim Gregory, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs.

"Welt take Favell," Allen said Gregory informed him.

So, the Flyers and Leafs completed a National Hockey League deal that took five months and boiled down to a trade of old friends. Bernie Parent for Doug Favell, both Allen said the Flyers had a goalie.

given the Maple Leafs two options in exchange for Parent. Toronto could have taken draft choices or Favell. The Leafs chose the veteran netminder.

"I tried to encourage him (Gregory) to go the other route, but the fak Toronto needed something right now rather than a future," Allen said.

The deal started last spring after Parent, the first NHL Toronto and Parent couldn't player to jump to the new circuit in terms, since the rookie World Hockey Association, quit didn't want to play for the the new league's Philadelphia Toronto to the Flyers Flyers in a contract hassle. He Favell is still held his N HL and jumped from Toronto, so rights.

gave the Flyers a No. 2 pick and the right to try and sign Parent. The agreement was that if Parent agreed to play for Philadelphia, Toronto would get another player or players.

The Flyers signed Parent last month and gave Toronto the additional options. Gregory had until August to make up his mind and Favell was it.

Bench Provides Lucky Charm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Francisco Giants' Ron Bryant has a lucky charm in his bench and sits it on the bench when he pitches. Tadpie Spinks of St. Louis Cardinals got a lot of mileage out of a stuffed go-rilla last season.

But Cincinnati Reds' pitcher Jack Billingham, has the best National League charm of all—Johnny Bench.

"I don't know what we have going, but I hope he keeps it up," Billingham said Friday after Bench knocked in six runs a bases-loaded walk in the Reds' 13-3 rout of Atlanta Braves.

With Bench doing his thing, Billingham scattered five hits for his 18th victory, tying Bryant for the league lead.

Bench has slugged six of his 20 homers and picked up 35 of his 77 RBI in games Billingham has started.

Elsewhere, New York Mets slowed down St. Louis 2-1 behind Tom Seaver, Pittsburgh Pirates nailed Chicago Cubs 10-9, Houston Astros stopped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, San Diego Padres trimmed San Francisco 6-3 and Montreal Expos rallied to nip Philadelphia Phillies 8-4.

The Reds, who moved to within five games of West Division leading Los Angeles, are in San Diego tonight while the Dodgers entertain San Francisco.

In other games, Philadelphia is at Pittsburgh, St. Louis at Chicago, Montreal at New York and Atlanta at Houston.

The Philadelphia-Pittsburgh, St. Louis-Chicago and Cincinnati-San Diego meetings Sunday are twin-bills with Montreal and New York, Los Angeles and Los Angeles and Atlanta at Houston completing the schedule.

A full slate of games Monday sends Montreal in New York, Philadelphia at Pittsburgh, St. Louis at Chicago, Los Angeles at Atlanta at Houston, the Dodgers at home to San Francisco and Cincinnati at San Diego.

Mets' Rusty Staub's two-out double on a 3-0 pitch snapped a tie in the sixth inning. Staub's drive off loser Rick Wise actually was aimed against the right field wall by Bernie Carbo, but he dropped it as he hit the fence.

A two-run homer by Richie Zisk and two-run singles by Al Oliver and Manny Sanguillen keyed a 12-hit Pirate attack against slumping Chicago.

The Cubs, who led the division from May 9 through July 31, have lost 17 of their 23 games this month.

Roger Metzger's two-out triple capped a three-run fifth inning as Houston came from behind to cut the Dodgers' lead in the West.

Dave Roberts' tie-breaking single off Juan Marichal highlighted a seven-run sixth inning that enabled the Padres to end a seven-game losing streak and pinch hitter Larry Lintz stole second and pinch hitter Hal Lanier doubled for one run. Ron Hunt's single and Jorgensen's triple turned the game around.

Palmer's No-Hit Flirt Fails

Baltimore Orioles' Jim Palmer flirted with the second no-hitter of his baseball career for the third time this season Friday night, and, for the third time, he came away without the elusive masterpiece.

George Hendrick's leadoff single in the eighth inning was the only hit Cleveland managed against the Orioles' ace with Palmer pitching Baltimore to a 9-0 romp over the Indians in the first half of a doubleheader sweep. The Orioles also tople the second game 5-2 and moved to within 1½ games of first place New York Yankees in the American League East.

In the West, Kansas City Royals came from behind to tie the score in the last of the ninth inning and then pushed across the winning run on Carl Taylor's single in the 10th to beat Chicago White Sox 3-1. The victory edged the Royals to within one-half game of first place Oakland A's.

In other games Friday, the Yankees rallied twice to overtake Milwaukee Brewers 7-6, Minnesota Twins beat Oakland 8-2, Texas Rangers tripped California Angels 5-3 and Detroit Tigers defeated Boston Red Sox 7-1.

The Orioles entertain Detroit at three more games—today, Sunday and Monday. In other Saturday contests, the West is at Milwaukee, Minnesota at Kansas City, Texas at Oakland, California at Cleveland and Chicago in Minnesota.

Four doubleheaders go on Sunday—Baltimore at Detroit, New York at Milwaukee, California at Kansas City and Texas at Oakland—with Chicago in Minnesota for the other single game.

Palmer mowed down the Indians in order in the first seven innings but Hendrick ended his bid for a second no-hitter with a single up the middle opening the eighth.

Leadoff batter Tommy Davis gave Palmer plenty of batting support in the opener, when behind to open rule with two singles and a double.

In the second game, Andy Etchebarren hit a three-run double and Cleveland reliever Steve Johnson contributed a two-run throwing error, helping the Orioles complete the sweep. Steve Busby pitched a four-hitter and the Royals came from behind to overtake the White Sox. Freddie Patek walked, stole second and took home on Taylor's two-out single in the 10th with the winning

Something for Everyone in CFL West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It appears that everyone will have something going for him in the Western Football Conference in 1973.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers will have Jim Spavital, an "I-always-think-positive" coach; Edmonton Eskimos, "the best running game in the country;" Saskatchewan Roughriders, an exciting offence directed by old Stampeders, passing sensation Peahe Lambert and British Columbia Lions, "a great leader" in Don Moorhead.

The unknown when the regular season opens Tuesday, July 31—Edmonton is at Winnipeg and Saskatchewan at B.C.—is what the combinations will be able to accomplish with the talent on hand.

Spavital is convinced that the Blue Bombers "will have a better offence than last year" despite the absence of halfback Mack Herron and wide receiver Jim Thorpe.

Herron and Thorpe, key figures in a potent offence that carried Winnipeg to first place last year, were told they were no longer welcome in the Blue Bombers camp after appearing to start a couple of contracts hassles on drug-possession charges.

Their departure forced Spavital to scramble for a new set of running backs—Gary Dixon from the University of Nebraska and Indiana State's Willie Lee were top prospects—but he figures the Blue Bombers will survive on the strength of last season's solid defence.

"We'll throw more than anyone else and we'll get more yards than anyone else," Spavital said. Winnipeg has a pair quarterback Don Jonas, with newcomer Charlie Collins, a flanker from Kansas State, Paul Williams, Pete Ribbins, Bob Kraemer and Bob Zaroski as targets for his passes. Williams will move from defence to offence to fill Thorpe's position.

We have the same people back and they're all a year better."

The Eskimos, second-place finishers in 1972, have an abundance of fullbacks and halfbacks and, in the opinion of Jack Gotta, coach of Ottawa Roughriders, "the best running game in the country."

"Guys like Roy Bell and Gene Foster run inside, they run hard and they run over people. They don't do much fancy, but they work on that running and outsmart you with short passing."

Tom Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmerman are back to handle the passing and still have receivers George McGowan, Bobby Taylor and Bryan Wells to throw to.

Foster, a seven-year veteran of the National Football League who strained an Achilles tendon in the pre-season, will be "completely ready" for 1973—he's going after the all-time rushing record and "I'm not going to let anything stop me from getting it this year." The single-season record is 1,794 yards, set in 1961 by Calgary's Earl Lunsford.

Tom Forrant who is in his first year with us but he'll be close to as good as Evansben with experience."

Lebew insist that Liske still has to make the club, and that means beating out Jerry Keeling and Jim Lindsey.

The biggest hole coach Jim Donovan must fill of the Stampeders are to improve on their 1972 fourthplace showing is that left by the retirement of middle linebacker Wayne Harris. Other difficulties have been created by injuries to halfback Jesse Mims and defensive end Craig Koinzan.

In Vancouver, coach Eagle Keys still insists the Lions can win with Don Moorhead calling the signals. They didn't last year, finishing last.

"Moorhead is a great leader," Keys said. "As far as his arm is concerned, he has limitations.But he knows what you want to try to do and he goes out and tries to do it. He's disciplined."

Other key men in the Lions lineup include Johnny Musso, who moves to fullback to replace Jim Evenson, who was traded to Ottawa; Munroe Eley as running back, and either Jefferson Inmon from North Carolina Central or Lou Harris from South California at slotback.

A possibility being discussed is shifting slotter split end Jim Young to slotback, with a Canadian rookie taking over as wide receiver. The Lions are well stocked with promising Canadian receivers, including Brock Aynsley, Ross Clarkson and Slade Willis.

The offensive line is a problem, with the loss through retirement of Ken Sugerman, Dave Golinsky and Lynn Larson. Trentative replacements are Layne McDowell, who is playing with the Lions early last season; Travis Roach of Texas slathround draft choice of New York Jets in 1973, and Ted Wheeler, who played seven games for B.C. last year.

Keys hopes the defence, consisting mostly of returnees, will mature and solidify in 1973, possibly with the help of Bud Magrum, a highlytouted defensive end from Colorado.

Csonka Crashes

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars carried the game to Miami Dolphins but yielded two touchdowns and fullback Larry Csonka and bowed 14-3 in the 40th All-Star football game Friday night.

Before going down for the colegians' 10th straight defeat on rain-drenched Soldier Field, the All-Stars missed a touchdown by six inches and outplayed the National Football League champion Dolphins between Csonka's touchdowns leading off the first and fourth quarters.

The punting of Southern Mississippi's Ray Guy and the sharp quarterbacking of Bert Jones of Louisiana State included the All-Stars' lone scoring drive.

It took a fourth-quarter rally on the passing of 30-year-old Earl Morrall, in relief of Bob Griese, to wrap up the Dolphins' hard-earned victory with Csonka's seven - yard scoring smash after 3:37 of the fourth period.

Sports Brief

ADVISED TO RETIRE

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Wide receiver Al Young of the Pittsburgh Steelers has high blood pressure and has been advised to give up professional football, the team announced Friday. The diagnosis and recommendation came from Drs. John Bent and David Huber, the National Football League club's physicians, following extensive hospital tests, a spokesman said. Young, 22, made no immediate comments on his plans.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SUNDAY, July 28

Aries (March 21-April 19): Be prompt and concise in fulfilling your share of the Sunday customs of your community. Personal interests thrive.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Impulse leads you into an expansive social venture, resulting in lasting enjoyment with something to discuss for long time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Begin early and keep going; far too many interesting things are happening to linger on any one subject.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Interesting contacts feature today if you take advantage of your ability to move out of usual routines.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Pleasures of diverse sorts, something for everybody, are rather certain to find. Leave others free to pursue what appeals to them.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Many of those who would most appreciate your company are not free to come out to you; respond to invitations, visit them.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be in time to see the interesting local developments, the fine nuances of social change and progress. Don't neglect important friends.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The challenge is simpler; are you carrying your share in your specialized field of interest?

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Younger people take the main attention, provide diversions from routine schedules. Travel is subject to missed connections.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Give others space to enjoy their Sunday—this gives you more room for self-expression. Casual commonness can lead to overstatement.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A touch of formality adds dignity. Be explicit, ask directly for what you want. Be willing to go it alone for the early hours.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Make this an easygoing Sunday; no pressure to get any single project finished. You attract support from important people.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Watch for unusual types of opportunities tailored just for you. They can increase your income auditorily.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's very important you put your item ideas into action today. Don't let others dissuade you from what you think is good.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): While the opportunity is still available, concentrate on business or career situations that hold promise of gain.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Contacts made now will lead to future benefits. Make it a point to get to know better anyone you meet today.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22): This is the day to take the hi in your teeth and finish what you set out to do. Today you can Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Something unusual you have in mind will take a very perceptive person's help to pull it off. You'll find him today.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone will offer you something quite unexpectedly. If you hem-and-haw, the offer will be withdrawn.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Your luck today comes through one with whom you're associated and who is willing to share their good fortune.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20): You can do something today that appears to have real value to others and to be profitable for you. It's a service you can perform.

Opening lead—nine of clubs.

Dear Mr. Becker: Most players don't grasp the psychological factors of the game. I know what I'm talking about because I've been playing in the same rubber bridge game for many years, and I am far and away the biggest winner in the game.

It is not because I play better than the others — it's because I have a big edge over them in psychology. For instance, I won a 3,200-point rubber on the following hand the very first one we played. My partner and I didn't have the cards to warrant such a mammoth win, and actually we should have lost the rubber.

It was the psychology that did it and it was this hand that got us off to a flying start. I got to five spades and West led his singleton club. I won with the king, led the 10 of spades, and finessed. West took the king and made the good play of a low heart lead because he wanted a club return so as to get in order to get a club ruff.

East started to steam in wardly when he saw the heart when he put on the 10 of hearts held the trick — because I had discarded a diamond!

Discarding a diamond was a key play, and if you don't understand why, Mr. Becker, you're missing the point completely. East laid down the ace of diamonds, which now made West very angry over East's failure to return a club, it ruffed and I claimed the balance, making five.

You never heard such an uproar as now took place as they berated each other bitterly for failing to return a club. Neither of them had noticed my discard. Cordially yours, John Q. Dough.

Deathly Pain

ROME (AP) — Vincenzo Malagoni, 71, complained while waiting in a clinic to have a tooth extracted that the pain was unbearable. He jumped out the third floor window and plunged to his death, the police said.

NDP Support Likely To End of the Year

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Leader David Lewis said earlier this week that his party could not tolerate the Trudeau government much longer. But there were indications Friday that the Liberals can count on NDP support until at least the end of this year.

Government legislation to be dealt with when Parliament resumes Oct. 16 includes a bill to increase family allowances and another to raise the yearly maximum pensionable earnings under the Canada Pension Plan.

NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles referred to both bills Friday as "high priority" items for the fall sittings.

Mr. Knowles also spoke approvingly of bills to limit election expenses, to improve crop insurance, and to control foreign investment.

The veteran socialist also observed that the Commons already has invested much time in the bill to limit capital punishment and said it should be voted upon very early in the fall session.

With NDP support on all these bills, the government should be able to sail calmly through parliamentary waters to the Christmas break.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield told a press conference Friday he believed his party had done all it could to defeat the Trudeau government but couldn't swing it without NDP voting support.

He said the first five months of Parliament under the minority Trudeau government produced little except measures stolen from Conservative election promises.

He referred to old-age pension increases and income tax cuts as among the stolen items.

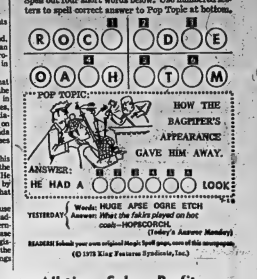
Mr. Lewis, on the other hand, termed the session that began Jan 4 "as one of the most productive sessions I've known in 10 years."

Mr. Lewis told reporters that he would wait to see what the government's attitude was in the fall. But, like Mr. Knowles, he spoke of the need for Parliament to approve legislation on family allowances, the Canada Pension Plan, election expenses and foreign investment.

The NDP Leader said his party took pride in making the minority parliament work. "He said the 27 bills approved by the Commons was evidence that it did work.

Minutes after the House agreed to start the summer adjournment Friday, the government issued a news release showing that 27 pieces of legislation were approved by the Commons in its 132 sittings since January.

Rose Out On Bail



MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Rose, shortly after receiving an eight-year jail term, was freed on bail Friday pending his appeal against a conviction of being an accessory after the fact in the October, 1970, kidnapping of Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Justice Jules Deschenes of Quebec Court of Appeal set lenient conditions for Rose's release, including a $5,000 personal bond.

The other conditions were that Rose must refrain from commenting on his conviction or sentence, must not communicate with any member of the jury that convicted him, must keep the peace, live with his parents, remain in the province, report twice a month to the officer in charge of probation services and follow all court orders.

Lies in State

Louis St. Laurent Buried At His Quebec Birthplace

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Stephen St. Laurent, 12th prime minister of Canada, before his burial today at his birthplace, Compton, Que., was given the pomp of a state funeral at the Quebec Basilica here.

Eight red-coated Mounties were to carry the coffin from the Quebec national assembly, where the former prime minister's body has been lying in state since Thursday, to a hearse for the trip to the Basilica, with honor guards of the Royal 22nd Regiment, in scarlet tunics and bushies, at both the assembly building and the basilica.

Troops from the same historic French-Canadian regiment preceded and followed the funeral procession on its way to the basilica.

The hearse, drawn by six black horses and driven by a top-hatted man in red-trimmed navy livery, is a 73-year-old, 6,000-pound wooden vehicle carved by three Quebec sculptors who completed it in 1900.

Mr. St. Laurent, prime minister from 1948 to 1957, died on Wednesday, aged 91, at his home in Quebec City.

The route of his funeral procession from the legislature to buildings, not far from his home, passes the Quebec City courthouse where, as one of the province's leading lawyers, Mr. St. Laurent spent many of his working days.

The basilica, where Maurice Cardinal Roy's funeral mass was scheduled, is beside the Quebec Seminary and old Laval University where Mr. St. Laurent graduated in law in 1905.

In all, the procession moves winds about a mile through the narrow streets of old Quebec City.

Chief mourners are Mr. St. Laurent's two sons, Renault and Jean-Paul, and his three daughters, Mrs. Mathieu (Marthe) Samson, Mrs. G. F. (Therese) Lafferty and Mrs. W. J. (Madeleine) Veitch.

Honorary pallbearers included Prime Minister Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, Transport Minister Jean Marchand, Senator Paul Martin; Paul Hellyer, MP for Toronto Trinity and former associate defence minister in Mr. St. Laurent's cabinet; Stanley Knowles, NDP house leader; former premiers Jean Lesage of Quebec and Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland; and J. W. Pickersgill, D. C. Abbott and George Marler, all former ministers in the St.-Laurent cabinet.

On the trip from Quebec City to Compton, about 145 miles by road, the cortege was to slow down as it passed through St.-Marie de Beauce, Thetford Mines, Black Lake, Disraeli, Weedon, East Angus, Sherbrooke and Lennoxville.

Mr. St. Laurent entered Prime Minister Mackenzie King's war cabinet in 1942 as justice minister and served as external affairs minister before being chosen Mr. King's successor.

Mr. St. Laurent was born in Compton, Que., near Sherbrooke, about 75 miles southeast of Montreal in the Eastern Townships, on Feb. 1, 1882. He was to be interred beside his wife, the former Jeanne Renault, who died in 1958.

Canadians Treated As Spies

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Canadians held prisoner by the Viet Cong in Vietnam were treated as enemies or spies even though it was clearly understood they were members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday.

He was commenting on a highly-critical statement issued by the Canadian ceasefire observer contingent in Vietnam before its departure for home.

Mr. Sharp told reporters the statement was issued because Canada wants to put "clearly on the record" its feelings about the way the two Canadians, Capt. Jay Patten of Toronto and Capt. Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa, were treated while being held for 18 days by the Viet Cong.

The minister said there was "no reason at all" for their torture or subsequent treatment.

"They were treated as if they were spies," he said. " . . . as if they were enemies."

The 290-memember Canadian ceasefire observer unit, in Vietnam since January, is to leave for home Sunday.

Mr. Sharp said the statement in Saigon, which called the treatment of the two men outrageous, should not seriously affect efforts to find a replacement for Canada on the ICCS.

The four-member commission includes observers from Hungary, Poland and Indonesia as well as Canada.

The two captains, dressed in ICCS uniforms and carrying ICCS identification, were captured June 28 while on an unofficial outing with a Vietnamese driver and interpreter.

PC Offices Broken Into

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party said Friday the party's offices here were broken into and ransacked over night.

Ross DeGoer, executive director, said several doors were smashed, desks and filing cabinets torn open and a television set, tape recorders and an undetermined amount of money stolen.

Hydro Hearing Still Drones On

TORONTO (CP) — Coming when it did, the comment by Premier William Davis sounded a bit ironic.

"I have endeavored in spite of some of the difficulties, to live a relatively private life . . ." the premier told the select legislative committee investigating Ontario Hydro's $44-million deal with developer Gerhard Moog this week.

Mr. Davis's friendship with the German-born millionaire was the focus of the committee's interest in the latest round of hearings—specifically a European holiday the Davis and Moog families took in August, 1971.

It was during the holiday Premier Davis told his friend he'd like to know more about the international monetary situation and Mr. Moog set up a meeting with two prominent Zurich bankers.

And while Mr. Davis was talking in English with one, Mr. Moog was talking financing of the Hydro building in German with another.

The meeting story was only one surprise in a series as the committee sits through a long, hot summer.

Another followed when Mr. Moog, who testified after the premier, refused to divulge the interest rate he was paying on the mortgages arranged for the new Hydro headquarters and, for the first time, the committee went into a secret session to discuss the matter.

Earlier, Mr. Moog risked a contempt of the legislature citation when, despite a Speaker's warrant ordering its production, he refused to turn over a file containing correspondence between himself and the Zurich bankers.

Mr. Moog and his lawyer, G. D. Finlayson, maintained that the file would jeopardize his long-range financial prospects.

A confrontation was avoided when committee member James Renwick (NDP—Toronto Riverdale) worked out a compromise in which Mr. Moog turned the file over to committee counsel Richard Shibley and Mr. Shibley questioned him on the contents without making the bankers or the file part of the public record.

But later, when Mr. Moog refused to talk about his financial dealing, the committee split along party lines before the closed-door session was authorized. Six Progressive Conservatives voted for the secret session. Two Liberals and two Democrats voted against it.

In fact, committee members haggled among themselves so much during the session the private deliberations will continue when the committee resumes Monday.

Rose Out On Bail

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Rose, shortly after receiving an eight-year jail term, was freed on bail Friday pending his appeal against a conviction of being an accessory after the fact in the October, 1970, kidnapping of Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Justice Jules Deschenes of Quebec Court of Appeal set lenient conditions for Rose's release, including a $5,000 personal bond.

Diaper Donation

SAN ANTONIO, Chile (AP) — A woman was standing in line to buy diapers at a local store, realized the big moment was approaching and was taken to a hospital where she gave birth to twin girls. The store's owner donated diapers for the babies.

GM Reports All-time Sales, Profits

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. announced Friday all-time record sales and profits for the first six months of the year and predicted a continued excellent sales pace for the remainder of the year, barring major work stoppages.

The world's largest manufacturer reported profits of $1.61 billion through June 30, compared with net income of $1.37 billion for the first half of 1972, the previous high for the period.

The record income was based on worldwide sales of 4,795,000 for the first half of the year, compared to 1972's 4,258,000 vehicle sales statistics.

Record sales totalled $19.17 billion for the first six months of the year, compared with $16.27 billion for the first half of 1972.

For shareholders, the record six-month figures mean $5.45 a-share earnings and dividend payments of $2.65. Last year, shareholders were paid $1.55 per share dividends on $4.78 earnings.

Now They Are Sick

Skylab II astronauts relax at Cape Kennedy Saturday after getting suited up for their blastoff to the orbiting station. Now they have been ordered to rest again because of motion sickness. (AP Photo)

Skylab Crew Tries To Shake Sickness

HOUSTON (AP) — The Skylab 2 astronauts, hoping to shake the effects of motion sickness with a slow and easy day, interrupted their sleep today to track down and stop a tiny leak in their orbiting station.

Then, with an indication they were feeling better, they went back to bed until mid-morning on the third day of their planned 30 days in space.

"Sorry you were so rudely awakened," Mission Control told Alan Bean, Dr. Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma after the leak was stopped. "Hope you're feeling better."

"I think so," replied Garriott. "But we're going back to bed for awhile.

"We got to bed late last night, and only have had about six hours rest. So we'll probably get a couple more."

Flight surgeons said Sunday they expected all three astronauts to recover today from the seasickness-like illness as they adapt to weightlessness.

The illness, mainly queasiness of the stomach, has delayed activation of the pace station and postponed a space walk to Wednesday from Tuesday.

Mission control detected a slight leak in the nitrogen-oxygen gas pressurization system in the station about 2 a.m. EDT. It was not serious enough to wake the crew and the ground controlled it by remotely feeding new gas into the system.

But about 7 a.m. Lousma reported he had been wakened by the sound of the new gas being fed into the system.

"All three men got up and started a systematic leak check. Then Bean remembered that about the time the ground reported detecting the leak, he had dumped something through an airlock module into a large trash container.

He crawled and found that the handle on the trash airlock was not properly closed.

"When I took my ear to it I can hear it hissing," Bean reported. "I must have left it open or accidentally kicked it as I went by."

He turned the handle to seal the hatch properly and the leak stopped.

"We're feeling a little better," commander Alan Bean reported Sunday night. "But we need some slack time to get squared away.

"Just don't wake us up tomorrow. When we get up on our own we'll start working."

Minutes earlier, Mission Control had informed Bean, Dr. Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma that, because of the illness, the flight plan was being changed to give them a more relaxing day Monday.

Mission Control also told them that a space walk scheduled Tuesday by Lousma and Garriott has been delayed until at least Wednesday.

The three astronauts were hit by motion sickness shortly after they linked up with the Skylab station Saturday to begin a record 28-day space mission. Lousma vomited after eating a meal Saturday night and again Sunday morning.

By Sunday morning, all three felt better and continued the tedious job of setting up housekeeping in the laboratory—activating water, air-conditioning, electrical and other systems. But the moving around caused more queasiness in the stomachs.

"It's becoming obvious to us that we're just not as spry up here as we'd like to be," Bean reported, as they fell more than four hours behind in the activation work. "It's merely a matter that if we move around too much we feel like we better not move around any more, and of course that slows us down."

Space agency doctors said the men were ill because their movements in weightlessness in the huge lab upset their vestibular systems—the sense-of-balance apparatus in the middle ear.

Spacemen's Hearts Shrink

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (Reuter) — One of the top U.S. space doctors has warned that the Skylab astronauts may be affected from prolonged weightlessness shrinking hearts.

Dr. Charles Berry, director of life sciences for the U.S. space agency, disclosed Sunday night that previous U.S. astronauts returned to earth with their hearts an average three per cent smaller than before they went into space.

His disclosure was the first time the space agency has revealed the extent of the problem.

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Communist party leaders of East Germany and Romania, Erich Honecker and Nicolae Ceausescu, have arrived in the Crimea for what appears to be a Communist summit to co-ordinate policies and sort out differences.

Ministers on the committee of 20 representing the IMF's member countries of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) are meeting here today and Tuesday.

They hope to agree on further guidance on the major reform issues so that additional technical work can be done on drafting a reform outline in time for the IMF's annual meeting in Nairobi in September.

The chairman of the technical group, Jeremy Morse, a former Bank of England executive director, said earlier this month that the group had then done all the technical work needed and needed political direction in attempting to solve the big outstanding issues.

Canadians Packed and Ready To Fly Home from Vietnam

SAIGON (CP) — Gia na dai has almost left Vietnam.

"Thirty-six hours and counting," Sgt. Maj. Duncan McAlpine told cheering Canadians at a party they gave themselves Sunday night.

He stood under one of the last Canadian flags left in Saigon. Under it was the Vietnamese flag and the flag of Thailand.

Canadians, many in bathing suits rather than the uniform they packed on wearing it even when other members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) didn't bother, loaded baggage today.

At 9 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, a minimum number of them, they will take off in two Armed Forces Boeing 707s. Then the ICCS they couldn't make work.

In one of the last acts, each Canadian will shake hands with Brig.-Gen. Phan Hoa Hiep, deputy chief of the South Vietnamese delegation to the two-part Joint Military Commission (JMC). This is being done at the South Vietnamese request.

If there were any plans for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) to say goodbye at the airport, it was not known by Canadians.

Vernon Turner, senior political officer and head of the ICCS delegation, and Col. Dan Loomis, deputy chief of the military contingent under Gen. McAlpine, attended a reception by the PRG Sunday night.

But Tan Son Nhut airbase where they are congregated the Canadians were mostly silent today. They stood amongst piles of baggage that was being packed up by trucks.

There was little banter.

The operations centre from where Canadians ran the overall Canadian operation in Vietnam and from where "Operation Recovery"—the recovery of Capts. Ian Patten and Peter Thomson from the Viet Cong—was run was quiet.

Men were saying goodbye to Vietnamese employees.

"Will you miss them?" One was asked.

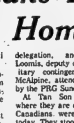
"You believe it, sir," she said. "You believe it. Beaucoup. Beaucoup."

"Hope Voyage Canada" said a sign over a free bar set up by the contractor who ran the ICCS mess.

"I wish you good luck and good fortune," said the sad faced woman behind the bar.

A sampling of Canadians asked how they felt about leaving indicated they had an interesting, enjoyable but frustrating time; that they are glad to be going home but have regrets that the ICCS didn't work and that they are leaving a country that they have come to like.

Here is the scenario for departure:



The men will get up at 5 a.m. Tuesday and finish breakfast by 7 a.m.

At 8:15 Turner and the senior military people will have a few words with Gen. Hiep. Then troops will line up and the South Vietnamese general will shake hands.

Then they will start boarding the planes, one bound for Vancouver, Ottawa, Montreal and Trenton, Ont., and the other for Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Trenton.

General McAlpine will be the last to board.

The aircraft will fly to Tokyo and then Vancouver where the men will undergo customs clearance and be greeted by Defence Minister James Richardson.

Rioters Wreck Prison

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — An observer looked around at the rubble that was once the Oklahoma state penitentiary and muttered: 'It's a hell of a way to get a new prison."

A weekend riot saw 22 persons held hostage, at least two convicts killed, 17 prisoners and three guards injured and the prison mostly destroyed. Damage from fires set by the convicts was estimated to be between $20 million and $30 million.

National Guard troops and police patrol complete control of the prison by Sunday afternoon, and officials found themselves faced with the problem of where to put the 1,750 prisoners in what little remains of the institution.

Security was a major concern because the convicts destroyed the cell block locking system.

Peace Pact for Laos Denied by Both Sides

VIENTIANE, Laos (CP) — There were conflicting reports today over whether Premier Souvanna Phouma and the Communist Pathet Lao have reached a military and political agreement in Laos.

The Associated Press said the Pathet Lao announced the agreement Sunday night. Reuters news agency quoted Laotian government and Pathet Lao spokesmen as denying today that any agreement had been reached.

The Associated Press report said the agreement leaves the Communists in control of 60 per cent of the territory in Laos but that the rightists will control two-thirds of the population. The AP said the signing of the agreement is expected later this week.

Reuter quoted Interior Minister Pheng Phongsavang, government chief negotiator at peace talks here with the Pathet Lao, as saying that substantial progress had been made but that no agreement will be signed before the end of August.

Reuter also quoted Souk Phet Rasi, the Pathet Lao chief representative in Vientiane, as saying that important breakthroughs have been made but an agreement has not been reached.

Montreal Bicyclist Bitten by Crocodile

MONTREAL (CP) — A young crocodile that apparently hitch-hiked to this city from South America inside a box of bananas tried to finish its journey Saturday on foot.

Someone else's foot.

Peter Ascoli, 16, was riding his bicycle across a vacant lot in a Montreal suburb "when this thing came racing out of the puddles and grabbed onto my shoe."

The youth, who keeps fish as a hobby, thought at first that the 18½ inch crocodile was a lizard.

He scooped the reptile into an empty coffee jar he found in the lot and brought it home for examination.

A check of nature books and an encyclopedia proved the catch was a crocodile.

An examination of the vacant lot turned up the empty banana boxes in which the crocodile is believed to have entered the country.

Peter said he intends to keep the crocodile only a few days, and then give it to a zoo or pet shop.

The decision, he said, is based on his learning that the average crocodile grows to a length of 12 feet—and sometimes 23 feet—and is considered a ferocious man-eater.

The Trap Family

It's not every day you can walk downtown and see a lobster trap tied to the back of a car. And with a pair of antlers sticking out from it no less. After all the Moira River hadn't been known to be a good lobster trapping area. Actually five - year Mike Blanc, with his family in the background, is painting at a lobster trap and father, Earl, retrieved from Cape Breton Island after it had drifted ashore. The family was passing through Belleville to visit relatives on their way back to Toronto.

Next Move Up to Hydro

From the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — The Solandt Commission, the provincially appointed watchdog of Ontario Hydro, will not become involved with selecting a transmission route between Oshawa and Lennox generating station until Hydro completes its current study.

Neil Cole, the commission secretary, figures Hydro will make its final submission sometime in late September after staging a series of public meetings now under way.

"We have nothing to do with it really until their report is submitted to us," he said in an interview. "I would think that by that time they will have narrowed it down to one route."

Senior Hydro planning engineer Art Mosher agrees, but makes the distinction that their proposal will be a corridor through which a more precise route will be determined.

Hydro's submission will also contain a complete study of various alternatives plus reasons for accepting one. That information forms the basis for the commission's deliberation which will probably necessitate another set of public hearings.

Cole reports the provincial government has not enacted a deadline for a solution to the routing problem. The commission is just now winding down a similar study for a corridor between Nanticoke on Lake Erie and Pickering. Hearings on that route began a year ago this month.

Meanwhile Hydro is conducting meetings at five locations in the Oshawa-Lennox area. They are also weighing the replies from 28,000 "flyers" mailed to residents of the area complete with ballots to denote their choices.

"The heaviest response to date was at the first meeting held in Hampton," said Mosher. "We've committed ourselves to take another look at a proposal from there."

As far as Hydro's proposals go, according to Mosher, most of the people attending the meetings such as the 536 who showed up at Hampton "didn't relate to them too well."

Many of them thought too much valuable farm land would be crossed by the 230 kV line if it was strung along the route Hydro preferred. They suggested the grid run further north, according Mosher.

"I'm not surprised. That again is pressure to get Hydro to move north out of good farm land. But we can't go too close to Rice Lake because it's highly recreational and the topography is more pronounced up there," Mosher explained.

Further east, the disconcerting citizens organized as the Save Our Bay Committee and backed by the Sierra Club, a conservation group, are protesting the "ugly, unnatural form" the hydro lines will take.

They have circulated petitions asking Premier William Davis to stop the project. A similar campaign was waged by the Coalition of Concerned Citizens through whose efforts the Nanticoke-Pickering line will pass.

Sierra chairman Phil Lind wants Hydro to serve Prince Edward county by upgrading lines extending from Belleville from 44kV to 110kV. That, he claims, would eliminate the need to cross the Bay of Quinte.

"I'd like to get on with it," said Lind. "But we have to let Hydro know we're bloody vigilant, and that they better not expect to sneak it by."

The crossing of the bay would involve construction of two 320 foot towers with a 1,200-foot span of eight cables. Large red and white balloons would be hung from the cables as an aviation precaution.

Lennox is an oil-fired station on Lake Ontario between Kingston and Belleville. When the stage now under construction is completed in 1977, it will have a capacity of 2,295 Mw.

Odd Cargo On Trunk

Belleville residents living in the heart of one of Ontario's most travelled vacation lands must be tired to seeing anything and everything strapped to the tops, sides and front of visiting cars.

But this weekend downtown shoppers had to look twice at one out-of-province parked in front of a department store. For tied firmly to the back bood on the car was a lobster trap from the Maritimes, with a pair of antlers sticking out from it.

These articles came from Cape Breton Island where Earl LaBlanc, his wife and their four children have just returned from a four-week holiday. They stopped off in Belleville to visit relatives before returning to their home in Rexdale, a Toronto suburb.

Mr. LeBlanc didn't use the trap for catching lobsters. "I just found it on the beach and was there, enough for two feeds. The trap was something that drifted ashore. There were hundreds of them that drifted ashore. I took one for a souvenir," said Mr. LeBlanc. He comes from Cape Breton originally and returns there every summer for his holidays.

"There was no room in the back seat, with my four kids and all so I tied it to the back hood. Someone gave me some antlers so I tied them in with the trap," he said. The trap itself is about two feet long and about a foot high. So if you're traveling west on Highway 401 in the next few days and spot a car passing by with a lobster trap and a pair of antlers sticking out of it, tied to the back hood, give a wave. It might be the LaBlanc family on the way home.

Woman Beaten Up, Pulled from Fire

A 68 - year - old Belleville woman was operated on today at Kingston General Hospital following a severe beating in her Leighton Street apartment which had been set afire.

Police responded to a call from a niece of the woman, who lives in the same building, about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. When Constable Garnet Goodwin arrived he was met by the niece who told him there seemed to be some difficulties in the next apartment.

She told him she had seen a man on the north side of the building. When Constable Goodwin checked he saw that the screen had been taken off the kitchen window. He looked in and saw the room full of smoke with more smoke coming out the front door.

The officer managed to get the door open and told the niece to call the fire department. Meanwhile, he tried to get into the woman's apartment but was driven back by the thick smoke. He returned with a wet towel from a neighboring apartment.

Then he made his way to the front door through the smoke a lady groanin gand calling for help. He took her outside and then dragged a burning mattress outside.

At this time, firemen arrived to take care of the fire. Between $1,000 and $1,500 damage, mostly smoke and water, was done to the woman's apartment.

When the officer took the woman outside he discovered she was badly beaten about the head. She was taken by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital and then to Kingston General where she remains at the moment.

The woman suffered at least three fractures to the head. The name of the woman, who lived alone in the apartment, was not released.

CANNING — (Miss Alice Malcolm) — Treasured memories of my only daughter, Alice Canning, who died suddenly July 30, 1972, age 24 years.
Dear Lord, I ask this day

For you are my child and farewell,
For even said goodbye.

God in His wisdom has recalled,
The boon His love has given,
And though the earth saw part as many,
The Saints rest in heaven.

AMELIASBURGH — High winds accompanied by a driving rain felled two trees in Amelianburgh village on Saturday afternoon.

One tree crashed against a house while the other blocked the road. Workers from the Prince Edward County roads department were called out to remove them.

A garage in the village also was flattened in the storm and a window at the Roblin Lake Salvation Army camp broken.

Lennox is an oil-fired station on Lake Ontario between Kingston and Belleville. When the stage now under construction is completed in 1977, it will have a capacity of 2,295 Mw.

Saturday Swim Ends in Tragedy

John Rappel, son of Mr and Mrs. John Rappel of RR 5 Belleville was swimming in the Moira River north of the Canniton Dam Saturday afternoon with four companions.

John was swimming underwater for a long distance, and upon surfacing and noticing no lad nearby, apparently panicked. A companion made a vain effort to save him.

Ontario Provincial Police, aided by local residents, one of whom discovered the body conducted the search. His body was found an hour after the search was started.

Mr. Rappel said John swam in that area quite often during the summer. "If he didn't swim there, he'd go to the quarry," said Mr. Rappel. He added that John was a good swimmer, but panicked this time.

John is survived by his parents, three brothers, Ronald, 16; Terry, 13 and Douglas, 13 and one sister Judy, 16. He is resting at the John R. Bush funeral home until service tomorrow at 1.30 p.m. at the Chapel of Christ Church.

Fire Guts Albert College Tuck Shop

Quick action by an Albert College instructor helped prevent an early morning fire in the Graduates building from spreading from a basement tuck shop into the residence where 20 students were sleeping.

Firemen were unable, however, to stop the tuck shop from being gutted. The small panelled room, in the building on the campus's west side, contained food and drinks for students attending summer hockey school.

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane said this morning damage would amount to "several thousand dollars." Inspectors from the Belleville Fire Department conducted an investigation of the scene today in an attempt to find the cause of the blaze.

Chief Culhane named Doug Jodoin, recreational director of the summer school, for keeping the fire under control until firemen arrived.

Jodoin, he said, kicked open the tuck shop door and began shooting water from a fire hose into the flame-filled room.

Ten minutes later, firemen arrived and soon had the fire extinguished.

Apart from the gutted tuck shop, only other damage, said Chief Culhane, resulted from a broken fire hose in the building sending gallons of water pouring down a stairway into the basement. Water began to accumulate on the tile floor but was led off later when firemen opened a drain.

Firemen received the call shortly after 3 a.m.

Speaker Urges Less Formality in Church

PICTON — The "now" church faces crises from within and without and the layman has a vital role in responding to these urgent problems.

Dr. Gerry Bradley a Picton dentist, who yesterday was a guest speaker for an open air service conducted by the youth group of Bloomfield United Church, stressed the need for laymen to communicate with each other.

"I think people are turned off by a hard sell approach," he commented disclaiming religion.

Dr. Bradley referred to a minister as a source person within the church remarking that he, in the final analysis, does not share in all of the problems of all members of his congregation since the problems occur within the individuals' lives there is a need for more Christianity spoken over a friendly cup of coffee in the living room. The church, like a gas station, offers a weekly "fill up", region must extend into the home where friends can reveal problems and personal griefs.

MORE

Dr. Bradley said the church today faces a crisis from without because of a lack of new blood. People are doing "their own thing" but it is not in church leadership. Living today has become "I" centred and grows less and less "other" centred.

"We won't put ourselves out to please God," observed the speaker.

Modern advertisements urge us to buy products that pamper and offer material objects as antidotes to loneliness or boredom.

"We are led to be good to ourselves and to precious little else.

There is a crisis within the church as members are overworked through a shortage of participation. When approached, many persons are reluctant to teach a Sunday school class or serve on the church board.

"We must organize our priorities so that we can serve Jesus Christ," said Dr. Bradley as he urged the need for taking part in the life of the church.

Dr. Bradley mentioned tragedy in the lives of men today and said he could not believe in a God that willed the apparently senseless deaths of children, young parents and others. He added that such brutal occurrences test the faith of persons who have paid lip service to Christ.

The speaker said Christ's will should not be man's sole explanation for tragedy. Much of it is triggered by the products of our society and a desire to satisfy our flesh and our own requirements.

Sunday's open air service was held in Haerman's Woods near a small stream there. Music for the program was provided by guitarist Dr. Burton Pickering.

Soloists for the service were Anne Hagerman of Picton and R. Ferguson.

BCI Burgled

He has been charged with breaking into Belleville Collegiate Institute and marching away with three clarinets, two flutes and a trumpet. A pair of binoculars was also taken. All of the items which amount to about $1,000, have been recovered.

Police apprehended Morgan early yesterday morning after responding to a call to check on noise at the school. When they arrived, they saw two people coming out of door at the school carrying articles under their arms.

Manhunting Society

It is hot work sitting in a car all day ticking off statistics on a lap pad: That is what we observed a young couple doing in downtown Belleville in recent days — first on Pinnacle, then on Front Street.

Well no . . . we did not ask them what it was all about, such activity being so commonplace, but it does seem that we are being surveyed to death these days.

Professor Marshall McLuhan was very interesting and erudite on this theme the other night on television news. He was being asked about Watergate and he said that more and more this is an age of what he termed "Ahashuntus"; in this case it was President Nixon who was being hunted, but in a very large sense nowadays, he suggested all of us are being hunted. Hence all these surveys (for reason it must be asked but to gather dust in some file or other?) and the decline of human privacy.

It's as if in 1984 were already here, George Orwell's nightmare of Big Brother and a society completely dehumanized, incapable of any action other than what is dictated by the State.

Man's age-old instinct for the hunt — isn't Prof. McLuhan right in this concept of Watergate? The Senate committee, reeking with melodrama and wallowing in self-righteousness, is it not in fact out to get Nixon?

We suggested not long ago that in a few months time Watergate will be all but forgotten and President Nixon as likely as not cleared of any suspicion in that matter. Mr. McLuhan confirmed this thought. He likened President Nixon to a man in a forest who must go in deeper still before he emerges. He said he was about halfway now, perhaps already on his way out — to the clear light of day and, politically cleansed. A modern political fable, but we shall be surprised if this interpretation does not prove correct. The same beliefs were expressed recently by a panel of Washington editors in an analysis circulated privately. Mr. Nixon may be taking a beating but the consensus is that he will come through unscathed for the most part.

Meanwhile ponder the premise of the manhunt in modern society and how we are all caught up in it — the hunter and the hunted — and who really has any monopoly of wisdom and rectitude and integrity, in Washington or in Ottawa or in London or in Moscow or in Peking.

Vandals Puzzling

Crime, like many other things in life, may be wrong to the majority of society, but apparently right to the persons who commit it.

One could understand, for example, that all those pretty provincial flags adorning the entrance to Zwick's Island Park might be just too attractive a lure for the mischievous souvenir hunter.

On the other hand there is no apparent reasoning behind the snapping of five Norway maple saplings that would have provided some welcome shade alongside the Zwick's park tennis courts in a few years.

Park caretaker Norm Pigden estimates the young trees will cost $50 each to replace.

Short of posting sentries at such sites round the clock, there seems to be no stopping those bent on being destructive.

All that can be done is make sure the punishment fits the crime for any apprehended culprits.

It would not be out of keeping to see a Zwick's tree-spoiler sentenced to a week's weeding of park flower beds.

Pollution Fighter?

Observed on a car windshield the other day: "I am a pollution fighter." Or was it: "Are you a pollution fighter?" No matter, the message is the same. However it was interesting to observe that the lone occupant of the car, a young man sitting on the passenger side of the parked vehicle, was smoking a cigaret!

Erratic Heads of State

African Leadership Embarrassingly Dangerous

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

There are signs if almost too small to notice, that many Africans are embarrassed not only by their own leaders, but by those of other African countries.

One has to admit the time is long overdue for such concern, because there has been a succession of strange, quixotic, even paranoid and certainly dangerous leadership in the new African countries.

The leader of that pack, of course is the unpredictable, even laughable (unless you are an expelled Ugandan or a dead one), General Idi Amin a former army sergeant, unlettered and wily.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat is not in the Amin league personality but like Egypt's illfortunes, but obviously something is wrong with him too. His constant and persistent promises for that all-out war against Israel which never comes, suggests he has become erratic.

In this 20th anniversary year of the creation of the present Egyptian republic, Sadat has given warning that Egypt's final war against Israel will be soon. Surely, the most bewilder or neurotic Zionist of Egyptians are beginning to wonder about his stability.

Then there is the fanatical Libyan president, who defies a personality profile in Twentieth-Century terms and is more easily understood in the Islamic fundamentalist ones of the time of the Prophet himself.

And for those who have not suffered from his extremist nonsense, the president's activities and speeches make him look like a clown in a complex international arena.

Others given little public recognition but truly alleged characters like the late Sheikh Abed Karume of Zanzibar who terminated a malaria eradication program because he believed Africans were "immune" to malaria unlike the white man.

Or take President Jean-Bedel Bokassa of the Central African Republic who has joined in on poking fun at the eccentricities of his own princeps.

In these days (before many or all of the Commonwealth's African leaders will walk among us in Ottawa at least, it should be noted concern is rising in Africa, especially during meetings of the Organization of African Unity, about vitiate leadership.

Some thoughtful and responsible leaders as General Gowon of Nigeria, Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia and from Francophonie Africa, Dr. Habib Bourguiba the aging president of Tunisia, are men of consequence.

They are determined to lead their struggling nations out of various dependency relations and into modern times. All four African leaders mentioned above have received various kinds of aid and assistance from Canada to develop their countries.

None of them are guilty of the excesses of the African leaders mentioned earlier. Yet none of them will publicly reproach the heads of state of neighboring nations which are going through the same trying time of change as they are.

The critical forces in the continent, especially in white racist South Africa and elsewhere, are waiting any opportunity to attack black African leadership could use such criticism as ammunition against emerging African national communities.

Perhaps the best explanation of the Amins, is that they are really tribal leaders, not nationalists in fact. Gen. General Amin's greatest domestic threat is still from warring tribes. The gap from tribe to nation where Uganda is concerned is still too wide.

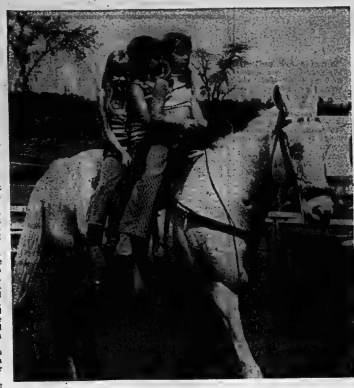
East Hill Blackout Saturday



Power was restored to all parts of Belleville by 7 p.m. after public utilities commission work crews repaired lines downed during Saturday afternoon violent squalls.

Lightning striking a line at Reid and Camilton Roads and winds felling several trees over lines downtown left East Hill residents without power for about two hours. Belleville Police Department officers were forced to direct traffic manually at the intersections of Bridge St. and Front and Pinnacle Streets.

At Reid and Camilton Roads, lightning hitting a line burnt the wire causing it to fly over two other circuits. The resulting short circuit blacked out an area bound by Station St. and Bridge St. on the north and south, and Herchimer Avenue and the Moira River on the east and west. The Bonrell St. area was also affected.

Power was restored on Church St. an hour after a tree knocked down lines near the Orange Hall.

On the waterfront near the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, a falling tree at the water's edge broke a pole and knocked out three power lines. Crews strung the wires over the gap to restore power in about an hour.

Girls Fill the Saddle

Award Presented

Youngsters at the Salvation Army's music camp at Robin Lake Saturday entertained family and friends at a concert in Fraser Hall. Awards were presented, among them the Mullett award made possible by a former Belleville woman, the late Flora Bell. Children from Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Gananoque, Trenton and other communities attended the music camp. Picton mayor H. J. McFarland is seen presenting the Mullett Award to Kingston comelist Brian Greenwood, 15.

Garage Flattened Around His Car

Arthur Butler sat in his car watching the wind lift his garage twice, then turn it around front to back, back to front, and drop it, flattened, around him. What happened to Mr. Butler's car? - "Never even took any dirt of it."

Although the sudden wind during one of Saturday's squalls completely demolished the garage he was parked in, Mr. Butler said his car was untouched by the heavy gauge corrigated iron of what once was a two-car garage.

The RR 1 Carrying Place resident said he had just started the car to drive to a neighbor's farm to collect his children when the bizarre accident occurred.

Suddenly, a gust of wind picked up the front of the garage," said Mr. Butler. "It went as high as the car's roof. The wind turned it a little bit and it fell. It missed my car by about an inch."

The wind again picked up the garage's front half, but this time, another gust turned it around, breaking it apart.

Mr. Butler commented that "it was lucky my landlord is insured" after the incident.

Several fallen trees and a fence "lifted and laid down" was the only other damage on the farm.

Rainfall Spotty In Quinte Area

The drought was broken for Belleville area residents Saturday as .41 of an inch of rain fell in two showers during the afternoon and evening.

But as predicted by the weatherman, the showers were "scattered" with rainfall varying from about .3 inch in some areas to more than an inch recorded at Trenton.

The afternoon shower which saw more than a third of an inch of rain at Belleville was accompanied by a smattering of hail although here again the stones was scattered.

For a brief period hail bounced merrily off the pavement in west Belleville but on the East Hill there was only rain.

Strong gusts of wind with 36 second bursts ranging up to 60 miles an hour played tricks in scattered areas.

Between Trenton and Belleville one resident found his boat had been damaged as a result of a toppled tree.

Another Belleville area man had the experience of seeing his garage lifted from over his head as a gust of wind caught the structure as she was starting his car.

A Salad Secret -- Vegetable Cutting

Ed Gould gourmet teacher at Loyalist College suggests using a sharp stainless steel knife for cutting all vegetables. Thin slices, even for tomatoes are easy to cut when you let the knife work for you.

If you want more flavor in your vegetable salads, proper cutting and flavoring is the secret.

So says Ed Gould, supervisor of Hotel Management at Loyalist College.

With 19 years in the restaurant business, seven of them in Canada, Ed's learned a lot about food preparation.

From 1962 to 1966 he lectured in professional cookery at the University of Strathclyde, Glasgow.

In Canada, he taught Culinary Arts in secondary schools and has owned and operated two hotels in the Grafton, Ontario and Muskoka area.

The expert says the vegetable-cutting, and the salad seasoning are important in making good salads.

In Canada, Ed says he has noticed too many cooks use salad dressing which is too heavy and takes away from vinegar, oil, lemon juice, salt, ad.

For flavor this cook suggests vinegar, oil, lemon juice salt, pepper or garlic for flavor.

Salads should be prepared just before serving time.

To prepare common vegetables for summer salads:

Lettuce; cores are first removed by banging the head by hand. The core falls out easily. With a stainless steel knife (Ed always has his knives very sharp), begin chopping the lettuce in small pieces, slicer splitting the head in half by hand. Let the knife do the cutting.

Ed Gould never washes vegetables unless necessary.

He runs a fork vertically along the side of the cucumber. Then thinly slices the vegetable producing a slice of cucumber with a slight green edge for color and taste.

For seasoning cucumbers this chef uses about two or three ounces of vinegar and salt for an average-sized cucumber.

Decorative and colorful vegetable salads are made with a little extra time and cutting. Radish rosebuds are cut in four sides, then stored in ice water for one-half an hour - the petals then fall.

Carrots sliced lengthwise, or onions cut in thin rings and thinly chopped mushrooms add color and extra flavor to vegetable salads.

Unwashed mushrooms are more flavorful than washed mushrooms. Besides, washing turns mushrooms brown, so just wipe with a damp cloth.

If cooks find black rings on their boiled eggs, either the eggs are cooked too long (10 minutes is long enough a nd add two additional minutes if eggs are immediately removed from your refrigerator before boiling) or the eggs have not been cooled in cold water immediately after boiling.

Stainless steel knives, wooden bowls and wooden cutting boards are best instruments used in salad making.

Wooden cutting boards should be wiped with a cloth and salt.

Removing the core from a head of lettuce was demonstrated by Ed Gould. First he "whacked" the lettuce over a garbage pail. Then he simply removed the core by hand.

MR. AND MRS. MOHAMMED

Mohammed — Worrell

Jeanette Marie Worrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Worrell of Belleville and Curtis Saheed Mohammed were recently married in St. Joseph's Church Belleville.

Monsignor Carley officiated at the marriage ceremony.

The bride escorted down the aisle by her father wore a silk tulle dress trimmed with jelly ribbon and with a lace fill on the skirt. A nylon net veil fell from her lace tiara headpiece. The bride carried a bouquet of daisies.

Linda Dafoe, maid of honor, wore a long pale green polyester sheer gown trimmed with yellow daisies and carried a basket of white and yellow daisies in keeping with the bridal party theme of daisies.

Bridesmaid, Laurieanne April and junior bridesmaid, Valerie Elliston were identical gowns in pale yellow with a white daisy trim and carried baskets of white and yellow daisies.

Paternal Leave In Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The labor department Friday became the first federal agency to grant paternity leave to male employees "so that the home and family are taken care of after their wives give birth.

Some 5,000 workers in the Washington area are covered under the contract, which also doubled to 180 days from 90 the maximum time women can take maternal leave.

Mary Rose likes to try new recipes so "suspect" them with her friends. Her latest suggestion is 'Tomato Jello'. It's easy to make and serves six. During summer months, Mary and her husband Earl eat outdoors a lot and they enjoy trying different salads. The onions and celery in Del Monte Stewed Tomatoes gives the extra flavor.

Tomato Jello

1 lemon Jello
1 can stewed Del Monte tomatoes (19 ounce can)
1 tbsp. vinegar
dash Worcestershire sauce

Method: Blend can of tomatoes in blender first. Heat lemon Jello. Stir in vinegar and Worcestershire sauce. Let set.

Ann Landers

Ann Says 'Lousy Idea' to Lend Cash

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 37-year-old senior (male) with a problem I can't handle. Dad died two years ago. Mom has a good job but there's no money for extras. I work at a drug store after school, holidays and vacation, but the bread has to go for things I need.

I go with a cool chick whose parents split last year. She has plenty of money and has bought me some neat gifts. To be honest, I don't dig her idea much because I can't buy her anything. She says it doesn't matter.

Last week she asked me to be her date at her cousin's wedding. It's a dress-up bash at their country club. I told her no because I don't have the right clothes. Today she slipped $25 in my pocket and said, "Rent an outfit. I want you to be there."

When I told her I didn't feel it was right to take money from a girl, she gave me a lecture on equality of the sexes, women's lib, and allowed as how she was a liberated woman and if the situation was reversed she'd accept the money from me. At first it seemed like a lousy idea, but later she talked me into it. Now I'm not sure I did the right thing. Hurry your answer, please.—Hank

Dear Hank: It's still a lousy idea. When a female gets so "liberated" that she accepts the guy she goes with, then it's time to take another look.

Give back the $25 to Miss Fort Knox and tell her no sale. If you play the game, son, you deserve the name that goes with it.—And it's not pretty.

Dear Ann Landers: I was especially interested in the letter from the secretary who resented her boss's wife calling her on the phone several times a day. Since I have been secretary to a man whose wife called frequently and later, the wife of a man I've had to call more than I wanted to, I know the dilemma from both angles.

The solution to the problem is for the wife to maintain a good relationship with the secretary—and enlist her "help." So many wives view the secretary as the enemy. I learned the ropes when I worked for a man whose wife was smart enough to make a friend of me. She would call and ask, "Is Arthur in a good mood right now?" Or, she'd say, "I hate to bother you with this, but I need to talk to Arthur. Is this a safe time to interrupt him?"

Another man I worked for had an overbearing wife who never asked a question in her all three.

Dear Ann Landers: I am still in stitches over the rerun of the lady who was doing her laundry in the basement wearing absolutely nothing but her son's football helmet, and suddenly her eyes were staring into the eyes of the meter reader. It had been a real pinchpenny he would have said, "Excuse me, sir." Tell her for next time—Saddled Up In Scranton

Dear Dah: What do you mean "next time?" Isn't once enough?

'Bullies' Are Bullied at Home

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Yes, I did contact the police. Not about my grandchild being thrown onto the road, but about brutality I had observed before.

One day I was horrified to see a strange older boy chase and catch one of the flock of little ones on the way to school and throw him to the ground. He made the child crawl as far as I could see them.

The sergeant of police said it is not funny cruel is happening among young children. Then I found my own grandchild had been made to crawl many times when he began kindergarten. — Just Granny.

Dear Granny: I'm concerned for the whole caboodle—the big boys and the little kids. Most of the bullies come from homes where they themselves were bullied or unloved. To get a feeling of superiority they turn to using their physical power on persons who can't fight back. What kind of adults will these be?

As for the little ones, they may also become bullies. Or, sadder still, become the withdrawn untrusting young people who would find it safer to stay inside their shells than to explore today's world and find self-expression.

Somebody will have to help all of them - monster and midget - to find a sense of the rightness of things.

Meanwhile, let's hope plenty of parents, like you, keep the police, the teachers, everybody, more and more vigilant.

Dear Doris: At the age of 11 I had an emotional illness which caused me to be miserable to anyone who spoke to me. Then one day I realized no one liked me. This hurt me deeply, even though I solved my emotional problems shortly after.

I'd like to make lots of friends, close friends, on a loving basis. Yet I keep to myself for fear of being rejected, except for making friends here and there.

Am I lacking self-confidence? Also, was it the fact that I was so snobbish that kept people away? — Wanting Friends.

Dear Wanting: You are sensitive - an understandable after-effect of emotional disturbance.

That was several years ago. Now it is time for you to recognize that there is good in everybody; to forget to see the other fellow's faults and to reach out to be helpful.

We all have feelings of inferiority at one time or another. It is the rare human who can dare to criticize and reject, without experiencing a boomerang.

Dear Doris: My niece is getting married in the afternoon, three months from now.

There is to be a reception and dance for 100 guests. They are telling everyone to wear long gowns. I may be out of line but to me this sounds ridiculous.

Anyone wishing to wear a long gown to the dance, fine, but the wedding, no.

What is correct? — Uncertain.

Dear Uncertain: You didn't say whether the ceremony would be early afternoon or late. The general rule is that formal affairs take place after five p.m. Much depends on the hour and the formality of the wedding, but I notice the ladies have a definite fancy for long gowns for anything that can remotely be considered formal.

Enlarged Israel Aim Of Dayan

JERUSALEM (AP) — With a cautious threat that he might resign, Defence Minister Moshe Dayan is campaigning to force the government to create a bigger Israel.

While some Israelis demand formal annegation of Arab land won in the 1967 war, Dayan wants to tighten Israel's grip on the occupied territories in another way, with Jewish settlements, real estate deals and factories.

To tie a knot between Israel and territories he thinks the country should keep, Dayan urges more integration of the Arab labor force into Israel's economy.

Dayan spelled out his demands recently in a speech to his supporters in the governing Labor party. There is powerful opposition to his ideas in the party.

Dayan warned that he would "not be able to run for election with the Labor party" unless the government accepts his programs.

Political analysts immediately sniffed a split looming inside the governing party, with the popular Dayan possibly running independently for the premiership in the national elections three months away. Premier Golda Meir has announced that she will not seek re-election.

Israel captured 26,000 square miles of Arab land in the 1967 war, and an estimated 60,000 Arabs from those areas now work inside Israel on Israeli pay scales. Much of the land is empty desert which Israel willingly would give back under a peace pact.

But the Golan Heights, the southern part of the Sinai Desert, parts of occupied West Jordan and the Gaza Strip could be useful to the Jewish state.

Dayan advocates settling more Jews in occupied territory, letting Jews buy land from Arabs, building Jewish industry in the zones and giving Arabs more jobs in Israel. Israel already has established 42 settlements in the occupied territories.

He argues that such expansion would help Israel strategically, give more chance for coexistence between Jews and Arabs and afford a historic, one-time opportunity to fulfil Zionism."

The upbraise echoed the belief of many Israelis that the occupied zones are part of God's Promised Land of the Bible and, thus, part of Zion. Zionism is the doctrine of Jewish return to the homeland.

But Dayan's party superiors, including Mrs. Meir, are strictly opposed to his views.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER

After Rocky

NEW YORK (AP) — Labor leader Victor Gotbaum said Sunday that his union and four other labor groups representing 600,000 workers are launching a campaign "to get Rockefeller the single most evil man in the state of New York."

Gotbaum was referring to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who is expected to run for a fifth term next year.

Gotbaum, executive director of the 125,000-member District Council 37, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said his union would support any of the Democratic politicians considered likely to win the Democratic nomination for governor.

Market Closes

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A 134-year-old tradition ended Saturday as area farmers and home-made specialties for the last time at the closing sale of the Kitchener Farmers' Market.

The building which has housed the market for the last 68 years is being torn down. German-Canadian and Mennonite farmers started selling their distinctive meats, cheese and baked goods on the site in 1830.

Groups Clash

TORONTO (CP) — A police man was among the injured Sunday in a clash between right-and left-wing extremists as Communists and leftists marched on the headquarters of the Western Guard, an extreme anti-Communist group.

As Nazi anthems blared over loudspeakers, members of the Communist Party of Canada and other groups were driven back by rightists armed with swords and baseball bats.

Policemen had to pull fighters apart and one member of the Western Guard and a police officer were taken to hospital.

Glasses Too Large

TORONTO (CP) — An eye specialist has criticized sunglasses with oversized frames and colored lens as useless and possibly dangerous.

Dr. Ron Hinsford, president of the Ontario Association of Optometrists, said in an interview recently that ground and polished sunglasses, purchased from an optician, are safer than plsk, red and yellow lens to huge frames.

"There is distortion with such a large frame and it has to be within a certain size to function properly," he said. "As well, there is the problem of finding large enough lens for some of the frames that consumers now demand."

Present Gift

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Native Brotherhood, a group of Indian prisoners at Joyceville penitentiary, gave the city of Kingston a present Saturday for its 200th birthday: a totem pole.

A 40-foot British Columbia cedar, carved and painted with figures of Indian lore—thunderbird, bear, wolf, beaver and turtle—will be erected at the entrance to Cataraqui Park, a new municipal golf course.

Avert Strike

HAMILTON (CP) — Local 772, International Union of Operating Engineers, voted Sunday in favor of accepting a new three-year contract, averting a strike that would have closed another vital service in this labor-troubled city.

The 100 workers, who operate the city's sewage treatment plant, will get raises ranging from 81 cents an hour to $1.32 an hour which means a third of it retroactive to Feb. 1. Fringe benefits equal to an additional 2.2 per cent were also obtained.

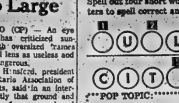
Man Hunted

TORONTO (CP) — Police have issued a country-wide alert for a 27-year-old Toronto man wanted in connection with the strangulation death of Kirk Deasley, 9, of Toronto.

A warrant for murder has been issued for John McBeth Finlayson of Toronto. A police spokesman said Sunday they had no idea where Finlayson was located.

The youth was found dead in a hotel room in downtown Toronto Friday night, sexually attacked, beaten and strangled, police said.

Sub Damaged



HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian submarine Okanagan, damaged in a collision with a British tanker, was undergoing temporary repairs in Scotland before returning to her Halifax base.

Thunderstorms Sweep Area

TORONTO (CP) — Severe thunderstorms swept through the area north of Lake Ontario from Toronto to Kingston Saturday, cutting off power in some places and sending at least one person to hospital.

Peter Salmon, 11, of Woodbridge, Ont., is in critical condition in Toronto hospital after being struck by a falling tree as the storm swept through the cottage and resort area around his Lindsay, Ont., summer home.

Residents near Apsley, Ont., 35 miles north of Peterborough, were without power for 24 hours after the storm uprooted trees and downed power lines. Estimates of damage will not be available for several days.

In Kingston, the storm was accompanied by winds up to 50 miles per hour as one-third of an inch of rain fell in 10 minutes.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Picket lines were set up at the Weston Bakeries Ltd. plant here Sunday by Local 461, Retail, Wholesale Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union of America after rejection of a company offer Friday.

Quiz Haldeman Next At Watergate Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman faced another day of questioning today by a Senate Watergate committee uncertain about how long its hearings will continue and still trying for a constitutional compromise with President Nixon.

Ehrlichman, the former No. 2 Nixon aide, has so far told a story that conflicts with sworn testimony of other witnesses, especially John Dean, the former presidential counsel.

The committee hoped to complete Ehrlichman's interrogation today and go on to the testimony of H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff.

Dean's testimony was attacked Sunday by Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. He said Dean's story of presidential knowledge and approval of the Watergate cover-up was a tale by a "self-confessed saborteur of perjury."

The same Dean testimony was cited by committee chairman Sam Ervin as the prime reason that President Nixon should agree to a compromise that will allow the committee access to the tape recordings of Nixon-Dean conversations.

"Of course some people say John Dean is a liar," Ervin said. "But the fact is that some-times liars tell the truth.

"If these tapes would establish that John Dean was a liar the committee ought to have them. And if they establish the converse, that he was not a liar but was telling the truth, the committee ought to have them so they could make a speedy determination on this point."

Both Ervin and his vice-chairman, Senator Howard Baker, said they will consider as a possible compromise that they and special prosecutor Archibald Cox be allowed private access to the tapes to eliminate from them any discussion of national security issues or matters not directly related to Watergate.

Scott had suggested that Nixon and Cox "sit down and see whether this matter can be settled out of court."

"I did favor and I do favor a selective release of the tapes by the president in his own time and in a forum of his own choosing," Scott said. He repeated his recommendation that the tapes be screened by two or three persons.

Ervin and Baker appeared on the CBS news program, Face the Nation. Scott appeared on ABC's Issues and Answers.

Scott said the report that he personally called presidential adviser Melvin Laird to urge that at least part of the tapes be made public.

"I never said that, Scott said, 'may well decide after he has heard all the testimony that this is the way he can follow."

"But if he does not it is my judgment he will follow a course which will exonerate him."

Congress will begin a month-long recess on Aug. 3 and most members of the Watergate committee have said they wish to do likewise.

Both Ervin and Baker said they will consider continuing the hearings into the month if the president indicates he will not make his promised public reply to testimony until certain other witnesses appear.

Scott said he will ask the White House which witnesses should be heard prior to a statement from the president.

In other developments:

—The San Francisco Examiner reported President Nixon and five California lawyers will be investigated formally by the State Bar Association of California for possible disciplinary action because of their conduct in the Watergate affair.

The bar association president, Leonard Jaradsky, said the report is untrue but declined to say whether the matter was discussed at the recent three-day meeting of the associations board of governors.

—Katherine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post, said the licences of two Florida television stations owned by her company were challenged after The Post's, Pulitzer-Prize-winning coverage of Watergate. The stations are WIPG in Miami and WJXT in Jacksonville.

—In Chicago, The Tribune reported that former White House aides Lawrence Higby and Alexander Butterfield have told the Watergate committee in secret testimony that Ehrlichman and Haldeman ordered FBI checks on persons not being considered for federal appointments. The newspaper quoted a committee source.

The new Construction Safety Act

It makes a difference to you

Effective August 1st., Bill 127, The Construction Safety Act, 1973 places the responsibility for safety in the construction industry firmly where it belongs... on the whole construction industry. Not only on project constructors but also on sub-contractors, foremen and the workmen themselves.

Any of these, if convicted of an offence against the Act or its Regulations, is liable to a fine of up to $10,000 and imprisonment of up to 12 months. That's pretty tough, but it's in everyone's interest. Employers, employees and, not least, their families, all of whom stand to benefit from accident prevention.

The new Bill also provides the following major advantages.

It consolidates the three existing statutes in the field into an all-encompassing Act that can be more effectively administered.

It makes the Ontario Ministry of Labour primarily responsible for safety inspections, removing the obligation to appoint municipal inspectors and establishing basic standards throughout the Province.

Everyone connected with construction has a vital stake in safety. Bill 127 will give that safety a better chance. The Ministry of Labour offices in your area have the details. Make sure you know where you stand after August 1st.

Over Half Million Attend Watkins Glen Rock Festival

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — The promoter of a rock festival that attracted 600,000 fans wants to earn another. He'll have a tough time convincing local residents the welcome mat should go out again for the counter culture.

Promoter Shelly Finkel likes the Grand Ole Opry track where the festival was held. He says he'd like to use it again for another festival in six weeks.

But try convincing local officials and homeowners of this rural western New York village they need another midweek of cars and people such as the one caused by the aptly named Summer Jam.

By nightfall Sunday, nearly all the young people had left the track. Only 1,000 acres of garbage remained as testimony to the event that surpassed in size the 1969 Woodstock festival and was the biggest ever held in the United States.

A few battered campers lingered, some of them searching for tents, cars, friends or pets lost in the earlier confusion.

Summer Jam started more than a week ago as people began trickling into the track for a leisurely wait for concert time Saturday.

On Thursday and Friday the trickle became a tide, engulfing nearly all roads in the Watkins Glen vicinity.

When the Grateful Dead band opened the concert with Bered Magnolia Saturday noon, about 600,000 persons had managed to reach the track area. Montieth pressed to get within least hearing distance of the performers.

Finkel, 28, of New York City, who with partner Jim Koplik, 23, started organizing the concert in February, called the Jam a tremendous success.

"We think things went incredibly well in terms of all the extra people we never expected," he said.

Asked why the turnout was three times what he anticipated, Finkel credited it to the drawing power of the groups—the Dead, the Band and the Allman Brothers.

"Also people wanted the experience of being a concert," he said. "The memory of Woodstock was certainly there."

Many people who attended said no one at the gates had bothered to check them to the $10 ticket. Finkel said he had suspended ticket checking when traffic started to build at the entrances.

Finkel said he was not yet sure whether he had made a profit. "I hope so," he said. He estimated his gross at $1.3 million and his expenses at $1 million.

He says that a second show awaits further negotiation with the track owner, local and state officials and the entertainers.

Sheriff Maurice Dean praised the youthful visitors as well behaved. But as for a second concert, he said, "The people will never allow it."

"Some of the farmers are feeling over about their fields being trampled," he said. "And a lot of the more conservative folks just don't like seeing some of the things these kids do."

The behavior Dean referred to ranged from open drug usage and drunkenness to unabashed romancing and a few instances of nudity.

Dean said there were about 50 arrests at the concert, many for fights and damage to property. Drug charges also accounted for a "good share" of the cases, he said.

Also doubtful about a second concert was Harvey Vaters, president of the Watkins Glen Grand Prix Corp., owner of the track.

Vaters said any future concert would have to be contained within our own boundaries.

"We can't have people overrunning the town," he said, calling 150,000 to 200,000 a more reasonable size for a concert.

Hockey Fans Are Winners

Doug Walsh

Sports Editor

Hockey fans in the city and district are in for plenty of first rate action during the 1973-74 season. Early indications are the Metro Junior B League Bobcats and the Senior A screaming Eagles will be dishing up the type of hockey entertainment the paying customer deserves.

Bobcats may have a tough road ahead of them if they hope to improve on last season's effort. All they did was proceed to the playoff finals to their first shot at the Metro League.

It says here, manager Jim (Snipe) Matthews and coach Moe Hunter may not have received the accolades they deserved for their work with the Juniors during the 1972-73 campaign.

They are both back this time around and it's a sure bet they won't be resting on their laurels. Snipe and Moe will be doing their utmost to achieve the results they coaxed from their charges during that first successful venture.

Eagles on the other hand have nowhere to go but up. There's no question senior hockey was something less than entertaining last season.

There will be a concentrated drive to put the senior brand back on a level of respectability. In fact that drive has already begun, locally.

Club officials have been working on 1973-74 plans for months now. And some headway has been made.

As this was being written, Eagles had let it be known an announcement concerning a coach for the club. But the hunt for players was on in earnest.

The first player to signify that he is willing to don Eagles' purple and gold is former Kingston Aces' standout Charlie Convery. It is known other negotiations with fellow puckhunters will follow Convery's lead.

Up Bramalea way, at least one hockey man is predicting Eagles will provide tough opposition in the new season. That man is Brantford Foresters manager Mike King.

King is quoted as saying "Nine of the best players Kingston had already have agreed to play for Belleville."

The key words there of course, are "have agreed to play". That doesn't make them Eagles.

King is reported to be of the opinion Kingston and Belleville had the best young players in the league last year.

At any rate, the fans have to be the big winners as Bobcats aim to at least repeat their well received 1972-73 presentation and Eagles shoot to wipe out all the bitter traces that may remain after senior hockey's low ebb.

With the loss of Owen Sound Downtowners, the Senior grouping has been reduced to six teams. Welland Merchants are a newcomer joining holdovers Cambridge Hornets, Brantford Barrie Flyers, Orillia Terriers and the Eagles.

It's up to those teams to regain the image senior hockey once enjoyed.

CURT COMMENTS: Eagles will again entertain a touring team from Russia. It is expected the game will be played early in January. Efforts are also being made to line up a match with a Czech team that will be touring Canada early next year.

Some local hockey enthusiasts figure any Kingston player who join the Eagles will have their style cramped somewhat because they will be up for big bucks after on which they played while with Aces.

Trenton's Paul Wannamaker is enjoying a great season with Oshawa Generals of Ontario Football League's west division. Paul's pitching che's recorded nine wins in 13 starts) is one of the reasons Tony's squad owns first place, two games ahead of Toronto Golden Ale.

Chuck Kelly has returned as coach of Brantford Foresters. Word is he'll stick to coaching and forget about playing in the upcoming senior A season.

Willowdale 'A' Champ 'B' Title to Be Decided

By RANDY DERRY

The question being asked at Saturday's Belleville Minor Softball Association Bantam Tournament wasn't who the finalists would be in the eight team competition but if there would be a final at all.

Two Toronto teams, Willowdale and Alderwood, were really the class of the tournament and both rolled into the 4 final with two straight wins but Minor Nature played her hand before the two rivals could decide the championship between them.

A pouring rain delayed the start of the final A championship fir an hour and finally washed out the B championship. But when the clouds lifted officials went on with the Willowdale-Alderwood matchup and they lived up to all expectations in a 2-0 Willowdale decision.

The two teams were embroiled in a scoreless contest through six innings before Willowdale banished six hits in a row to score two runs and take the A Championship. Steve Jones started the top of the last inning with a single but was cut down on second. Jeff Sapers sliced a single and then scored the first run on a triple by Dave Vetere. Vetere then raced home on a fellow up single by Gary McGuey. The winners added two more hits that inning but their aggressive play stopped any more runs.

Mike St. Pierre fired a three hitter for Willowdale his third win of the day. He blanked Scarborough 7-0 in a one hitter and threw a no-hitter at Picton in a 14-1 victory. Both games were five inning affairs.

The only trouble St. Pierre was in during the championship game was in the fourth inning when Murray Manson and Ugene Nowakowski put together back to back singles. Both died on base however.

To go along with the Quinte Lionsmen Club Trophy the Willowdale nine took home, their shortstop Cory Sherman was awarded the Chiasson Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

Alderwood pitcher Dave Jackson struck out eight of the first 10 players he faced in their semi-final match with Peterborough and that is all he faced after the game was halted in the third with Alderwood leading 11-0. A double by Ugene Nowakowski and a single by Martin Thornell gave Alderwood a run in the eighth inning and a 3-2 victory over Lindsay in the opening game of the tournament.

In B play Picton and Stirling survived to the finals and preparations are underway to play the rained out championship sometime this coming weekend. Picton made it to the finals with a 3-1 decision over Belleville after losing to Willowdale earlier in the day. Stirling stopped Lindsay 4-1 after losing 14-4 to Peterborough in their first game.

Belleville lost both of their games 2-1 to Picton and 6-1, to Scarborough. Bill Forbes limited Picton to four hits but five walks and three errors proved disastrous.

Mark Daskeli threw a three hitter for Scarborough in their win over Belleville. Bill Forbes, Rob Chase and Bill McQuaid each singled for the Downtown Merchants in a losing effort.

Missed Again

Juniors Are Spoilers

By AL TEBWORTH

Four costly errors and some generally sloppy playing cost Devolin Motors a tie for first place in the Commercial Softball League last night. The Motormen played one of their worst ball games of the year, and lost to the Ellis Juniors 7-0. The game was a replay of the game suspended on July 23 because of the curfew.

Steve Campbell started things off for the Juniors in the top of the third, when his bid was booted by Rick Rosebush. Ron Hill was hit by a pitch, and John Romano delivered a ground rule double to score Campbell. Hill was cut down at the plate on Dave Horwood's fielder's choice, but Horwood scored himself when Wayne Woods bobbled Dale Akey's soft grounder.

They collected their only honest run in the fourth when Jim Richardson tripled and was driven in by Steve Campbell's fly ball.

The Juniors put another run in the fifth on a fielder's choice to Horwood and another error on Dale Akey's grounder, and collected two more in the sixth.

In the sixth, Steve Campbell singled, stole second and went to third on a wild throw pitcher Don Holwood. Dave Dolan drew a walk, and they were followed by a base hit by Ron Hill. Dolan scored from first on a single by Gary McGuey. The winners added two more hits that inning but their aggressive play stopped any more runs.

Mike St. Pierre fired a three hitter for Willowdale his third win of the day. He blanked Scarborough 7-0 in a one hitter and threw a no-hitter at Picton in a 14-1 victory. Both games were five inning affairs.

AOCO Produces For 'Must' Win

American Optical have been smelling that fourth and final playoff spot in the Industrial Softball League eastern division for a month and Sunday they made it within touching distance of that doubtful status.

AOCO made it a three point lead over Stewart Warner with only two games to play by burying the pennant winning CN 15-5 in a replay of a rained out game Sunday.

The win eliminated one pennant contender, the Bell Emperor, who until that win still had a mathematical chance to finish in the playoffs.

Ten runs in the seventh inning broke the game wide open for AOCO and propelled ACCO to their convincing win. Gary Sero led the winners with a pair of hits and single. Ron Waite and Doug McKay added three apiece each.

Ron McCoy hurled the victory allowing 10 hits and striking out four. Wayne Casselman took the loss for the Trainmen, giving up 14 hits.

Bob Lloyd had a triple and single and Bob Bell a five singles for the Trainmen, who lasted only their third loss of the season.

Belleville Peewees Win 11-3

The Belleville Peewees downed Thurlow Plane's Concrete Peewees Sunday 11-3 in a game played at Thurlow. Steve McCrory was the winning pitcher, allowing 3 hits, while fanning seven. Gary Badgley took the loss for Thurlow, giving up 11 hits and five walks and setting seven men down on strikes.

Ken Revoy had a triple and single for Belleville, while Mark Crawford and Jim Radford each added a triple. For Thurlow, it was Ken Reynolds with a triple and double and Doug Yoder with two doubles.

15 Attend Tryout Camp

The Pittsburgh Pirates of Pittsburgh baseball League held a tryout camp at Parkdale Playground on Sunday, with 15 players participating.

Jim Frail, the Pirates Ontario scout, conducted the camp, with help from his assistant Jim Rae and the Eastern Ontario Pirate Representative, Grant Wade.

Among the 15 players attending the camp, three pitchers were present. Most of the players were from the South Hastings Baseball League or with some from the Minor Baseball Association, and one from Oshawa.

Alta Clicks

TORONTO (CP) — South African Alta Weavers captured both the 100-and 200-metre runs Saturday in the Metropolitan Toronto Police Games.

Mrs. Wessels had a time of 11.3 seconds in the 100 metres, finishing ahead of Marjorie Grignonet of Detroit and Cathy Alford of Toronto.

She ran the 200 metres in 22.5 seconds, finishing ahead of Eleanor Mahal of University of Toronto and Anne Bryant of Mississauga, Ont.

Cheryl Toussaint of New York was the 800-metre event. Ontawa's Glenda Reiser finished second, ahead of Penny Worker, also of Ottawa.

The Ontario Juniors women's 400-metre relay team blazed home in 46.7 seconds to smash the native records, including the Canadian junior, the Canadian juvenile, the Ontario open age class, the Ontario junior and the Ontario juvenile.

Early Start For Lions

John Belanger scored with only eight seconds elapsed in an SCLA lacrosse game Saturday to start his Belleville Lions' home team to a 9-4 win over Orillia. The Belleville team went on to score four more goals in the first period, three in the second, and two in the third to complete the romp.

Paul Chapman had the hat trick for the winners, with Joe Belanger collecting a pair. Peter Poole, Gerry Healy, and Hugh Northey had the other goals for Belleville.

10 Under Par in Canadian Open

Weiskopf Wins Fifth as Cole Fades

STE. JULIE DE VERCHERES, Que. (CP)—Tom Weiskopf, the Canadian Open Golf Championship's $25,000 first-prize money tucked safely away, was off in search of a new goal today.

Winner of five of the last eight tournaments he has entered, the 30-year-old pro from Columbus, Ohio, clinched the Canadian event Sunday with a final-round, two-under-par 70 over the 6,806 yard Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club course.

His finished 10 under par for the 72-hole event, two strokes better than tour sophomore Forest Fezler, who played bridesmaid for the third time on the tour this season. Fezler shot a closing but final-day declines to Lee Trevino and Bruce Crampton. His second-place finish earned him $19,950.

By winning here, Weiskopf equalled Crampton's four victories in North American competition this season, but the Columbus golfer has the British Open title to his credit to put him one up on the Australian.

And by the end of next week Weiskopf hopes to have bettered Crampton in another department—total money earnings for the season.

Crampton's earnings, including the $5,467 he earned here when he finished in a tie with three other golfers for sixth place are $241,391 this year. Weiskopf jumped over the absent Jack Nicklaus to second place with $208,927.

Nicklaus currently has won $207,946.

Weiskopf said he was looking forward to next weekend's $200,000 Westchester Classic at Rye, N.Y., and its $50,000 first-place money.

"I've never played well there so I'm just setting another goal to win there," he said. "I'm going to try and tune up there, hopefully with a win for the PGA (in Cleveland) the following week."

For a time it appeared that Weiskopf might not win the Canadian event, as 35-year-old Bobby Cole, a protege of Gary Player's from Johannesburg, South Africa, made a run at first place.

Cole fired a sensational course-record 9 on the front nine to make things interesting, but unfortunately for the South African, he could do no better than a par-36 on the back nine. He wound up third with $12,425 for his seven-under-par 281. It was Cole's best payday since turning professional in 1967, and equalled his total earnings for 1972.

Asked if he was aware of Cole's charge, Weiskopf said: "I first saw his name (on the leader board) when I was at 11. He was eight under then. I said to myself 'don't try to play Bobby Cole, just play the golf course.'"

Cole had started his final round one-under at 215 and had seven birdies before he bogeyed the par-three, 17th.

Hale Irwin, who set a course record of 65-in the first round, finished with a six-under-par 282 and $8,225, while Chuck Courtney was fifth at 283 and won $7,175.

Crampton, Jim Colbert Jim Ferrieli and Bobby Mitchell were six strokes off Weiskopf's pace at 284 worth $5,467 per man.

Hubert Green and veterans Arnold Palmer and Tommy Aaron were three-under for the tournament, worth $4,025 to each.

Weiskopf, who had to leave immediately for his weekly harness at Columbus said he's winning more tournaments because he has changed his outlook.

"It's just a matter of being patient," he said. "I don't force things or push things—you just let them happen."

Weiskopf was even par on the front nine Sunday. He bogeyed the par-five, 5th yard third hole when he drove into some trees to the left of the tee and wound up with a six. He also bogeyed the eighth, but managed pars of 33 and three feet for birdies on seven and nine.

He began his back nine with a 20-foot putt for another sub-par score.

"I could have birdied every hole on the back nine except 17," he said. "That was the best nine holes of golf I played all week."

Fezler was understandably disappointed. He started off the day two strokes behind Weiskopf, but it would have taken a collapse by the former on the back nine for Fezler to catch Weiskopf.

"I felt fortunate to shoot a 71 today," Fezler said. "I drove the ball well, but anytime I had anything more than a seven iron, I hit it fat. I left everything 40 to 50 feet short all day."

Lee Trevino, winner of the 1971 Canadian event the last time it was held here, blew himself out of contention with a third-round 76 and finished twenty-one for the tournament. He won $903 and said he will return to his home in El Paso, Tex., tonight to be with his wife Claudia who is expecting a child next month.

Ridley Grabs Place in Spotlight

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A Ridley College crew stroked by Hans Brual stole the St. Catharines Rowing Club's thunder Sunday in the Stat Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

St. Catharines won the Maple Leaf Cup as Henley points champions for the 13th year in a row, but the upstart Ridley crew grabbed a piece of the spotlight by winning the prestigious Championship Eights.

Brual stroked the college crew to a one-length win over St. Catharines in the race for the Ned Hanlan Memorial Trophy, covering the 2,000-metre distance in 5:48.5.

Philadelphia Vespers were three lengths back, and Nicholas Beach Rowing Club was fourth. Belmont Rowing Club, New York Athletic Club and Syracuse Rowing Club brought up the rear.

Ridley, a St. Catharines preparatory school, is in only its second year of rowing but its crews finished fifth over - all in the four-day program.

St. Catharines had an overwhelming lead with 374 points, 246 more than New York ACM. Hamilton Leanders were third with 97 points and Newport Beach fourth with 91.

Jim Dietz and Larry Klecatsky helped New York AC to a second-place finish in the final points standings by virtually sweeping the sculling events.

Dietz won the championship singles Sunday and the open pair Saturday. Klecatsky's wins were his sixth in seven years.

The 2-6-year-old Bronx native's sixth win in the championship singles tied a record set in 1955 by Jack Kelly Jr. of Philadelphia Vesper.

Klecatsky shared in four wins, equalling another record set by sculler Jack Thorburn of Toronto Argonauts in 1944.

The 31-year-old New Rochelle physician won the senior 145-and 155-pound singles, teamed with Dietz to win the senior double and sculled with Don Rose for the senior 145-pound double.

The St. Catharines cox four, stroked by Andy Van Ruyven, will represent Canada in next month's European Rowing Championships in Moscow.

Vancouver captured the senior pair, the Florida Rowing Association won the senior 145-pound pair and Mexico took the senior 145-pound four. University of Western Ontario won both the junior and senior 155 pound four.

Radcliff College of Boston, University of Victoria and Camden Boat Club of Boston shared honors in Saturday's three women's finals.

Death Clouds Glowing Moment

Jackie Stewart in Record Book

ZANDVOORT, The Netherlands (AP) — The death of a fellow driver clouded Jackie Stewart's glowing moment in the Dutch Grand Prix.

"It was pathetic," said British driver Mike Hailwood, speaking of Roger Williamson's fiery death during a race that propelled the Scottish Stewart into auto racing's record books.

Williamson, a Briton competing in only his second Grand Prix race, was killed on the eighth lap near the Zandvoort circuit's new bend, ironically built in recently as a safety precaution.

Williamson's STP March spun off the track, hit the rail and overturned in a burst of flames. A huge billow of smoke erupted as cries from Williamson's engine failure, and Stewart took over.

The Scot, who averaged 114½ miles an hour and completed the race's 75 laps in one hour, 12.45 seconds, was followed by his Tyrrell Ford team-mate, Francois Cevert, in 1:30:28.38.

James Hunt of Great Britain was third in a March Ford on 1:40:15.46.

WINS SINGLE SCULLS

DUISBURG, Germany (AP) — Hénley tiliist Sean Drea of Ireland won the West German single sculls crown Sunday, sprinting home ahead of two German favorites. Lothar-Michael Kolbe, 19, was runner-up to the Irish veteran and qualified as the West German singles entry for the European rowing championships in Moscow. Peter Berger was third.

Two Leaders Help Themselves

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newmarket and Oshawa both strengthened their holds on divisional leads in Ontario Football League action Sunday while Welland saw its longest winning string of the season snapped at two.

Newmarket, shutout St. Catharines 3-0 while Oshawa beat Welland 5-3. In other games, Woodstock blanked Kitchener 3-0 and Niagara Falls topped London 4-2.

Bill Lazzuy hurried a three-hitter for Newmarket's victory. The young left-hander struck out 10 and walked only one. His teammates picked up single runs in each of the first three innings.

Newmarket collected 10 hits off losing pitcher Dick Balint including two each by Ron and Dan Lazzuy. Balint issued 11 while walking three.

A three-run second inning was all Oshawa needed to dampen any hopes by Welland for a third consecutive triumph.

Barry Timbers allowed the home team only for hits, striking out four to claim the victory. Starter Ted DeRuiter was charged with the loss.

Wayne Colley led Oshawa with three hits in four at bats, including a triple. Fran Stuart had a two-run homer and double for Welland.

Woodstock struck for two of their runs in the fourth to beat losing Kitchener its third consecutive shutout defeat. The big blow of the inning was a solo homer by John Sibley. They added their final run in the ninth.

Bill Fidler pitched the final 2.3 innings, allowing only two hits, in gaining the victory. Keith Wagner took the loss.

A three-run homer by catcher Alex Rankin provided Niagara Falls with their victory. Its other run came in the bottom of the first when third baseman Hugh Falconer walked, was hit third on Phil Jenkins' double and scored on pitcher Ed Sendorf's fly ball to deep centre field.

London scored both their runs in the fourth inning on a single by Jim Brown, a walk to Ron Long, a fielder's choice and a squeeze bunt by Art Paquette.

Each team collected six hits. Walt Spilewski picked up the win in relief with Joe Adam suffering the defeat.

Newmarket now tops the league's east division, a game ahead of Burlington. Oshawa has a 3½ game edge over Toronto in the west.

Blalock and Palmer Team Up for Title

MASHPEE, Mass. (AP) — Veteran touring pros Jane Blalock and Sandra Palmer won the $50,000 Lady Angelo's LPGA four-ball golf championship for the second consecutive year Saturday in a playoff with Jan Ferraris and Sally Little at New Seabury.

Miss Palmer sank a clutch five-foot putt for a birdie four on the first extra hole to enable her and Miss Blalock to split the top prize of $4,800.

Earlier in the day, Miss Blalock started the final round on the same hole with a birdie. That put the twosome going after they trailed the Ferraris Little team by two strokes at the end of 36 holes.

Misses Blalock and Palmer combined for a sizzling six-under par for a 54-hole total of 206.

There was a three-way tie at 208. The teams of Gail Denesberg and Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., Mary Mills and Pam Barnett, and Sandra Spuzich and Andy Fischer each won $2,332.

Hartman Foiled By Petty

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Richard Petty, gesting brilliant pit work from his crew, won the Pennsylvania 500 stock car race Sunday although Butch Hartman almost spoiled his show.

Petty, stock racing's all-time money and events winner, had to bring his Dodge from far behind to take home the 152rd victory in his career.

He finished about 15 seconds ahead of Hartman, the South Zanesville, Ohio, driver who appeared to have had the race in the bag at the 400-mile mark.

Vacation No Holiday For Singles Champ

WINNIPEG (CP) — A weekend player on vacation and defending champion thinking of quitting the game captured the men's and women's singles titles at the Canadian closed tennis championships Sunday.

Keith Carpenter, a 31-year-old former Davis Cup competitor who entered the tournament because he had an extra week's holiday and decided to spend it trying to gain entry into the Canadian open, won the men's singles by beating unseeded Chris Burr of Toronto 6-4, 6-4.

That victory gave Carpenter not only entry into the Canadian open but also his biggest tennis pay cheque ever: $1,000.

It also gives him a chance to play again on the Davis Cup team, but that thought does not appeal to the eight-time Canadian representative.

"I think I'm over the hill: they should be going with the youth program. It takes the kids a long time to get the needed experience. A lot of them are hitting well but when it comes to the crunch, they don't know what to do . . . it takes a long time to learn to think on the court."

Janice Tindle, of Vancouver completed the successful defence of her women's singles title by beating Vicki Berner-of-Vancouver 2-6, 6-4, 6-4. It was the second straight year she had lost the first set then come back to the beat Berner, the 1971 champion.

Tindle, 22, teamed with Susan Stone of Vancouver to beat Berner and Andree Martin of Montreal 6-3, 6-7, 6-3 in the women's doubles, winning the last five games after a lengthy halt because of rain.

Dave Brown and Dale Power, both of Toronto, won the men's doubles with a 7-6, 4-6, 6-3 triumph over Carpenter and Ian MacCormick of Victoria.

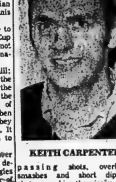
Carpenter said he knew Burr "would be coming to the net."

"I thought I could keep him back with my service. But my second serve was coming up short and he was returning it well.

"I noticed when he played against Brown he was returning hard shots well so I tried to keep the ball dipping with lots of topspin."

The strategy paid off but not before Burr, who knocked off top-seeded Tony Roche of Vancouver along his way to the finals, had taken Carpenter's serve three times.

In three previous matches Carpenter had given up his service only twice.



"He's hard to lob against, but I figured I could break his service with good passing shots," Burr said. "I broke his service but unfortunately I wasn't serving well. . . ."

Burr led 3-1 in the first set before Carpenter, the no. 2 seed, took over.

"I didn't really know how good he was," Carpenter said. "He broke me in the first game and won three in a row and really surprised me.

"But I wasn't really worried . . . I realized I was down one break, but on clay that doesn't mean much."

Carpenter was forced to bend from his game plan of serve-and-volley but his forehand

KEITH CARPENTER
. . . passing shots, overhead smashes and short dipping shots gave him the victory.

He said of the week in Winnipeg:

"It was my vacation but it was no holiday. Every match was tough. If there had been an easy one I would have liked to have relaxed by the pool. But all I did all week was sleep, eat and play tennis."

Tindle's win was worth $750, about half of what she earned all last year on the tennis circuit.

The defending champion, who is giving serious thought to quitting the game to pursue other interests, was in trouble in the first set but with both girls playing inconsistently, she managed to come back.

"In that first set I was thinking, well, $300 (second prize) isn't too bad," Tindle said after her victory." But after the second set I thought that $700 first prize looked good."

It took a while to get the top ranking, however. The up and down match" saw each girl take control a number of times each set before Tindle's cross-court forehand smash, her most effective shot, won out.

"I had it going good so I continued using it," she said. "I had trouble with my service—I can never toss the ball up in the same spot—and I got up on my drop shots in the first set, but she was playing back so I was content to sit back and tire her out."

Wilbur Wood First To Record 20 Wins

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching his way to victory No. 20 wasn't what bothered the Wilbur Wood. It was the wailing around for his Chicago teammates to wrap it up for him.

"It's too nerve-wracking to sit around and watch the game in the dugout," said Wood after becoming major league baseball's first 20-game winner this year in Chicago's 8-5 American League victory over Minnesota Twins.

"It's a lot easier to sit in the clubhouse with a cold beer and hear the game on the radio," he said.

In Sunday's other games, Detroit Tigers topped Baltimore Orioles 3-2, Cleveland Indians downed Boston Red Sox 8-2 and dropped New York Yankees 7-3 and 6-3, Kansas City Royals defeated California Angels 10-4, 7-6 in 11 innings and Texas Rangers split with Oakland, winning 3-0 before the A's took the nightcap 7-4.

In Saturday's games, the Artist picture victory since June 22, Hamilton Tigers topped Baltimore Orioles 3-2, Cleveland Indians downed Boston Red Sox 8-2 and dropped New York Yankees 7-3 and 6-3, Kansas City Royals defeated California Angels 10-4, 7-6 in 11 innings and Texas Rangers split with Oakland, winning 3-0 before the A's took the nightcap 7-4.

Wood's retreat to the clubhouse took place after Cy Acosta, who replaced him in the seventh inning, gave up two runs and cut a four-run lead to two, but Acosta struck out Danny Thompson to end the inning and blanked the Twins in the eighth and ninth.

Ke Henderson hit a three-run homer, Tony Muser delivered a two-run single and Buddy Bradford swatted a solo homer for the White Sox.

Things Looking Up For Cubs and Bucs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates reached a couple of break-even points Sunday which they hope will help them come out on top of baseball's National League East in October.

The Cubs, who had lost 13 of their last 18 games after bowing to St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 in their doubleheader opener, salvaged a split with a 5-4 nightcap victory.

"That's the happiest I've been to split a doubleheader in a long time," said manager Whitey Lockman. "I wouldn't call it a disaster if we had lost, but it would have been pretty bad. We'd have been 4½ out instead of 7½."

The Pirates scored a pair of 5-2 victories over Philadelphia Phillies and reached the .500 mark—50-50—for the first time since June 5. They have won nine of 11 and trail the Cardinals by four games.

In Sunday's other games, Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Francisco Giants 6-3, Cincinnati Reds lost their opener to San Diego Padres 7-1 but lost the nightcap 4-2, Houston Astros beat Atlanta Braves 8-5 and Montreal Expos shaded New York Mets 6-4.

In Saturday's games, the Phillies blanked the Pirates 5-0, the Cardinals downed the Cubs 7-2, the Braves shut out the Dodgers 5-0, the Braves trimmed the Astros 3-1, the Mets battered the Expos 11-3 and the Reds edged the Padres 3-1.

Billy Williams, who hit a two-run homer in the first inning, and Jim Qualls, who hit a three-run rally.

Willie Stargell hit his 31st homer with a man on base to put the Pirates ahead to stay in their first game, then Bob Robertson and Manny Sanguillen homered for them in the nightcap.

Willie Crawford drove in three runs with a homer and a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning and Steve Garvey added a three-run homer to power Andy Messersmith and the Dodgers to victory.

Crawford's fourth-inning homer snapped a 17-inning scoreless streak for the Dodgers, who lead the National League West by 4½ games.

Gene Locklear's two-run single and Nate Colbert's third homer spoiled sore-armed Gary Nolan's first 1973 pitching appearance for the Reds. Cincinnati's Roger Nelson, another sore-armed pitcher, allowed only one unearned run in seven innings to win the ightcap.

Tommy Helms delivered a tie-breaking two-run double in the eighth inning for Houston after a two-run homer by Darrell Evans, his 26th of the year, gave the Braves a 5-4 lead in the seventh.

Ron Fairly's tie-breaking two-run single against Ray Sadecki capped a three-run eighth-inning rally for the Expos.

The Expos send Steve Renko and Steve Rogers, who pitched a one-hitter last week in his major league debut, against the Mets in a twi-night doubleheader tonight.

The Cardinals are at Chicago, the Braves at Houston and the Giants at Los Angeles in tonight's other games.

Canoe Trials

TORONTO (CP) — Crews from Port Credit and Burlington dominated Saturday's southern Ontario division trials for the Canadian canoe championships.

Port Credit's Mississauga Canoe Club qualified 20 crews for the Aug. 19 Canadian championships, while Burlington Mohawks put 26 crews in the national finals.

Including bantams, who are ineligible for the national championships, Mississauga also topped the club standings in today's trials with 230 points. Burlington had 174.

West Rouge of Toronto put 16 crews in the Canadian finals, Salmy Beach of Toronto eight, Aurora and AKO of Windsor four each and North Bay one.

Behind Mississauga and Burlington in the club standings were West Rouge with 81, Salmy Beach with 68, North Bay with 21, AKO with 23 and Aurora with 18.

Burlington's Dawns Ring either won or was a member of a winning crew in five events. Mississauga's Greg Smith had a hand in four victories.

Senate Wants New Look At U.S. Clean Air Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate, reacting to government proposals that would sharply restrict automobile use in urban areas, is preparing to order a re-evaluation of the 1970 Clean Air Act.

But supporters of the act deny abandonment of the goal of cleaning the U.S. air by the end of the decade.

The most disputed section of the act requires that automobile manufacturers produce a vehicle using pollution-free engine by Jan. 1, 1976.

It is that deadline that helped to prompt the Senate movement for a review.

At the request of original sponsors of the Clean Air Act, the Senate is expected shortly to authorize $300,000 for the National Academy of Sciences to review the health findings on which the 1976 deadline was based.

The key question is whether progress placed too high a premium on clean air while ignoring economic and social disruptions that might result.

When the bill was being debated 3½ years ago, its chief author, Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem., Me.) said repeatedly that the measure was based on protection of public health and not on economic or technological feasibility.

But now some environmentalists are taking the position generally adopted by automobile manufacturers: that given more time the industry might be able to develop an anti-pollution device more acceptable than the catalytic-converter method.

The National Academy of Sciences will provide a 90-day evaluation of data on auto emissions, followed by a 15-to-18-month study and analysis of how pollution affects human health.

The purpose, says Senator Jennings Randolph (Dem.-W. Va.), chairman of the public works committee, is to provide data from which Congress can determine whether modifications of the act are necessary.

Muskie, whose public works subcommittee wrote the act, and other backers have noted public concern over proposals issued by the Environmental Protection Agency for implementation of the law.

Queen of Heaven Jail Wrecked by Rioters

ROME (Reuter) — Tension gripped prisons throughout Italy today as a long, hot summer exploded in a chain reaction of violence and unrest.

After the worst outbreak of prison violence in its 92-year history, Rome's Queen of Heaven prison was in ruins. It was wrecked in a 26-hour riot that led to unrest and revolt in jails in scattered parts of the country.

In one of the revolts, at Velletri jail outside Rome, a policeman was shot in the leg by police Sunday as about 20 convicts attempted to escape by the prison.

The riot at Queen of Heaven jail was finally put down by more than 2,000 riot police but started a series of sympathy demonstrations in other jails by prisoners demanding a speedup in prison and penal law reforms.

In a rampaging prisoners at Queen of Heaven jail smashed down walls, burned down the library and records office, flooded a whole block and destroyed almost every cell. Damage was estimated at $1.2 million.

Trouble occurs annually in Italian jails during the hot summers, when prisoner grievances rise angrily to the surface, and it looks as though this could be one of the hottest summers the jails have known.

One of the prisoners' main complaints is the long time unconvicted men have to wait for trial. Remand prisoners have been especially noticeable in the protests. Of the 30,000 prisoners now in jail, about half are awaiting trial.

But they are also demanding reforms in prison conditions. Queen of Heaven jail is overcrowded and antiquated and many other Italian jails are in a similar condition.

A prison reform bill has been introduced in parliament but the unstable political situation in the country has delayed its passage.

Village Popular With Art Thieves

CESI, Italy (AP) — This sleepy Umbrian village is hardly mentioned in the tourist guides. But it is well known to art thieves.

Its six churches are filled with medieval and Renaissance painting and sculpture valued at an estimated $5 million.

But there is little protection for the art treasures.

The same is true of at least 1,000 other villages in the Apennine Mountains, the spinal cord of peninsular Italy.

Cesi's most valuable painting was stolen nine years ago. It was later recovered, but little has been done to improve security since.

Art thieves prefer these small villages. But in their pursuit of masterpieces to be held for ransom or smuggled abroad for great prices, they have also broken into the famed churches of Rome, Florence, Venice and Palermo in recent years.

The most valuable art works usually are recovered, but the thieves are seldom caught. It seems to be a new Italian-style kidnapping for ransom—with Raphael, Tiepolo and Titian replacing the wealthy landowner or industrialist as victim. The state and insurance companies pay for rescue.

Cesi, an unpretentious village on the slopes of Mount Tower, had a glorious past.

Its population was more than 2,000 in the middle ages and the Renaissance. Now it is down to 500—mostly elderly. The young move to Terni, the steel town seven miles away.

Cesi had two fortresses when it was a leading military and agricultural centre in the Papal States. Today the nearest police station is at Terni. The fortresses and a monastery have been nearly flattened. Two churches have been abandoned.

The thieves who broke into the parish church in November, 1969, sawed off the iron grate of a small window and a slim man slipped through it and opened a side door to accomplices.

They made away with the large wooden painting which was suspected, as a gilded-letter inscription says, in 1939.

It fails to mention the painter. Some experts attribute it to Piero Cavallini, one of Rome's top medieval painters.

"It's a painting which would give pride to any museum in the world," says Rodolfo Siviero, the government's top art detective who recovered it in 1965 by posing as a foreign buyer. "It's worth a billion lire and the thieves were ready to give it to me for 30 million."

A billion lire is $1.7 million. Thirty million lire is $51,000.

Fev. Adrio Mignozzetti 61, the parish priest, had to fight civil authorities in Rome, Perugia, Terni and Spoleto who tried to get the painting into their museums.

But Father Mignozzetti

Already Committed

ITACOARA, Brazil (AP) — Mayor Carlos Faria Souto approved a woman's request to buy a plot in the municipal cemetery, praised her foresthought in securing a place to "sleep in peace" and added: "Soon I shall follow the example of this petitioner. Right now I can't, because I'm making payments on a car."

pointed out that art thieves had easily broken into Florence's famed Palazzo Pitti and have looted museums in the Venice area, in Tuscany and in Sicily.

So the priest moved the painting into the adjoining sacristy and reinforced the locks on the room.

He is responsible for three other churches in Cesi. The one with the best architecture, St. Erasmus, stands isolated on the ruins of fortresses dating back to Etruscan and pre-Etruscan times.

"The church's dogs was knocked down some time ago," the priest says. "Courting couples take shelter there when it rains."

Siviero says Cesi would be turned into a living museum for its artistic riches if it belonged to another country. In Italy, it's a walk-in museum for young couples as well as vandals and thieves.

Known art thefts in Italy have risen from 2,328 stolen items in 1968 to 5,845 in 1972. In four months of 1973, 2,429 art items have been stolen.

Police find the stolen art works in an abandoned countryhouse or shed "after having received pertinent information." This usually means ransom has been paid.

"What is needed is a stern drive against the thieves," says Magr. Ernesto Casini, of the Vatican's Commission for Sacred Art.

"The theft of a priceless art work is rated on the same level as a theft at the supermarket. It has become a rather harmless way of making money."

Police decline to disclose when and what ransoms are paid.

"Once the face of the Virgin Mary was enough to discourage any Christian from a sacrilegious theft," Msgr. Casini says. "With religion no longer respected today, how can the church defend itself from thieves when even police-guarded banks miserably fail?"

What the Stars Say

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, July 31

Aries (March 21-April 19): You will make more work for yourself today by trying to get out of work you should be doing. Stay on the ball.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You tend to be a bit flirtatious and rambunctious today. Have fun, but don't stray farther than you should.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Today you'll make some constructive changes at home that won't be up to your usual standards of good taste.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It will be difficult for you to cope with reality today. Anything too harsh or practical you'll dismiss.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You will spend money today quite foolishly on things that afford you self-gratification. Guard against wastefulness.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Although you may feel you're being charming and gracious in dealing with others, they won't read it that way today.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will rationalize today rather than face responsibilities. It will be just as hard to do tomorrow what should be done now.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22): Today when you're with a certain friend you'll treat, each other extra-sweetly to disguise true feelings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Someone will praise you today, giving you a false feeling of security. Later you'll learn it was all talk.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will be put-upon today by one who knows how to shoulder things by appealing to your charitable instincts.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Avoid friends today who do not live up to your high ideals. They spell trouble.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20): Be wary of anyone who wants to give you something for nothing today. You could be deceived today if you're not careful.

YOUR BIRTHDAY:

The coming year has much to offer if you're willing to deal with life on practical terms. Unusual financial opportunities will beckon. Check carefully.

Western Economic Parley Said Public Relations Ploy

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Last week's western economic opportunities conference in Calgary was primarily "a public relations ploy" on the part of the federal government, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday.

The national Conservative leader said during a news conference that "coolming conciliation" between Ottawa and the provinces would be more effective.

"A two-or-three-day extravaganza, so to speak, is really no substitute for continuing policy development to meet the needs of regions," he said.

Mr. Stanfield said the federal government should be willing to listen to members of Parliament when developing regional policies in addition to consulting provincial premiers on a regular basis.

Election Said Unlikely Before Next Summer

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Robert Andras, co-chairman of Liberal party's 1972 election campaign, says it is unlikely there will be a federal general election before next June.

Mr. Andras, in an interview taped for broadcast Sunday on the CTV program Question Period, says he would be surprised if there is any thought in the mind of the prime minister of calling a snap election this fall.

"My personal guess is that we won't see an election before next June, unless there is some kind of accident in the House, which under the circumstances of a minority government could take place."

The minister said an election now would likely result in another minority government.

"There wouldn't be much change in the seating in the House if we came back. I think it would be an exercise in futility.

Mine Is Ready to Pay For Village Relocation

SUDBURY (CP) — Falconbridge Nickel Mines says it will add $250,000 to the province's $120,000 for the demolition and relocation of the nearby hamlet of Happy Valley.

A ministry of environment official said once the 23 homes have been removed, the air pollution monitor set-up in Happy Valley in 1971 will be removed, allowing the company to carry on smoking operations without interruption.

Queen, Philip Fly to Ottawa

LONDON (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip left today for Ottawa to attend the Commonwealth prime ministers conference opening Thursday.

Accompanying the royal couple on the Air Canada flight was a party of 29 and 2½ tons of baggage. It is their second trip to Canada in less than a month.

Most of her time will be spent in audiences, receptions and other official functions with Commonwealth heads of government and their delegations meeting in one of their irregular sessions.

Although she will make some public appearances here, this visit contrasts sharply with one a month ago to Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta where an estimated 1.2 million people saw her and Prince Philip on a tour packed with public appearances.

Monday, at a press briefing, a tour organizer said the visit "is not a Watergate" and that much of the Queen's activity will be out of the public eye.

The three days will be largely taken up with private audiences with Commonwealth leaders at Government House.

Prince Philip will be more in evidence. He is scheduled to tour the Royal Canadian Mint, open a youth hostel, present new colors to the Royal Canadian Regiment's third battalion, make two speeches and open the three-day International Equestrian Association horse trials at Jokers' Hill near Toronto.

He also will hold private meetings and make presentations associated with his youth development awards plan.

Together, the royal couple will attend a civic luncheon, take part in the opening of the $32-million Canadian affairs building named after the late prime minister Lester Pearson and tour the National Arts Centre.

The Queen will make her only public speech, a tribute to Mr. Pearson, at a meeting of the external affairs building.

Organizers said the Queen will make no mention of political matters, also in contrast to her visit June 25-July 5. Then, she spoke of government Indian and multiculturalism policies in a number of speeches.

While much of the Queen's activity will be connected with the conference, she will never actually appear at it. Her duties are much the same as they would be if the conference were held in Britain.

It is the first time she has made an appearance coinciding with a Commonwealth conference outside Britain.

Leaders Arriving

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives from 31 other Commonwealth countries, most of them heads of state, began arriving today with their entourages for the first Commonwealth heads of government meeting on Canadian soil.

The Commonwealth leaders, who have attracted 700 journalists from around the world, begin discussions Thursday. The meeting concludes Friday, Aug. 10.

Trade and the world's shaky money situation likely will be prominent points of discussion for the leaders, whose countries account for one-fifth of world trade. The people they represent—about 800 million or roughly one-quarter of the world's population—control almost one-fifth of the earth's

Plane Crashes

BOSTON (AP) — A Delta Airlines jet aircraft carrying 90 persons crashed in heavy fog today at Logan International Airport, knocksbike reports said as many as 40 persons may have died.

State police said the twin-engine DC-9 crashed on a runway 300 to 400 feet from the edge of the water on the bury airport that juts into Boston Harbor.

Train Moves Food

WINNIPEG (CP) — Several isolated hamlets in north-western Ontario will receive their first food shipments since last Wednesday as a special Canadian National Railways train scheduled to leave here early today. The train, destined for Armstrong, Ont., about 400 miles east of here, will have one express baggage car full of supplies ordered by cottagers and stores in areas not served by roads.

Coroner Drowned

GANANOQUE, Ont. (CP) — A post mortem was to be performed today on the body of Dr. Roger Rouleau, the coroner for Carleton County, who drowned on a fishing trip during the weekend. The body of the 52-year old coroner was recovered by OPP divers off Tar Island in the St. Lawrence Monday.

Amin Asks Queen to Send Scottish Guards

KAMPALA (CP) — President Amin of Uganda cabled Queen Elizabeth requesting her as head of the Commonwealth to send him a special plane and Scottish guards to fly him to Ottawa for the Commonwealth conference. Radio Uganda reported.

The radio said the telegram was sent through the acting British high commissioner.

In the message, Amin said he wants "to brief the Queen and her government" about matters of mutual interest and how he has transformed Uganda into "a truly black man's country."

"I feel that my presence at the conference will be of great benefit to Britain," said Amin.

Railway Traffic Halts in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — All commuter and freight rail traffic, as well as most telegraph services, in Quebec provinces were paralyzed at 6 a.m. EDT today when 18,000 non-operating railway employees began a 48-hour walkout.

A spokesman for CP Rail said telegraph service will be disrupted during the walkout and "the public should not plan to send any telegrams because they won't get through."

The pro-vincial-wide strike, announced Monday by Richard Smith, chief negotiator for the 58,000-member Association of Non-operating Rail Unions, comes shortly after a 66-hour walkout in western and northern Canada and a 48-hour strike last week in Ontario.

Although CP Rail workers resumed work at 6 p.m. EDT in British Columbia, Alberta and the Far North, CN workers stayed away in a continuing dispute over company tactics.

About 3,500 men stayed out on strike because the union said 600 men had been laid off by CN Monday. The union said all workers would stay on strike until jobs were provided for all.

The union's figures on the number of workers still on strike were challenged later by a CN spokesman in Montreal.

He said only about 1,500 workers, all in the Vancouver area, had refused to cross picket lines.

All other CN employees in the provinces affected by the rotating strike had returned, he said.

Sickness Cheques Returned

WINNIPEG (CP)—A spokesman for the employees said Monday that Canadian National Railways and CP Rail were "pouring more fuel on the fire by refusing to forward sickness and disability benefit cheques to employees not on strike.

W. H. Matthew, secretary-treasurer of the joint Winnipeg strike committee, said the railways have gone back on their responsibilities under a wage loss insurance plan by returning cheques issued by Sun Life Assurance Co.

However, J. H. Crump, a spokesman for CP Rail, said the agreement stipulates the insurance company shall be liable to stop payment when a strike begins.

"When the unions are on strike they're on strike everywhere no matter how selectively they choose to apply the strike," he said. "An employee in Manitoba is considered in the same position as one in Ontario."

Barry Hunt, a claims representative for the insurance company, said the cheques have been returned to the railways on instructions from Sun Life's head office in Montreal.

Mr. Matthew said the cheques give sick or disabled benefits ranging between 60 and 75 per cent of their weekly wages.

Winnipeg non-operating employees have not yet been out on strike.

A CNR spokesman said the workers laid off "had to do with passenger service," which has been suspended indefinitely.

Handled by the strike are 27,700 commuters who use Canadian National and CP Rail commuter trains in Canada's largest city.

Stopped by the strike are 764 freight runs by both companies.

Montreal police assigned additional patrols in anticipation of traffic snarls, municipal transport authorities prepared to use extra buses, and additional buses were scheduled from Montreal to Toronto, Ottawa, Quebec City and the lower St. Lawrence region by Voyageur Inc., an inter-provincial bus company.

Trucking firms planned to use every additional piece of equipment to move cargo to and from the port of Montreal.

A CN spokesman in the Maritimes said rail service to that area will come to a halt today because of the Quebec walkout.

The last train, for the duration of the strike, from Montreal to Halifax, left here at 4:30 p.m. EDT Monday. CN's Ocean Limited and Scotian passenger trains to that area from Montreal were cancelled.

The companies announced cancellation of train services from Montreal to all points in Quebec, in addition to New York City and Ottawa.

Astronauts Improved

Space Walk Postponed

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Skylab 3 astronauts, pronounced on the mend in their struggle with motion sickness, began knocking up today on their bookkeeping chores delayed by their illness.

Although mission doctors said the men are showing signs of improvement, a space walk originally planned for today was postponed again until Saturday.

This delay will give Skylab commander Alan Bean, Dr. Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma all day Friday for rest and recreation.

Lousma, who has suffered the most from motion sickness, greeted mission controllers with a cheery "Good morning, down there, space fans," as the crew's day began.

The astronauts were to continue a regimen of stomach-soothing medicine today to prevent the symptoms from bothering them.

For the first time since the planned 30-day mission began Saturday, the three ate most of their food and no vomiting occurred.

"Generally speaking, everybody feels pretty good until meal time, and it gets pretty tough then," Bean said. "But if you can get through meal time, you're OK."

Most of today was to be spent putting things away and dealing with some troublesome, but not dangerous, mechanical problems.

Flight surgeon Dr. Paul Buchanan said he thinks the men have passed the crisis of their sickness. Space agency physicians are quite sure the illness was caused by the disorientation of weightlessness. Dr. Buchanan said three days is not an unreasonably length of time for adapting to zero gravity.

Cambodian Reds Edge Nearer City

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian insurgents edged closer today to Takhmau, only four miles from the edge of Phnom Penh and the key to the city's southern defence line.

Fighting was reported during the night within two miles of Takhmau, and a government communique said three villages south of the city were in flames.

Many people have fled their homes along the thickly-settled road between Takhmau and Phnom Penh.

Other fighting was reported both north and south of Phnom Penh, but details and casualties were not announced.

On the south the battlefronts were at the village of Prateah Lang, where a government armored force is trying to outflank the insurgent advance from the southwest; at Wat Sieng, on Highway 3 nine miles from the capital; and at Prek Ho, six miles south of the city.

Northwest of Phnom Penh, fighting erupted at the village of Kep Srauthors.

U.S. B-52 bombing missions continued around the clock, pounding at insurgent concentrations and supply routes.

Air Route Agreement Is Reached

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and United States negotiators have agreed in principle to new routes to be divided among airlines in the two countries, informed sources said Tuesday.

While this is a major step forward, certain obstacles still have to be cleared before the two countries can sign a new bilateral air agreement.

Girls Weep But Cong Absent As Canadians Leave Saigon

SAIGON (CP) — Canada's truce-observer role in Vietnam ended today after a six-month tour of duty marred by ideological bickering, one death in a helicopter incident and the capture of two Canadian officers by the Viet Cong.

Today's departure was emotional but low-keyed.

A few minutes before 8 a.m. Saigon time, Chief WO James Jackson of Ottawa lowered the Canadian flag from the ICCS compound at the Tan Son Nhut Air Base.

"We shall treasure this flag as a symbol of what we tried to do," said Maj.-Gen. Duncan McAlpine, chief of the Canadian military contingent.

A South Vietnamese army band played Auld Lang Syne and the South Vietnamese chief military negotiator, Lt.-Gen. Pham Quoc Thuan, shook the hand of each Canadian.

There were no Viet Cong representatives at the airport as the two Canadian military transports departed. One was bound for Vancouver, Ottawa, Montreal and Trenton, Ont. The second was headed for Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Trenton.

No replacement has been found for Canada and its departure leaves the ICCS crippled. The commission's chairman for July, Hungarian Ferenc Szasztay, said the group cannot function with only three members.

Canada's prestige as a peacekeeping force was said by some observers to be at an all-time low when Ambassador Michel Gauvin became entangled in a series of disputes with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong, Poland and Hungarian delegations.

Although Gauvin denied it, the Canadians were accused of being partial to the United States and South Vietnam.

"It is very hard to assess precisely," said a top-level Canadian official. "I think our credibility as a country has meant what it says would have been very badly damaged if we had stayed any longer."

"We'd set certain conditions. Those conditions were not met. We also said we were looking for substantial progress toward political settlement. We didn't find that progress."

The Canadian government report said Canada was convinced that North and South Vietnam cannot be prevented from returning to warfare.

Conko Calls

Conko, the Conklin Clown, didn't have a word to say to children at Queen Mary playground yesterday, but the youngsters were equally as speechless when he made his appearance to hand out balloons. The mute clown visited three other playgrounds on a promotional swing through Belleville for the Quinte Exhibition August 8-11.

Sewers Hold Up Dundas St. Job

Unexpected sanitary sewer replacement in the Holden-Sidney Street area of Dundas Street, West, has slowed reconstruction of that artery to its new four lane width.

The original completion date for the Dundas Street widening was September 1 but extra working days from the sewer installation have been allowed general contractors H. J. McFarland Construction Co.

However, from Sidney Street west to the city limits, the new concrete curbs and gutter have been installed and base coat asphalt was installed last week.

Further west in Sidney township, traffic commenced using the new CPR grade separation at the cemetery crossing, although only one line of the new overpass structure is being used.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said today that good progress was being made this week on removal of the old grade on Sidney Street north of Catharine.

This section of Sidney Street between Catharine and Moira Streets has been closed to through traffic to facilitate reconstruction.

The old roadbed will be removed and full depth asphalt installed on the widened roadway.

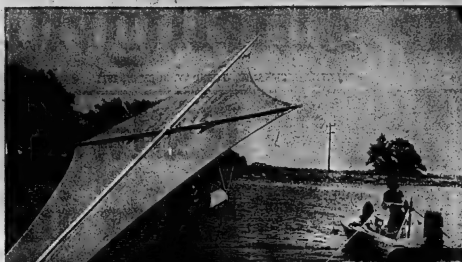
Brutally Beaten Woman Improved

City police are no further along in their investigation of the brutal beating of a 68-year-old Belleville woman in her Lingham Street apartment Sunday morning.

The woman, who asked that her name not be released, underwent an operation in Kingston General Hospital Monday afternoon to repair three fractures to her head.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning the woman was unable to furnish police with a description of her assailant, who apparently beat her with a glass object before setting fire to the apartment.

Chief Crosbie said the woman was still in shock and that police hope to question her when she is more fully recovered.



KGH officials listed her condition today as fair. She is in the intensive care unit.

Police were called to the woman's apartment at about 1 a.m. Sunday when her niece, Lynn Hess upstairs, heard noises in the two-bedroom home.

Constable Garnet Goodwin had to hold a wet towel over his face as he fought smoke to enter the room and, after pulling her outside, he returned to find out a burning mattress.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said Monday he was satisfied the fire had been started by someone. He estimated damage to the apartment at between $1,000 and $1,500.

Kite-skiing

Visitors to Zwick's Island Park this weekend were treated to a demonstration of kite - skiing put on by the Belleville Water Ski Club. Members of the club managed to stay aloft high over the Bay of Quinte for about 10 minutes while pic-nickers and swimmers watched from a more earth-bound vantage point. The preparations for kite-skiing are shown here as this skier gets ready to take off.

Postal Delivery Suspended Today

As a result of the extensive street reconstruction program in their area, residents on the west side of Sidney Street between Wilton Ave. and Holden Street, will have to walk to get their mail for the next few days.

Belleville postmaster Roy Walswright said today that because of the street reconstruction, postal carriers would be unable to make household deliveries in the above area. Neither will deliveries be made on Elgin Street.

But affected area residents will still be able to get their mail.

Mr. Walswright said mail for the area in which there will be no delivery will be placed at the sub post office at Sidney Inn where residents may pick it up starting today.

The local postmaster was unable to say how household deliveries of mail would be affected by the street reconstruction program.

An earlier announcement said Sidney Street would be closed for at least three weeks between Catharine and Moira Street, but Mr. Walswright said there was "no way" that postal carriers could be kept out that long.

Council Not Sure It Now Wants Land

TRENTON — More than $25,000 of municipal tax was used here in an unsuccessful court attempt to prove the town owned a road easement extending south from Canadian Tire to Centennial Park.

Now that Canadian Tire is giving the land away the town isn't sure it wants it.

Canadian Tire, not involved in the earlier court actions that drove up cost the town upwards of $15,000, is giving the land away on the condition it provide the easement will be turned into a road within one year.

Council, which fought expensively for title to the property, is not sure now if a road would be advisable, with one councillor pointing out the road would be beneficial for customers leaving the south entrance of the drive parking lot.

Councillor Boo Patrick, at Monday night, mentioned the congested traffic near the arena during hockey season. He asked if it would be a good move to build a road but place a blockade across it when hockey was not in play.

Councillor Ed Todd was originally drew attention to the town's duty in court, was not openly pleased with the blockade suggestion and preferred stringent speed limit restrictions.

Council's decision as to the fate of the property now seems to rest on a report from the chief of police which should outline area traffic needs.

Trenton Policeman Inquiry

Schwager Hearing Is Told Arbitrator Has No Authority

The first decision provincial arbitrator Thomas - McIver must make in the hearing of town policeman Carm Schwager is whether he has the judicial right to make a decision at all.

John Sanderson, representing the town which dismissed Mr. Schwager from his duties several months ago, told the hearing Monday: "With great respect, you (Mr. McIver) have no jurisdiction to interpret the regulation or decide on it."

Mr. Sanderson paraphrased the case saying there were three questions: (1) Did the board have any right to require four medical examinations rather than the normal one? (2) Should there be a hearing of the board before termination could take place? (3) Is there any question of the correctness of the decision to terminate Mr. Schwager's employment?

Mr. Sanderson said only the first question dealing with a collective agreement between the police association and the town was under the arbitrator's jurisdiction.

Mr. Sanderson said the right of appeal of the termination decision should be taken up with the police commission and not with an arbitrator.

Neither during the hearing or in an interview later could Mr. McIver explain what his stand was in response to the challenge.

Dennis Latten, representing the Ontario Police Association countered, "You have complete jurisdiction."

Mr. Latten, in his closing remarks said, "the town had not discharged Mr. Schwager in accordance with the Police Act."

The commission has relieved Mr. Schwager from his duties as court officer on medical grounds involving an injured knee.

Mr. Latten questioned why the man was being fired now when the department was completely aware of the knee problem 15 years ago when Mr. Schwager came onto the force?

Medical reports continually came up during Monday's session. "The requirements of a policeman, as set out by the chief, was placed around the head of Mr. Schwager so tightly he simply couldn't pass the test. Neither could the chief, the deputy of most sergeants on the force," added Mr. Latten.

John Pringle, crown attorney of Hastings County and newly-appointed county judge of Norfolk County, spoke highly of Mr. Schwager, having had dealings with him in court.

"I was always impressed with the man, the way he anticipated and thought ahead helping both the crown and the defense."

Mr. Pringle described Mr. Schwager as a "conscientious and dedicated man."

"He could use his head like most of us have been told to work as far as I could see."

In his closing statement, Mr. McIver said, "I'll get the award out as soon as I can. I might come to the conclusion that I don't have the jurisdiction."

Both during the hearing and later in his quarters, Mr. McIver said it was "unfeasable how the local Police Commission had dismissed Mr. Schwager after 15 years with the ailments and without a hearing."

New Region

Former Warden Heads Durham

TORONTO (CP) — Chairmen for the newly created regional municipalities of Durham, Peel, Hamilton-Wentworth and Niagara were sworn into office at a Queen's Park ceremony today.

Senior Controller Anne Jones of Hamilton was appointed chairman of Hamilton-Wentworth and becomes the first woman to head an upper-tier government in Ontario.

George Hall Masson, 59, of Oakville is the new chairman of Halton. Reeve Lou Parsons, 29, of Minaki was appointed chairman of Peel while Walter Rendall, 54, former warden of Ontario county, was named chairman of Durham.

All appointments were for three years.

The new regional municipalities were established during the last session of the legislature and elections are scheduled for the four regions Oct. 1. Organizational meetings are tentatively set for Oct. 15.

The changeover of the local municipalities takes effect on Jan. 1, 1974 and the newly appointed chairmen will begin preparatory work immediately.

Mr. White said the position of chairman is considered a full-time job and said they will not engage actively in any private business activity during their terms.

The minister paid tribute to the work done in setting up the new regional governments and said the quality of the new chairmen will facilitate the complex tasks facing the new municipalities.

There are already seven two-tier municipalities in Ontario.

They are Metro Toronto, Ottawa-Carleton, Muskoka, Sudbury, Niagara, Waterloo and York.

A Cool Cat

Remus is an eight-week-old kitten — owned by a Picton family — who has found one way of keeping cool during a sog, hot summer. It's too warm for chasing mice or playing with a ball of yarn, so Remus has taken to his private hammock — a daisy-filled hanging flowerpot.

Old-Fashioned?

We read somewhere recently that if fathers were around home more, with their kids — even during the day (if that were possible, and in these days of supposedly greater leisure it should be) then it would make for a healthier society.

Consider the plight then of Toronto building contractor Mario Stivaletti.

Mr. Stivaletti, who is clearly a man of European background and doubtless has strong ideas on family discipline and solidarity, took his 15-year-old boy with him to a construction site.

The boy was not doing anything of a work nature and received no pay, but Mr. Stivaletti wanted him there because he "needs strict attention and fatherly authority." Better this, he said than that he become involved with bad company, drugs and that sort of thing.

So what happened? The boy was removed from the job site two weeks ago after 40 employees of Ontario Housing Corporation picketed the project and threatened to walk out because "child labor" was being used.

Mr. Stivaletti told the story in a letter to a Toronto newspaper. It says a lot about the gulf between the old-fashioned — and still reliable — concepts of work and discipline and parental supervision and the latter-day attitude of laissez-faire . . . the hell with it . . . I'm all right Jack and all that.

Tahiti Crash

It was sad to read of that crash of a Boeing 707 after taking off from Papeete (Pap-ay-et-ai) in Tahiti.

The same type of plane is in use by airlines around the world. They fly in and out of Trenton all the time. So what happened in this case to make the plane fall into the sea after take-off? It is said the plane's captain requested emergency procedures for landing on arrival from Auckland NZ, and that a windshield was replaced before resumption of the flight to Los Angeles. The crest is a mystery. Lone survivor James Campbell of Arnprior, Ontario, said he heard a crack, then the plane started to go down and he found himself in oil-smeared water.

Did the windshield give way again? Aircraft engineers in Auckland expressed puzzlement at this idea, since the windshield is virtually unbreakable.

No doubt the official probe that always follows such a tragedy will shed light on the affair. The airline concerned prides itself in being the "world's most experienced," and its record is a good one, yet we are left once again with the sense of frailty and imperfection that lies at the root of all human endeavor. At the practical level other airlines using this machine will want to take a closer look at maintenance procedures which the public has a right to expect are already strict.

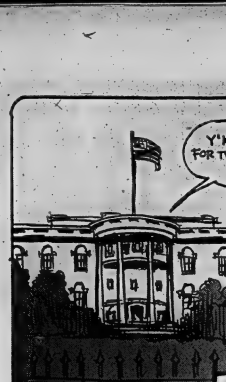
Farming Hazardous

There may be fewer farmers than ever before in Canada, but their livelihood remains an exceedingly dangerous one.

Statistics released by the Farm Safety Council in conjunction with Farm Safety Week July 25-31 revealed that the accidental death rate on Canadian farms is 20 per cent above the national average.

The current farm accident rate takes about 1,400 lives annually, with another 25,000 injured and 1,500 permanently disabled.

Unfortunately, the farmer seems to be his own worst enemy.



He lets his children operate tractors and equipment far beyond their physical or mental capabilities. The result is that one in ten farm machinery deaths involves the under-ten age group, with another 16 per cent striking those between the ages of ten and 19.

Tractor overturns account for a great number of farm mishaps. But how many farmers equip their tractors with protective rollbars or crush-resistant cabs?

Even racing car drivers are protected by such devices and their death rate is much lower than that of farmers.

Many Things in Common

Commonwealth Strange

Ottawa Le Droit: . . . What a strange group is this ill-assorted assembly of nations (the Commonwealth) which holds in common such things as the English language, British institutions and recognition of the Queen as personification of the group's moral unity, although she is monarch of only a few of these nations. . .

Among the members of this club are representatives of all races, all colors, all religions and all political regimes. Christians and Moslems rub elbows with pro-Communists and neutrals . . . India has 500 million inhabitants; Samoa, in the Pacific, only 130,000.

In Australia, a Labor government is criticizing South Africa and Rhodesia for their racial prejudice towards blacks who form the majority of their populations. In Uganda, General Amin has chased out of the country 50,000 Indians who held British passports.

Pakistan has abandoned the Commonwealth but its seat has been taken by Bangladesh following a bloody war. One wonders why delegates from these nations still wish to get together, unless they want to wash their dirty linen in private.

Food Still Sky-high

Montreal La Presse: A dollar and a half for a beef cutlet a dollar for 20 potatoes, 80 cents for a lettuce and soon. 36 cents for a quart of homogenized milk: there is reason for alarm and to tell the government to do something, for heaven's sake.

In Ottawa, the Opposition makes much of its own suggestions such as removing the 11 per cent federal tax on construction materials, removal of the federal sales tax on clothing, and a 90-day freeze on increase in order to give time to formulate, in co-operation with the provinces, business and labor, a two-year price stabilization program.

These suggestions are not lacking in interest but one wonders what effect they will have on the price of food, the sector where the consumer has the most to lose.

Inquiry Continues

Trois Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: When Jerome Choquette, Quebec justice minister, decided to establish an inquiry into organized crime in Quebec and also to create a special inquiry squad, several people lauded the spirit of initiative shown by the provincial authorities, while others could hardly wait to express their discontent on the pretext that such inquiries only serve to sully the reputations of "honest citizens."

That was last September. Ten months later it is interesting to look at the path followed by his inquiry commission and—its re-evaluate its role in the light of recent events which have shaken apathy of more than one Quebecer. . .

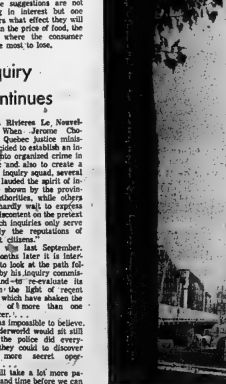
It was impossible to believe, the underworld would sit still while the police did everything they could to discover their more secret operations. . .

It will take a lot more patience and time before we can really begin to understand up to what point the underworld plays a dominant role in Quebec. . . .

Commonwealth Strange Group of Bedfellows?

Even the best-informed histories and political experts cannot find a suitable definition to describe the Commonwealth. This unusual mixture has neither a constitution nor jurisdiction, no statutes or regulations which members must adhere to. This does not exclude agreements on matters which represent advantages for trade, culture, and, over the last several years, aid which the richer nations can provide for the poorer ones. . .

In colonial times, when London was mistress of seven seas, Westminster and Buckingham Palace were the centre of operations. England has been reproached for having been a beneficiary rather than a benefactor in this situation. The profits she made from her possessions and dominions served to consolidate her hegemony and enrich the merchants and bankers in London.



The decline of the colony system, the move towards autonomy and independence in various parts of the empire, the desire of the people to decide their own destinies, all this upset the most carefully-conceived calculations.

The colonies shook off the yoke of imperial solidarity. The European Economic Community is bringing Britain closer to Europe and away from its former feudal subjects. Because of this, the Commonwealth is slowly advancing along a path without knowing here it leads.

"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding." Proverbs 3:13

So many of us pray sincerely for wisdom. What is foolishness the reason we spend so much time in the wilderness of life wondering what went wrong. We are inclined to think it through or worry it through to the human, in preference to turning to Him for divine direction. "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of the Lord who giveth to every man abundantly,"

U.S. Relations Remain Priority For Canada

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomsen News Service

Whatever involvements we have in our foreign policy, an ICCS commitment in Vietnam, aid to developing countries, crises affecting Canadian citizens in trouble abroad currently in Zambia and Cuba, the Canada-U.S. relationship remains the basis of our external relations.

Once these appeared to move smoothly, the pathways greased by mutual friendships across the border in the St. Laurent and Pearson eras and alleged common goals in economic and political policy.

In this regard, the Heeney-Merchant study of the early 1960s appeared to be an honest and frank report of the Canada-U.S. relationship as it existed more than a decade ago.

The late Arnold Heeney was a former Canadian ambassador in Washington and undersecretary of state for external affairs. Livingston Merchant is a former American ambassador in Ottawa.

If the Heeney-Merchant study glossed over issues which today cloud Canadian-American foreign relations, it's because many of them were not seen as issues in the late 1950s, at least not by our diplomats.

The rise of economic nationalism during the late 1960s, the clamor for protection of the Canadian environment, the weakening of our foreign policy in 1970 where sovereignty is concerned, allegedly done in the prime minister's office and not within external affairs, have all changed the rules.

Canada and the United States now speak more harshly to each other in public than ever before. The Canadian government must do so from time to time because public opinion and parliamentary pressures demand it.

Take the energy crisis. In the early 1960s there wasn't one. The consumption of fossil fuels had started to climb to present levels. Everyone assumed we had enough for them to go around until the present energy shortages began early last year.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald's statement last spring that Canada did not have established oil reserves, was probably the first of its kind made by any Canadian minister.

And the present dilemma why Mr. Macdonald's correspondence on an Arctic oil pipeline transmitted through the United States embassy in Ottawa to the American Interior Department previously delayed, relates to American haste to close the gap on their long-term energy needs.

If the Canadians can't decide if they want an oil pipeline through their Arctic or who should own it, then measures should be taken in Washington to have Congress vote the Alaska route.

On trade Canada faces a U.S. with the worst trade deficit in American history compounded by the worst runs in history on the once very strong American dollar.

And finally, the antics of a tough-minded U.S. cabinet minister like former treasury secretary John Connally telling off the Canadians in public represents a new ball game where the traditionally persuasive charms of Canadian and American cabinet ministers meeting in camera don't always prevail.

The signs point to more critical phases of this kind between Ottawa and Washington and tougher style of Canadian diplomacy already emerging, to match it.

German Detente Lacking

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — Two months after the widely-publicized signing of a sweeping friendship treaty between East and West Germany, the expected detente between the two states has failed to develop.

Government officials have managed several stiffly-formal contacts and some liberalized travel arrangements have been put into effect but there is still cold war hostility which has poisoned east-west relations since 1945 remains.

Many observers, and a large section of the German people themselves, had expected a fairly rapid evaporation of old animosities after the signing of the treaty June 22 and, in fact, initially there happened if a number of unfortunate incidents had not exacerbated tensions.

One of the worst was the shooting last month of East German refugees who tried to cross the border into West Berlin. It led to mass protest demonstrations by West Berliners and an angry denunciation by the West German government in Bonn.

East Germany contended that the refugees had been "planted" by Bonn-inspired conspirators to try to wreck the treaty and they dismissed the protests as "stage-managed propaganda."

The shootings came at the close of the ministerial phase of the European security conference in Helsinki where foreign ministers from the two Germanies had met formally, and tended to wipe out any gains that had been made there as far as treaty was concerned.

A British garrison at Detroit, then a village of 800 months by Indians, made a night attack on Pontiac's camp at what is now Ste 250 years ago today—in 1763—and was repulsed, with heavy losses. Although the siege of Detroit fizzled out, Pontiac's uprising was a success, capturing eight of 12 British forts, and collapsed only when Britain and France made peace. Pontiac was assassinated in 1769. He seems to have been one of the few Indians both to recognize the menace of colonization to his race and able to organize tribes in retaliation.

1863—UN Security Council asked member-states to block Portugal's purchases of arms for use in maintaining rule over African colonies.

1853—Twenty died when a bus hit a stalled truck and plunged into a canal at Morrisburg, Ont.

1946—The Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service was retired from active duty.

1914—Britain rejected a German demand that she remain neutral in the event of a war with Russia and France.

1798—The first United States patent was issued to Samuel Hopkins of Vermont for his chemical formulae used in soap and glass.

Canadian Pact May Set Pattern for Auto Firms

DETROIT (AP) — The pattern contract for United States auto workers may be negotiated with a Canadian subsidiary, the United Auto Workers union hinted Monday as it presented Chrysler with proposals for its Canadian employees.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock and the UAW Canadian regional vice-president, Donald McDermott, presented Chrysler with demands echoing those given the big three U.S. automakers.

The demands included pay equal to that of U.S. workers, who are making more money because their cost-of-living allowance formula provides more money than the one used in Canada.

"We did not elect Mr. Richard Nixon and we are not about to be stuck with his economic policies," said McDermott.

Woodcock and McDermott both said that if the Nixon administration put into effect controls which would present them with an "unlivable settlement," the target could be in Canada this year.

A Canadian firm could be used as a target "to establish a pattern that would be applicable to the entire industry," Woodcock said.

Chrysler is the only one of the big three which has a joint U.S.-Canadian contract. General Motors and Ford negotiate separate contracts for their Canadian subsidiaries.

Woodcock has said the union can live with the Phase 4 guidelines, but is afraid of possible future controls. The union is demanding a no-cooper clause in its US contracts because of the possibility of government intervention, Woodcock has said.

Emphasis in the Canadian demands centered on "ending the anachronism of compulsory overtime."

Many Canadian workers, McDermott said, are wearing themselves to exhaustion "overtime, ask me, don't tell me."

McDermott also presented demands for retirement after 30 years of service, increased profit sharing and other demands which paralled American Auto Workers' demands in many respects.

McDermott said UAW workers in Canada and the U.S. should be covered by the same cost-of-living formula.

Woodcock would not formally changed this year to provide workers with a one-per-cent pay boost for every one-per-cent increase in the cost of living. He said U.S. workers now get only three-quarters of the actual cost-of-living increase and Canadian workers less than that.

In the area of voluntary overtime, Ontario provincial law limits the number of hours a man can be forced to work to eight hours a day, six days a week.

But the auto companies are allowed to get permits to get their employees to work more hours for more days.

"The corporation feels that the contract suggests the law at times and at other times it feels the law supersedes the contract, depending upon which would benefit it more," McDermott said.

The Canadian unionist point out that is almost all of UAW contracts in Canada voluntary overtime is the rule, the same rule he said he is determined to apply to Chrysler.

Talks between the union and Canada's Massey-Ferred will be in Toronto. Woodcock said he will be there next week for those sessions.

Canadian Packers Buying U.S. Cattle

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Canadian meat packers are buying cattle from markets in Iowa and Nebraska for slaughter and processing in Canada and eventual resale in the United States, the Iowa Cattlemen's Association.

Larry Kallem, executive vice-president of the Iowa organization, said Canadian packers have made cattle purchases at markets in Sioux City and Omaha, Neb.

He said sources indicated that a total of 18 carloads of cattle were purchased by the Canadians during a two-week period. Kallem said the Canadian packers can make a profit because meat imported to the United States aren't controlled by the price ceilings established for beef, he added that the practice is entirely legal.

Kallem said he believes most of the beef is destined for the East Coast, where it can be sold duty free for a carcass price of 77.5 cents a pound, 24 cents a pound more than a U.S. packer could ask under the current price ceilings.

Because price controls on beef won't be lifted until Sept. 13, the Iowa Cattlemen's Association officials said buyers from Ontario purchased about 2,000 head of cattle Monday. An additional 189 head were reported purchased by Canadian packers at Omaha.

Kallem said the Canadians bought top-grade cattle, instead of the lower-quality cattle usually purchased for the Canadian domestic market.

Army Worms Attack Crops

WINNIPEG (CP) — Cereal crops in southern Manitoba and Manitoba are being attacked by the second wave of army worms in recent memory—and agricultural officials are looking for insecticide to beat them back.

Dave Smith, senior entomologist with the provincial agriculture department, said Monday the worms are ravaging the west more than the last major infestation recorded in 1964. Affected acreage was impossible to estimate as calls from farmers were coming in hourly.

Farmers Demand Minister Attend

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Ontario region of the National Farmers Union (NFU) sent a telegram Monday to Premier William Davis demanding that either he or Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart attend the second and final day of their annual meeting here today.

Blake Sanford, area co-coordinator, told about 300 members that he hasn't received any times to Mr. Stewart since April inviting him to the meet-

Dairy Industry Said in Trouble

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A combination of falling production and increasing competition has placed Canada's dairy farmers in a serious situation, Ellard Powers, Canadian dairy commission chairman, said Monday.

Mr. Powers told about 300 delegates at the National Farmers' Union (NFU) annual Ontario region meeting that "a review of feed, labor and supply costs" is needed to keep the dairy industry "viable and large enough to supply the domestic market."

ing but had not received a reply until July 23 that said the minister "is not available at the moment."

Mr. Sanford said that while other provinces have ministers of agriculture attend their annual meetings, Mr. Stewart has attended an Ontario meeting in 1968.

"How much longer do the farmers of Ontario have to accept this? Because they have problems face them," asked Mr. Sanford.

All the farmers seek is an enunciation of Mr. Stewart's plans because they have a number of their problems, he said.

Copies of the telegrams were also sent to Ontario opposition leaders.

Spokesmen for the premier and Mr. Stewart were not immediately available for comment.

In other business, Roy Atkinson, NFU president, pressed for implementation of a national feed grains policy. He said this would give farmers a fair return for their investment, bring stability and balance to the food production system, prevent a grain crisis and reverse the trend toward declining food production in Canada.

Federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan is expected to announce a national feed-grains policy within the next two weeks.

Newsmen's Union Squabbles Over Political Involvement

VANCOUVER (CP) — A sharp floor fight looms at The Newspaper Guild's 40th annual convention over the guild's controversial endorsement of United States Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern last year.

James Woods of St. Louis, retiring chairman of the guild's international executive board which made the unanimous decision to back Senator McGovern, told the 330 delegates as the convention opened Monday that newspapermen aren't "political eunuchs."

A reporter's duty affiliations don't compromise his work, he said, and a trade union movement of one political candidate shouldn't put a shadow over his objectivity or independence.

At the same time, the North New Jersey local of the guild placed a motion before the convention, to be dealt with later this week, sharply criticizing the endorsement. The motion would require a referendum among the guild's 32,000 U.S. members before any future endorsement is made.

The endorsement and ensuing controversy last summer "embarrassed members engaged in the coverage of those political conventions, blurred the image of newspapers seeking as goal the fair and impartial coverage of public events, reduced the efficiency of newspapers in holding back any unilateral source of news, and raised talk of the need to form a new union for newsroom employees," the resolution says.

Outweighing any benefits to the guild was the disruption in the ranks of guild members, many of whom publicly dissociated themselves from the decision, it says.

Mr. Woods, however, said there was nothing more natural than the guild going on record in opposition to President Nixon, the "chief assaulter and critic."

"Who could quarrel with the guild opposing an administration that has such a record as that of Richard Nixon? How have we fared under 'Nixonomics' curtails? Who has invoked executive privilege for himself but denied us newsman's privilege?"

Guild President Charles Perrile sounded the same theme in reporting the guild's economic progress during two years of Nixon's price and wage controls. "A sorry state of affairs," he called it.

Unicyclist Wally Waite, 24 - year - old Edmonton native, pedalled through Barrie on Monday on his way to Toronto and is already claiming a world record for long distance riding on one wheel. To date, Mr. Waite has travelled 3,164 miles and is still going strong. The CPR bike car inspector started out from Vancouver last May 26, the only problems to date have been the weather, rain, hail and sleet — and the nasty hardflies of Ontario. He is headed for Halifax.

Man Held In Toronto Murder

TORONTO (CP) — John McBeth Finlayson, 37, wanted in connection with the strangulation of nine-year-old Kim Dressley, was arrested Monday in Burlington, Ont., and returned here by Toronto Homicide detectives.

The boy's mutilated body was found Friday in a downtown hotel. He did not return home Thursday night.

A warrant for Finlayson's arrest on a charge of non-capital murder had been issued.

A crowd of 200, some carrying pieces of board, followed police cruiser as they escorted and investigated the search in Toronto for the boy's killer.

Kirby, who is active in many sports, will be buried today in the Little Lake cemetery.

Police at Burlington said Finlayson was picked up on a tip from a person who identified the wanted man from news photographs.

He offered no resistance when Sgt. Douglas Skinford found him hitch-hiking on the Burlington road about 35 miles from downtown Toronto.

'Flexibility' Is Evident

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian Finance Minister John Turner detected a "spirit of flexibility" Monday at the opening stage of a monetary conference here, but cautioned that current world trends on world currency problems are likely to be long and difficult.

Finance ministers and central-bank governors from 20 countries are meeting at International Monetary Fund headquarters here to prepare the ground for a full-dress world monetary conference in Nairobi at the end of September.

Denturists Warned Not to Ignore Law

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter warned Ontario denturists Monday to take provincial examinations this fall to qualify to practise within the law.

The Denturists Society of Ontario sent a letter to the ministers several weeks ago saying its members will not take the test because of a law proclaimed July 8, requiring denturists to operate under the control and supervision of a dentist.

Dr. Potter said in an interview that the new law will be enforced, with fines up to $2,000 for anyone fitting dentures without having passed provincial examinations.

"The denturists society cannot get itself out, as a law unto itself," Dr. Potter said.

He noted that 42 per cent of the denturists who tried a qualifying exam in May failed and said such a high rate "does raise serious questions as to the qualifications of present practitioners."

Admit Jews

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Elliot Richardson invoked his parole authority Monday to permit the quick entry into the United States of about 800 Soviet Jews who have spent several months in Rome. The action was to bypass the lengthy proceedings necessary to process visas for immigrants. After they come to the U.S., the attorney-general said they may apply for permanent immigrant status.

Mini Prisons Planned

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The federal government will build more "mini prisons" in the next five years in an effort to combat overcrowding in present institutions, John Braithwaite, deputy commissioner for penitentiaries said Monday.

He said the new prisons will be built because prison populations are expected to continue increasing.

"These penitentiaries will be on a much smaller scale with only 200 inmates at maximum," Mr. Braithwaite said in an interview.

He said the institutions are being planned as medium security "because that is our immediate need."

"Essentially we hope to make them minimum-security institutions," he said.

Haldeman Heard Tapes, Annoying Senate Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — H. R. Haldeman faced the questions of the Senate Watergate committee today after revealing that he listened to recordings of two critical meetings he and John Dean had with President Nixon.

Haldeman, once the president's closest aide, told the committee in a 90-page opening statement Monday the tapes do not support Dean's assertion that Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up months before Nixon said he learned of it.

The former White House chief of staff said his recollection of the meetings, refreshed by listening to the tapes, confirmed that many of the subjects Dean said were discussed were in fact taken up—but he directly contradicted Dean's version of those portions that would implicate the president.

Haldeman also testified that Dean appeared to be genuinely confused about a third meeting between the three men because subjects Dean said came up at that meeting actually were discussed a week later.

The Senate committee is preparing to go to court, probably this week, in an effort to force Nixon to release the tapes. The chairman, Sen. Sam Ervin (D-N.C.), listened to two of them immediately raised the question of why he should have access when the committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox have been refused.

Later, the White House said that Senator Nixon aides—J. Fred Buzhardt and Stephen Bull—have listened to the two tape recordings.

Haldeman said he listened to the tapes at a March 21 meeting while he was still chief of staff, but the recording of a Sept. 15, 1972, meeting was made available to him in July, after Dean had testified and after Haldeman had resigned from the White House staff.

"I think it's a strange thing that Mr. Haldeman can hear these tapes and this committee cannot hear them," said Senator Sam Ervin, chairman of the committee.

Dean, whose Nixon fired as presidential counsel, said the Sept. 15 meeting was the first occasion when he had that Nixon was aware of the cover-up. That was the day the indictments came down against the original seven defendants.

The 34-year-old lawyer testified: "The president told me I had done a good job and he appreciated how difficult a task it had been and the president was pleased that the case had stopped with convicted conspirator G. Gordon Liddy."

Haldeman said the meeting did not open with "anything even remotely resembling" the president telling him what a good job Dean had done.

"He said, 'Hi, this was quite a day.' You've got Watergate on the way,' or something to that effect," Haldeman testified.

"The president did at that point commend Dean for his handling of the whole Watergate matter, which was a perfectly natural thing for him to do."

Dean swore: "I left the meeting with the impression that the president was well aware of what had been going on regarding the success of keeping the White House out of the Watergate scandal, and I also had expressed to him my concern that it was not confident that the cover-up could be maintained indefinitely."

Haldeman countered: "I totally disagree with the impression that the president was aware of any type of cover-up, and certainly Mr. Dean did not advise him of it at the Sept. 15 meeting."

The March 21 meeting, which both men discussed in similar detail, was by Nixon's own account the source of new information that led him to launch his own broad investigation of the Watergate this spring.

Dean said he told Nixon how plans for the break-in at Democratic headquarters had first come up in January, 1972, that special presidential counsel Charles Colson had pressed the campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder to get the plans moving, that former attorney-general John Mitchell and Haldeman may have approved the attempt to blackmail the White House for more money.

Haldeman testified Dean told the president his findings and suspicions regarding events leading up to the break-in, but regarding subsequent events, "the indictment covers almost two problems: money and cloak-and-dagger."

"The president confirmed that he could not offer clemency," Haldeman said.

Dean's account said one of the most interesting comments he had with the president occurred March 13, eight days before he testified and after Dean said he gave Nixon a complete picture of the Watergate affair.

On March 13, Dean testified: "I told the president about the fact that a Senate select committee had been established, ... He asked me how much it would cost.

"I told him that I could only make an estimate that it might be as high as $1 million or more. He told me that that was no problem, and he also looked over at Haldeman and repeated the same statement.

"He then asked me who was demanding the money, and I told him it was principally coming from Hurt through his attorney. The president then referred to the fact that Hunt had been promised executive clemency."

Haldeman testified: "Some of what he describes in quite vivid detail as happening on March 13 did, in fact, happen on March 21, I seriously doubt that the conversation John Dean has described actually took place on March 13."

Haldeman said the discussion about the $1 million came up at a later meeting.

"The president said, 'There is no problem in raising $1 million; we can do that, but it would be wrong,'" Haldeman quoted him.

The dates are significant because by Dean's account the president was aware of the cover-up for many months and participated in efforts to perpetuate it.

Before Haldeman took his seat at the witness table, the committee concluded its five-day investigation of former presidential aide John Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman's closing session was marked by bickering, arguments between him and committee chief counsel Samuel Dash and outbursts of temper and exasperation by lawyers and John Wilson, lawyer for both Ehrlichman and Haldeman.

"I think what we are going through now shows that this investigation is getting tired," observed Senator Howard Baker (R-Tenn.), committee vice-chairman.

The committee had voted in executive session earlier in the day to continue the hearings through Aug. 3. Senate recessed "over my firm objection," Baker said.

Illegal Immigrants Can Legalize Status

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to proclaim legislation later this week giving illegal immigrants in Canada a chance to legalize their status before Christmas.

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Monday that a 60-day per-cent sure" proclamation will take place Wednesday, but the department spokesman said later "a snag has come up" and proclamation will not come until sometime later in the week.

Pleased with all-party support in the Commons, the legislation offers all illegal immigrants 60 days to come forward and declare themselves to immigration officials.

The deadline, if the bill becomes law later in the week, would be early October.

Estimates of the number of illegal immigrants in Canada range from 50,000 to 200,000 but Mr. Andras says the government "honestly doesn't know" the exact figure.

The legislation is designed to cover all illegal immigrants 18 years of age or older now living they have been in Canada.

In particular, it will cover those caught in the amnesty last Nov. 3 of regulations allowing visitors to apply for Canadian immigrant status.

To qualify under the bill, a person must have been in Canada no later than Nov. 30 last year but will not have to qualify under the normal points system used to determine acceptability

"As far as the government goes we're throwing the points system out," Mr. Andras said in an interview Monday.

Feeding Baby from the Table

Fresh garden vegetables, properly cooked and pureed are probably better for your baby than canned baby foods according to Teresita Veluz, therapeutic dietician at Belleville General Hospital.

But, she warned, improperly cooked, home-made baby food could be less nutritious than the purchased jars.

Vegetables, for example, Mrs. Veluz says, should always be cooked covered in a small amount of water.

Then, for the young infant, sieved and mixed with the cooking water and served or put through a blender with the cooking water.

"The vitamins are in the water," she says.

Mrs. Veluz recommends most vegetables for babies but suggests parents stay away from cabbage, corn, spinach and beets in the first months.

Cooked meat from the table may be introduced to babies from five to seven months old, she says. The meat is "Whatever meat the family is eating" — could be strained or scraped or processed in a blender until fine.

"Liver should be fed once in a while, too," Mrs. Veluz says. "Once a week should be sufficient."

Strained family oranges can be given to infant when diluted with boiled water.

"Don't boil the juice itself," she adds. "the vitamins could be killed."

Instead of purchasing jars of egg yolks, Mrs. Veluz says that hard cooked eggs also can be sieved and then mixed with cereal or formula food then omit it and try again in a couple of weeks," she says.

Canned baby foods, of course, are always one convenience.

However, she says, no personal value of home-prepared baby foods would not be significantly affected if they were made in large amounts and then frozen in individual serving sizes.

Most babies object to some plain foods and mixing, for example cereal and fruit or making egg yolk custard, is fairly acceptable.

For some guidance in preparing a balanced meal for your baby, here's the BGH menu plan for babies six months to a year:

Breakfast: Juice, fruit, cream of wheat with milk, or egg (yolk), toast and milk.

Luncheon: Mixed potatoes, vegetables, fruit, or custard, bread and milk. Dinner: meat or egg, mixed potatoes, vegetable fruit or milk pudding, bread and milk. (All items are prepared as for babies, that is, pureed properly for each age.

"But no egg white for babies until they're eight to 10 months old because of the frequency of allergies," Mrs. Veluz says.

Fruits from the family larder must all be cooked, Mrs. Veluz says, for young babies, with the exception of bananas. Ripe mashed bananas may be fed to small babies.

Cereal, too, doesn't need to be the instant baby-type but can be ordinary, oatmeal type source recommends running the uncooked oatmeal through a blender before adding boiling water for the young infant) Red River Cereal or Cream of Wheat.

"Add just a few grains of salt to cereals or vegetables," Mrs. Veluz recommends, but stresses "other spices are out."

Introduce only one new food at a time and only about a tablespoon of that.

She says babies should be allowed to become familiar with each food.

Most foods like very thin consistencies in solids, Mrs. Veluz says, but as they grow you can gradually thicken the consier.

"A little coarser starting at six months and gradually changing consistency until, when he is able to chew, you can gradually substitute finely chopped foods."

Mrs. Veluz cautions that an infant shouldn't be forced to take more of a food than he takes willingly nor should parents persist with foods the infant rejects.

"After a few trials, if it's apparent he doesn't like the Spectacular Hollywood Weddings For Star and Celebrity

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Two of the more spectacular weddings in Hollywood history took place this year, but Marcia Seligson, an expert on United States marriage customs, believes the super-colossal wedding is a thing of the past now.

The two recent spectaculars were the weddings of singer Dean Martin and of swimming star Mark Spitz, an aspiring actor.

Miss Seligson, author of The Eternal Bliss Machine: American Way of Wedding, notes the decline of the spectacular Hollywood wedding to the end of the studio system.

"In the golden era of Hollywood . . . there was a publicity thing as a movie star having a private life and the weddings of the stars were public events.

"Hollywood weddings have faded from that grand circus quality they used to have.

"Another reason for the reluctance of the stars to get married at extravagant public ceremonies is—whoever heard of a Hollywood star getting married for the first time?

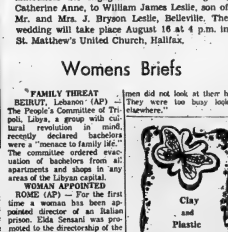
"Even in Hollywood it's not considered altogether good taste to have that kind of backchassis when it's the fifth or sixth wedding."

All the same Dean Martin, 56, married twice before, and model Cathy Haven, 25, decided in April that they would have an extravagant wedding with television cameras and reporters recording the event.

Singer Frank Sinatra was best man, Martin's seven children by previous marriages attended and the flower bill—including 10 dozen lilies of the valley brought into Miss Haven's hair—came to $60,000.

Hundreds of white doves were released from cages and one female dove laid an egg which was considered a very auspicious event.

Miss Seligson says the Martin wedding went against the current trend in modern Hollywood but the Mark Spitz wedding was a different case.



"He is a middle-class Jewish boy marrying a middle-class Jewish girl in the Crystal Room of the Beverly Hills Hotel. It is the prince and the princess come true and the wedding was simply the convention."

Seven thousand peonies were flown in from Munich, one thousand for each of his seven gold medals at the Munich Olympic Games, for his wedding to Susan Weiner, 20, a university student.

Miss Seligson, who spent three years researching her book, while attending thousands of weddings, says some stars have turned to weddings with poetic rituals written by themselves.

Among stars who have favored the "Free form" wedding recently are Jane Fonda and Rod Steiger.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. John MacInnes, Halifax, announce the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Anne, to William James Leslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bryson Leslie, Belleville. The wedding will take place August 18 at 4 p.m. in St. Matthew's United Church, Halifax.

Everybody Showed Up at Convention Committees 'Outdid Themselves'

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor
CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)

When a local branch invites a national organization to hold a convention in its home town, glad cries go up from the home team if the answer is yes.

Then there's a lull for a year or two.

About a year and a half before the convention is actually held, the organizing work slowly begins, piling up in an avalanche of detail by the time the great days actually arrive.

Mrs. J. T. Davies says all 175 members of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE) in Prince Edward Island were involved before delegates began checking in. The order accepted Charlottetown's invitation three years ago. Mrs. Davies was organising chairman.

They accepted so enthusiastically that nearly 500 delegates arrived when only delegates arrived when only 300 were expected, and P.E.I.'s committees had to keep producing more and more of everything.

Mrs. Davies said the first day, taken about a year and a half ago, were to make reservations with hotels and the local chamber of commerce. They had looked at registrations for previous IODE conventions to get an approximate attendance number.

Mrs. Davies said they had 16 committees, including accommodations, transportation, information and hospitality.

A chapter outside Charlottetown was asked to look after souvenirs and everyone sewed "Spud Island" potato bags to fill with the convention doodads, pads and pencils, tissue and matches.

An information committee collected menus, drew maps, made hair appointments and directed people to the liquor stores and handicraft shops.

The transportation committee came in for some unexpected effort when five minor accidents required emergency treatment.

Committeewoman Dorothy Johnson said they drew on local youth groups to provide entertainment at dinners and lunches.

"We tried to keep the entertainment young, nothing heavy."

They also drew on people who had worked in the Red Glove Revues the IODE had sponsored over several years to help raise money for the convention.

In the opening days, while the national executive was being welcomed, parties given in members' homes, and a provincial hospitality room was doing its share early-arriving delegates were met and sent to their friends.

Mrs. Davies said members and official hosts alike rose to the challenge of looking after the 200 extra delegates.

"When we first went from here to Summerside, we had 50 cars and two buses. This is where the committees really outdid themselves.

"We just kept pulling cars up and filling them. Mayor Ross MacKenzie of Summerside received all 400 of the delegates. He had intended to have a reception but, with 400 milling in, the receiving was very informal, I assure you.

"We had planned a tour by double-decker bus and private cars to the north shore, and 200 wanted to go. We had lunch at a new restaurant in Tignish, a fishing and fish village. They were a little surprised, as we were. We had expected about 70."

Mrs. Davies said they asked local delegates, with cars to move to accommodation away from the centre of town. They shifted a lunch to a bigger dining room.

The final step, when the delegates leave, is to add up expenses, add up the money in the convention fund, and hope they come out even.

Sweaters 'in' for Fall Fashion

NEW YORK (CP) — Sweaters and sweater looks dominated most of the collections at the American Designer showings here attended by fashion editors from across the United States and Canada.

"The sweater is a major fall influence, both in shape and texture," reports Eleanor Lambert.

"The sweater is definitely the 'top of this year,'" says Victor Costa for Suzy Perette, "but with differences—slipped slanting, the long sweater shirt top, the cardigan with a fitted back, the bike top shaped like a short sweater jacket with waistband but made in fabric."

Real sweaters have flirted with fashion for a good many years. At first more or less shapeless and knitted at home, they were merely casual wardrobe items.

Then came the taut Lana Turner sweater with pleated skirt. The tighter the sweater, the better. This was the Sweater Girl era. Then sweaters fell back into fashion limbo, merely utilitarian.

But by 1960 fashion was proclaiming that "the shape of fall is the shape of the sweater."

This fall the F. Scott Fitzgerald look of 1969, reaching for the knees, is called the cloche-length, the long, draggy type of sweater associated with the French pension caretaker, and the sweaters worn under jackets are pale colors, not flesh-color.

Sweaters are an integral part of a costume this fall. They pull their own fashion weight and bear no relation to the skinny ones favored in 1967.

Suzy Perette showed a three-piece sweater outfit consisting of short-cropped sweater with waistband plus a woven cardigan, both in wavy rib knit of burgundy and ivory, worn over a pleated swingy skirt.

Sweaters take on jacket characteristics this fall. A Perette sweater has a Nehru look. Another designer has shirt sweaters in a long, clingy rib knit, cut like a shirt and worn out or tucked in.

Leo Narducci showed a smoking jacket sweater style with big navy snowflakes on wine, complete with a shawl collar. Indeed, shawl collars are the newest fashion for sweater suits and coats. Some even sport fur shawls.

Adri introduced a shawled, short-ribbed sweater as a jacket with wide knit waistband, in red pepper and worn with matching cuffed sweater cap, black jersey overblouse and black-and-white donegal skirt. Another shawl-collared sweater jacket by Calvin Klein becomes a suit with matching skirt. Klein even adds a silver fox boa.

Gino Fratoni extends his sweater look in "a series of wrapped cardigans, blazers, single-and double-breasted looks, Chanel-type cardigans in everything from heathery tweed to cabled knits and bevvier ribbed weaves."

Sweater dresses are also important. Adele Simpson likes them for daytime in softest angora, pale or vividly striped. Several are in the new light-and-shade effect of cable knit. Most have their own knit cap or turban to match.

Another sweater-type dress was shown by Mrs. Simpson: a short white wool sweater trimmed in camel with a long wool flame-stitched skirt, for casual evenings.

'Old Bone's' Been Buried

Dear Ann Landers: I am a man, nearly 50, and have been married for more than 25 years. We have two grown children and a dog. The dog became a lot about women from watching me dog. She was curious when burying a bone when he tires of it so another dog can't have it. Some women do the same thing. They don't want a man but they hate him legally tied.

Looking back over the years there has always been something that interfered with our sex life. There's a night a week child would be in bed between us with an earache, or afraid of the dark. The other four nights we couldn't make love because "the kids might hear us." Closing the door was out of the question because they might call out and we couldn't hear them.

My wife had a hysterectomy two years ago and says she is "sexually dead." I spoke with her doctor about it and he claims there is no reason why she should feel that way. I may do when he is far from dead and resents being treated like an old bone?—Alive And Kicking

Dear Alive: Read this column to your wife. Tell her you wrote it. Ask her to line up a counsellor for the two of you before her gynecologist. If she refuses, get counselling yourself. I predict you'll have a better life, either with her or without her.

Dear Ann: I hate to complain, but you're wrong. You refused to believe that 75 per cent of the resident's in Seattle are rude to salespeople. I don't know about Seattle, but at least half the barging public in Kansas City, Mo., treat sales clerks like slaves.

Please give awards for excellence and am considered topnotch by my own friends. I also been reported in the manager because I turned my back on a customer after she had been yelling at me for five minutes.

My motto is, "The customer is rarely right—but don't let him know it."—Fighting Alice

Dear Alice: I've been in Kansas City many times and I disagree with your "survey," but I sympathize with a motto like yours is bound to come up with a reading for it sooner or later.

Dear Ann Landers: For seven years I had a serious drinking problem, but refused to admit it. I talk lousy most of the time and developed a reputation for it. I kept running to doctors telling them everything but the truth. Finally, I had it out with myself and faced up to it. I was a drunk. Yes—that beautifully-dressed Mrs. So-and-So, wife of one of the town's most successful men—the mother of those attractive children—an ordinary, everyday drunk. (Now I use the line between "social drinker" and bonnet.)

I was feeling fantastically low when I read a letter from another drunk who said she couldn't possibly go to A.A. because she was afraid of the loss of dignity. You should see how dignified I was at cocktail parties, except in the powder room and be hungover the next day in front of her children. That answer convinced me to go to A.A. I read it six months ago and haven't had a drink since. I not only feel like a new person. I am a new person. Thanks for the above, dear Lady. I am—Reborn In St. Louis

Dear R. In S.L.: Welcome to the world of the living! I hope others will take the cue from you as you took it from another reader. Heartiest congratulations.

Native Women Nationalize

WINNIPEG (CP) — After two previous unsuccessful attempts, the National Native Women's Association has taken a major step toward the creation of an official national organization.

At its third annual conference here on the weekend, delegates approved a draft constitution to be taken back to provincial organizations for consideration.

The draft constitution lists the group's purposes as improving the living and working conditions of native women, informing them of their legal rights and cultural heritage and co-operating with other women's organizations with similar goals.

Previous attempts to form a national organization for native women failed at meetings in Alberta in 1971 and in Saskatchewan last year when group differences could not be reconciled.

Rufus Goldstraker, who runs an all-Indian dude ranch in Alberta, said in an interview that interest in Indian languages and religion is increasing.

"For years, we were disgusted with white civilization," he said. "Now our culture is being revived, especially by the young who find that Christianity doesn't work for them."

Elizabeth Locke, an observer on the advisory council on the status of women, expressed similar views.

"Young people are asking their elders about religion and legend. There is a tremendous revival of the spiritual Indian culture," she said.

"Ten years ago, everyone thought the Indian culture was going to die."

'What Is Sex For?'

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Don't you realize you are behind the times in trying to hold onto the moral code of 30 or more years ago?

Don't you know that a teenager is just not one of the crowd if she doesn't have a boy friend and she doesn't go all the way with him?

What is sex for, anyway? — Teen-Ager.

Dear Teen-Ager: Well, since you ask me, I am inclined to put the question squarely up to the individual, whatever age or sex. It is not a matter of following the crowd; sheep can do that. It is a matter of recognizing that the indulgence of your whole body in sexual "caring relationships", one after another, I gather - results too often in a broken heart and a sort of self-loathing.

My message to our growing-up youngsters, nowadays, is to know what it is you are doing, that you make an important decision (either way), to know how to protect yourselves, and to learn something about the biological aspect which is up to them to work the miracles themselves.

But even to have a small band in it all is thrilling!

Confidential to In Love: Hold on! There must be a hell of a lot of trial marriage. This does not cut down the risk of heartbreak if two people separate, and it does not carry with it the effort toward success that a formal commitment does. Nor do I condone it.

What if a disappointing percentage of marriages do end in divorce? Think about the ones that don't; and get acquainted with what family life can mean, where two mature individuals, acting as a loving unit, bring children into the world.

Dear Doris: I am interested in your views and several stories from people who read about the young man I was able to help.

I t is too bad that one of these comedies was from someone living in a Canadian city 1500 miles from where I live. But just the same you were able to give him someone to go to and see. I think it is wonderful that you are able to offer these people direct sources of help, names and all.

I suppose my only comment is to wonder how many people read in the newspapers or magazines of someone getting help, and draw the conclusion that there are miracle workers out there some place, instead of just plain, plodding humble folk - like us! — Psychiatric Consultant.

Dear P.C.: Well, it is a miracle, isn't it, if a person can be helped to change the direction of his thinking and thus the direction of his whole life into healthier channels?

But I agree with you that we do not work those miracles. We, in reparative cases, are able to help people to see their whole situation more clearly; to interpret other people to them; and to give them the factual support which is up to them to work the miracles themselves.

Dear Ann Landers: Re the letter from the woman who was afraid to tell her husband she had been raped:

Tell him. Tell him before he hears it from someone else. Tell him before he reads it in the paper. Tell him before he sees it on the police blotter. Tell him before he finds out from the neighbors.

Tell him before he finds out from the neighbors. Tell him before he finds out from the neighbors. Tell him before he finds out from the neighbors.

Turbo Passed Signal, Causing Rail Collision

MONTREAL (CP) — J. W. G. Macdougall, executive vice-president of Canadian National Railways, on Monday predicted many investigations indicate that a collision July 29 between an Amtrak turbo train and a CN freight was caused by the turbo passing a red stop signal.

Mr. Macdougall said in a statement the turbo passing through the light did not appear to be related to any deficiency in the equipment.

The freight was making a properly authorized movement from one track to another through a series of switches when the turbo passed the signal protecting the area, sideswiping four cars near the rear of the freight train, the statement said.

Eleven railway officials and crew members were injured and the $2-million turbo train destroyed by a fire after the crash.

The four car turbo, built by United Aircraft of Canada Ltd., was one of two such trains purchased for $4.1 million last December by Amtrak, the U.S. corporation which runs intercity passenger train service in the country.

The train was beginning a 360-mile-return test run to Brockville, Ont., at the time of the accident. The run was part of the pre delivery tests preceding Amtrak taking final possession of the trains.

Change Halted

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission Monday suspended a proposal by the railways to introduce a new freight rate demurrage system until after a public hearing in September.

The demurrage plan was to take effect this Wednesday but was opposed by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Under the existing system shippers are allowed 48 hours free of charge to load boxcars and 48 hours free for unloading cars. After that shippers must pay $10 a day for the first four days and $20 daily thereafter.

The railways proposed to reduce the free period for loading to 24 hours in a May application.

The pulp and paper group asked for a hearing, contending they could not clear the cars in the reduced period.

Limit Gifts

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Senate, acting in the wake of the Watergate scandal, approved tough new campaign financing legislation Monday, limiting individual contributions in any election year to $25,000.

The Senate approved and sent the bill to the House of Representatives by a 83-0 vote.

The legislation was spurred in part from revelations that some individuals had given millions of dollars to candidates in the 1972 U.S. election.

Wolves Poisoned

NEW YORJ (CP) — Two wolves, just back from a month-long tour of Canada as ambassadors in the cause of saving their species from extinction, were killed during the weekend by poison.

The animals—a seven-year-old, 85-pound Canadian timber wolf named Jethro and a four-year-old, 110-pound Alaska tundra wolf named Clem—were apparently fed raw chicken necks laced with strychine as they spent the night in a parked mobile van that had served as their den-on-the-road.

Asks Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Teamsters boss James Hoffa opened an office here Monday to plug for prison reform, with an acknowledgment that "it won't hurt" in his quest to recapture the presidency of the largest United States labor union.

Parole Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clifford Irving, the man convicted of attempting to write a bogus biography of billionaire Howard Hughes, was denied parole Monday by the United States Parole Board.

Irving, 42, was sentenced to two years and six months in August, 1972, after being convicted of conspiring to defraud the publishing house of McGraw-Hill.

The board said it will review his case next January.

May Buy Coal

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has launched a study into the possibility of bringing large quantities of Alberta coal to Ontario.

The announcement was made Monday by Gordon Carton, minister of transportation and communications, who said Ontario Industries have shown a great deal of interest in the possibility.

The initial phase of the study will be an attempt to find out the unit cost a net ton of three possible transportation routes.

Old Ship Back

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) — For the third time in nearly 40 years, high tides and shifting sand formations have exposed a British warship that ran aground after carrying redcoats to the battle of Bunker Hill.

The once-imposing HMS Somerset was looted by her colonial captors when she was wrecked on the tip of Cape Cod in an early-November storm in 1778, three years after the Bunker Hill clash. Much of what was left was snatched by souvenir hunters when storms uncovered the 50m frigate in 1808 and again in 1924.

Moog Is Required To Talk in Public

TORONTO (CP) — After almost two days of private discussions, the legislature committee investigating Ontario Hydro's $44 million deal with developer Gerhard Moog decided Monday to have Mr. Moog testify publicly about his financial dealings.

But barely an hour after Mr. Moog began his testimony, the committee was involved in another procedural wrangle.

This time it was over whether or not a document between Mr. Moog and one of the lawyers for his company—Canada Square Ltd.—should be considered privileged under a lawyer-client relationship.

After suggestions that the matter be tested in the courts, the committee decided to set the latest controversy aside while chairman John MacBeth asks for an informal legal opinion from the office of Attorney-General Dalton Bales.

The committee went into secret session Friday and continued Monday morning after Mr. Moog and his lawyer G. D. Finlayson protested that discussing Mr. Moog's financial methods of operation could jeopardize his future in the development business.

But when the hearings were public again Monday afternoon, Mr. MacBeth (PC—Toronto York West) said it had agreed "unanimously that it should now proceed to hear Mr. Moog's testimony in public."

Mr. Moog, earlier told the committee he arranged that financing for the new Hydro headquarters come from the United States.

When committee counsel finally was able to ask Mr. Moog publicly what the interest rate was, the developer said eight per cent. Evidence indicated the going rate at the time was 8½ to nine per cent.

The committee's lawyer, Richard Shibley, also referred to an agreement between Mr. Moog's company, and a Toronto-based brokerage firm, A. E. Ames, in which Mr. Moog was to pay $100,000 for the brokerage firm's helping him to arrange the Hydro financing with the American source.

Mr. Shibley wanted to know how a multi-million-dollar deal was concluded with such a small commission paid.

"Because Mr. Moog said it," snapped Mr. Moog, who seemed exasperated with Mr. Shibley's questioning on a couple of occasions.

He referred to the company who gave him a letter of commitment to finance the Hydro building as "Company X," and said the reason that the Ames fee was so low is because "I masterminded the deal."

The developer said he considered it quite important that a reputable "brokerage house" such as A. E. Ames be part of the deal.

He also said he was "very much under pressure" to complete a deal.

Evidence to this point is that Mr. Moog's deal with the American financial sources has yet to be made final.

A letter from a Canada Square lawyer to Mr. Moog is expected to be the contentious issue when the hearing resumes today.

The letter from James Bradshaw to Mr. Moog was referred by Mr. Shibley but owere he could question the developer on it. Mr. Finlayson said the letter was privileged because it was from a lawyer to his client.

At that point, lawyer James Renwick (NDP—Toronto Riverdale) suggested the committee go to the courts to determine if it is legal to admit the letter as evidence.

"In the interests of efficiency the only place (the matter) be properly dealt with is courts—the speediest means," said Mr. Renwick.

But Mr. Shibley suggested the committee would be "much better off to go back to the legislature and get the answer there."

James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) another lawyer on the committee suggested that the matter would probably be sent back to legislature by a judge anyway.

"We are not a court we are representatives of the public," he said.

Mr. MacBeth said he hoped Mr. Shibley could set aside his questioning on conditions documents for now and said he would ask the attorney-general's office for a legal opinion on the matter.

Aftermath of Fatal Collision

Police and wreckage crews inspect the remains of a convertible that collided with a train at an unmarked CN level crossing near Foxboro Monday, killing two and injuring three more. The car, which police said had been travelling at high speed, rolled down a steep embankment into a field alongside the track. Car's engine can be seen in left foreground. The group was on its way for a swim when the accident occured.

Fatal Foxboro Mishap

Two Die as Car Crashes With CN Freight Train

FOXBORO — Two members of a swimming party were killed Monday and three others injured when the car in which they were riding struck a Canadian National train and rolled down a steep embankment, on a county road one mile east of Foxboro.

Driver William Roberts, 23, of 12 Treacy St., was pronounced dead at the scene. A passenger, 15-year-old Michael Soucy of RR 2, Frankford died shortly after in Belleville General Hospital of Multiple injuries.

Another passenger, Charlene Hoppa, 12, of Gravenhurst, is in serious condition in Kingston General Hospital. Officials said this morning she was semi-conscious with a head injury.

The other two persons are in Belleville General Hospital. Billy Wood, Mr. Roberts' eight-year-old step-son, has scalp lacerations and an injured hip while Ruth Anne Dawkins, 14, RR 2, Frankford, has head and shoulder injuries.

Constable Lynn Acres, investigating officer from Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, said the group was combined on Murcat Lane in Mr. Roberts' convertible when the accident occurred, about 4 p.m. One of the youngsters said they had been going for a swim.

The officer said the car, travelling at a fast speed, rounded a bend and skidded into the front unit of a 16-car CN freight that was headed south from Marmora.

The car plunged down a 25-foot embankment beside the track, hurtling out four of the passengers. The vehicle landed upside-down, the motor ending up 20 feet from the car.

The train halted down the track for an hour before continuing to Belleville. Damage to the engine was described as minor.

Only warning at the crossing, which has neither crossing gates nor flashing signals, was a small sign marked with and X several hundred feet before the track.

Probation Officer Has Problem

It's not easy being a probation officer in Belleville. There are many problems and frustrations even though the successes outnumber the failures.

George Smith, one of three probation officers in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties told this to a group of Rotarians at their noon luncheon meeting yesterday at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

He told the gathering that the three greatest problems facing a probation officer today are: alcohol, debt, and the breakdown of communication in a family.

To point this out he illustrated with various case histories gleaned from his 18 years as a probation officer. Nines of the cases took place in Belleville.

He told about the toughest case he had, one person for whom it took six weeks just getting him to sit down in his office.

GEORGE SMITH
...stationary engineer at a large Toronto hotel.

Mr. Smith said the man would pace back and forth.

Eventually after six weeks, with the card still on the floor Mr. Smith's charge came around and today he is chief engineer at a large Toronto hotel.

There was also the person who stole 28 cars and got charged with removing the drive-shaft from one car.

Mr. Smith became worried when his charge told him he boughi and sold 28 cars and asked to see a bill of sale.

It turned out the young fellow was fixing them and later selling them. He turned to Mr. Smith and said, "I did it to prove to you I could buy and sell 28 cars legitimately."

But there was also the man on probation who had a drinking problem and was ordered to stay away from his family. When his effort to see his family was quashed, he hung himself.

Mr. Smith estimates that the Hastings-Prince Edward County probationary office, with offices on Front Street, which handles about an average of 180 cases a day says there is about an 85 per cent success rate in this area.

He clarified the role of a probation officer. "We don't look after people on parole. The parole officer does that. We look after those who haven't been in jail but have been convicted of a charge. We also look after those who have never been in court."

Starting January 1, Mr. Smith and two other probation officers in this county, Bill Groten and Dennis Atkins will take care of both parole and probationary duties. A juvenile probationary and aftercare officer will come in to handle the problems of those under 16.

At present, juvenile probation duties are carried out by Mr. Smith, Mr. Groten and Mr. Atkins. Juveniles account for about 25 of the 180 cases. Those on parole in this area are refered to parole officers in Kingston and Cobourg.

The probation officer tries to help his charges by seeing the family, preparing a report to see how he functions in the community and tries to see if he is a good risk for probation.

"We usually deal with first offenders." He said the word probation stems from Latin term to 'prove' and that is what they attempt to do. "We give them an opportunity to prove why they should not be be recommended to go back to work, school or home.

To Ontario, the terms of probation are up to three years, with a mandatory monthly visit to a probation officer or as often as the officer sees fit.

"The probation officer," said Mr. Smith in explaining his role, "tries to upgrade a person no matter what he has done or his background.

"We want to help him lose the stigma. To get away from the idea of the big spot on the forehead that prevents him from getting a job," said Mr. Smith referring to job applicants being asked if there is any reason why they should not be bonded.

"We tell them to leave the spot on the application form blank. Then if there is any problem the personnel office can check with the probation office. We don't tell them to say no to it. Honesty is important," stressed Mr. Smith.

He also emphasized the importance appearances have in making a good impression in applying for a job. "A person doesn't have to have short hair but he should be presentable when talking to a prospective employer," said Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith has had considerable experience working with young people, having worked at one time as a recreation director and also with the YMCA.

Sidewalk Stumbler

The downtown area has been the scene of sidewalk sales this summer. However, anyone walking in front of the Crystal Hotel on Front Street may find himself dodging a few sidewalk cracks. Some Belleville residents have reported being tripped and injured by the gouges in the sidewalk. Maybe a sign saying 'City Street — Tread Carefully' should be up to warn unwary pedestrians.

Alarm Box

12:12 p.m. . . . Field behind Moira Secondary School: small grass fire.

1:32 p.m. . . . Toronto Dominion Bank at Front and Bridge Streets: fluorescent light burnt out.

Prescott Readies Military Pageant

Fort Wellington National Park will be the site of Prescott's 18th annual military pageant Aug. 11. The five-hour spectacular will begin at 1 p.m.

This year's event has been organized as a special salute to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in their centennial year, Major James Walsh, one of the original officers of the RCMP and a native of Prescott, will be commemorated by the unveiling of an official plaque by Commissioner W. L. Higgitt of the RCMP.

The RCMP Band will open the pageant, followed by the drums of the Fraser Highlanders of Montreal will perform a feu de joie and the Fort Henry Guard will reappear for a 22-minute display of 19th century battle drill and tactics. The Fraser Highlanders will display piping, drumming and dancing and the afternoon will conclude with the Lancaster Guards (Public Duties Detachment) who will perform the changing of the guard ceremony that they carry out daily on Parliament Hill.

The sunset ceremony will begin at 5:45 p.m. with Royal Canadian Artillery Band, Fraser Highlanders, Grenadier Guards and Fort Wellington Guard.

There is no charge for the pageant, a community-wide event sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce with the assistance of several service clubs and organizations in Prescott.

Scouts Going To Jamboree

TWEED (Special) — Two Scouts and a leader from the Moira Valley District will attend the eighth American National Boy Scout Jamoree at Moire State Park, 30 miles northeast of Pittsburgh, Penn.

Assistant District Commissioner Roger Love of the Moira Valley District and Scouts Tracey Hook and David Flieler, of the First Land O'Lakes Scout Troop in Cloyne will be part of the contingent representing Ontario. The 10-days Jamboree, expected to attract about 53,000 Scouts and leaders begins Aug. 1.

Clown's Car Breaks Down

Conko, the Clown, was unable to visit two of the six playgrounds scheduled for his appearance Monday, according to Albert Elliot Quinte Exhibition public relations officer.

Due to mechanical difficulties with the replica of a 1901 Oldsmobile Conko used to travel the streets of Belleville, he did not have time to greet children at Park Dale and the Kinsmen Community Pool.

However, the Conklin Midway Show's clown did visit Hastings Manor, the home for senior citizens, and the Ontario Home for Mentally Retarded Infants in Plainfield.

OMB Hearing On Thursday

Opponent of rezoning to allow construction of townhouses in the city' east and Elizabeth Crescent Area will have their day Thursday when the Ontario Municipal Board holds a public hearing into the application.

The OMB hearing gets under way at 10 a.m. at city hall and City Clerk Adam Stalker expect a strong turnout of residents objecting to the zoning change.

The application of Maulee H. Rollins Construction for rezoning to allow the townhouses was made many months ago and public meetings were held at which time the objection of residents was raised.

However, the planning advisory board recommended the rezoning be allowed subject to conditions, one of them being that a buffer zone of good quality single-family residences be constructed between the proposed townhouses and existing homes on Elizabeth Crescent.

City council later approved the rezoning, but objections continued and the Ontario Municipal Board hearing was ordered.

Senior Citizens Awarded Grants

Quinte Old Timers, the senior citizens club in Deseronto, has been granted $3,900 under the New Horizons project of the federal department of health and welfare.

The money will be used to buy furniture and equipment for the group's clubroom in the basement of the new medical centre in the town.

Joseph Reynolds, one of those who drew up the application for the New Horizons grant, said the senior citizens' clubroom will be used about once a week for activities. An arts and crafts program may be introduced at a later date.

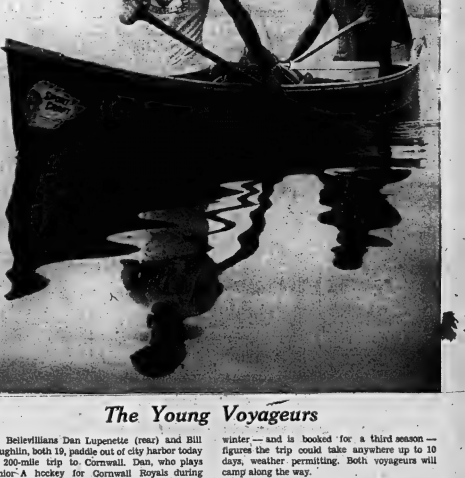
The New Horizons program was introduced a year ago to assist retired men and women with projects that would benefit themselves and the community. The eighth series of grants, announced July 26 in Ottawa, awards 184 groups with a total of $1,215,933.

Other area senior citizen groups receiving grants are the Napanee Senior Citizens Club, which received $635 for transportation and equipment and the Hastings Senior Citizens Club which received $3,113 to finance its programs.

Road Repairs Are Asked

At the last meeting of Hungerford Township Council, a delegation from the Curling Club asked Council if the Township would repair road adjacent to the Club rink. Council told them that the road superintendent would examine this with one of their members to see what could be done.

Police Hit Dead End



BANCROFT — What was believed to be a major breakthrough in search for a hit-and-run driver who killed a Maple Leaf man 10 days ago has turned out to be a dead end.

Cpl. Hank Deheer, one of the investigating officers with the Ontario Provincial Police here, said an inspired driver picked up in Peterborough the following day and transferred to Brampton to face car theft charges, is not the person for whom police are looking.

The man's car fit the description police drew up after finding paint-car fluid and a bumper beside Highway 62, outside Maple Leaf, where the victim was struck from behind early July 21.

But Cpl. Deheer said there were no traces of blood on the car, in addition, the man's story of spending the night at a cottage north of Peterborough was later confirmed by police.

The dead man is 21-year-old Emerson Andrel Kellar. His body was found by a passing motorist at about 5 a.m. on the outskirts of this town, 20 miles north of Bancroft.

The Young Voyageurs

Bellevillians Dan Lupenette (rear) and Bill Coughlin, both 19, paddle out of city harbor today on 200-mile trip to Cornwall. Dan, who plays Junior A hockey for Cornwall Royals during winter — and is booked for a third season — figures the trip could take anywhere up to 10 days, weather permitting. Both voyageurs will camp along the way.

Bobbing Won't Upset Bombers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers will be eyeing Edmonton Eskimos' quarterback Tom Wilkinson closely tonight and hope their linemen won't jump the gun as his head starts bobbing during calls.

Coach Jim Spavital says he's not losing any sleep worrying about offside penalties but, just to be sure, Bombers' defensive unit has been having back-up quarterback Tommy Pharr bob his head during practice sessions.

The two clubs meet in their Western Football Conference season opener tonight in Winnipeg while Saskatchewan Roughriders start off the 1973 season against British Columbia Lions in Vancouver.

Wilkinson's head became an issue during the exhibition season following a game between Edmonton and Calgary Stampeders. Calgary coach Jim Duncan called on officials to halt the bobbing, but to no avail.

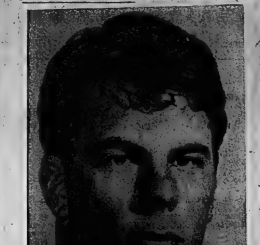
As long as I've been in football, my lineman has been taught to watch the ball, not the quarterback's head," he told sports writers on his arrival in Winnipeg Monday.

Wilkinson himself says the head-bobbing should make no difference in tonight's game, because the Bombers have been practising using Pharr in his place.

"If they go offside tonight, it won't be because I'm moving my head."



Edmonton is at full strength for the game and Jauch says his boys are in top shape for the contest.

Wilkinson will start out calling signals with back-up Bruce Lemmerman ready for a relief role after two weeks' service with the U.S. National Guard in the Mojave Desert.

Although Jauch says he doesn't favor alternating quarterbacks during a game, he says Lemmerman is doing well and he'd have no hesitation about calling on him if Wilkinson runs into trouble.

Winnipeg will be going with his two-pronged attack of Rough Riders from British Columbia Lions, is expected to shore up the running game. Riders open at home against Toronto Argonauts. Edmonton Eskimos' Wilkinson has a penchant for drawing opposing linemen offside and host Winnipeg Blue Bombers will be trying not to jump the gun. In the other game tonight, Saskatchewan Roughriders are at British Columbia Lions.

These Two Will Be Watched

Fullback Jim Evenson (left) and quarterback Tom Wilkinson will be in for a lot of attention when the Canadian Football League opens the 1973 season tonight. Evenson, obtained by Ottawa Rough Riders from British Columbia Lions, is expected to shore up the running game. Riders open at home against Toronto Argonauts. Edmonton Eskimos' Wilkinson has a penchant for drawing opposing linemen offside and host Winnipeg Blue Bombers will be trying not to jump the gun. In the other game tonight, Saskatchewan Roughriders are at British Columbia Lions.

Countdown on Rick Cassata?

OTTAWA (CP) — The countdown on the future of quarterback Rick Cassata apparently starts tonight when he leads Ottawa Rough Riders against Toronto Argonauts in the opening game of the regular Eastern Football Conference (EFC) schedule.

Although Cassata led the Riders to an 8-3 won-lost record last year after replacing Gary Wood, he has not caught on with Lansdowne Park fans, many of whom can be heard urging coach Jack Gotta to use rookie Frank DiMaggio.

Cassata started through pre-season games with a sore elbow and saw only limited service while DiMaggio showed surprising poise and power for a first-year performer.

Last season Cassata defenders were able to point to a sore wing Ottawa offence in explaining why the team depended for the greatest part on possibly the best defence in the conference to get into the EFC playoff final where they were beaten by Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Even with fine receivers in Hugh Oldham, Bill Cooper, Rhome Nixon, Tom Pullen and Terry Wellesley, Cassata had consistent rumour in keep opposing linebackers and halfbacks from dogging his catches and cutting off the air route.

This year, at least on paper, that's all changed. The biggest difference in the composition of fullback Jim Evenson in an off-season trade with British Columbia Lions to go with veteran Art Castrelle, a solid inside runner, newcomer Les Fobbs and veteran Wellesley, both outside speedsters. Evenson has earned at least 1,000 yards rushing in each of his five professional seasons.

The catchers are still there, the offensive line has been solidified and little has happened to weaken the defence except the loss of sure-tackle Barry Anders.

And Gerry Organ, twice league scoring champion, still is there to kick converts and field goals.

Of the two teams, Argonauts have the most to prove.

On paper probably the strong est, most versatile of the four EFC teams, they have had little success to show for a financial fortune spent on them in recent years.

Last season Joe Theismann, their brilliant rookie quarterback, missed most of the action with a broken leg. This year he is healthy and has a strong team of receivers and runners to work with as well as a powerhouse line both offensively and defensively.

On the bench, John Rauch has brought a wealth of collegiate and professional experience to the team as replacement coach for Leo Cahill, who took Argos to a Grey Cup defeat by Calgary Stampeders in 1971 and then to a disastrous 3-11 record and last place in the 1972 season.

Success in Sports Means Better Job

What, besides glory, did Poland's national team members get out of beating England 3-0 in a recent World Cup preliminary match and winning the gold medal in the 1972 Olympics?

What they got, said coach Kazimierz Gorski through an interpreter Monday, was "... money, color television sets, cars and better jobs in their plants."

When Gorski was asked if taking money was not a violation of the Olympic code, he tried to take back his words.

"Don't say that, take the money out of my remarks," he said. "Let's just say that all of our players work in various occupations and, if they do good, they get promotions."

"We've got three players who have won 50 caps (times) and they've been promoted to senior executives because they are good at football," explained Gorski.

"That's the way it goes in our country. If you're a good athlete, you get quick promotion in your job."

NASTASE WINS A PAIR

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Romanian tennis ace Ilie Nastase won the Istanbul international tennis tournament Monday, beating Juan Gubert of Spain 6-2, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2. Nastase and Gubert then combined to win the doubles title from Australians Bob Giltinan and Sydney Ball, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Jim Thorpe, but Paul Williams seems to be having little trouble making the shift from wingback.

The game will be carried on the CBC western network starting at 8 p.m. CDT.

In Vancouver, the focus will be on Lions' new offensive line and Roughriders' new defence.

B.C. coach Eagle Keys lost star offensive tackle Ken Sugarman, but has concentrated his off-season recruiting on the offensive line.

Another question mark is how well quarterback Don Moorhead, now in his third year, can lead the club. Johnny Musso has been moved to fullback from halfback to replace Jim Evenson, and Lou Harris a Monroe Elev will start in other running slots.

With safety Wayne Metherne and defensive tackle Garrett Hunsperger both on the 30-day injury reserve list, Lions will enter their hands full with Saskatchewan's offence.

Meanwhile Lions we'll have to put lots of points on the board if they are to win, says Keys.

Roughriders will be going with quarterback Ron Lancaster as usual, but coach John Payne will be relying on a new defensive line-up in hopes of blunting Lions' attack.

Veteran safety Bruce Bennett and middle linebacker Steve Svitak were cut after the exhibition season, and four rookies were added to a shuffled line-up.

Charlie Collins will be at middle linebacker, newcomer Scott Woods taken over a corner slot, rookie Lorne Richardson will be at defensive halfback and Ted Provencher left position as safety.

The game will not be televised.

Competition Forces Salaries Up

TORONTO (CP) — There'll be an average increase of 30 per cent in National Hockey League salaries this season because of competition from the World Hockey Association, Alan Eagleson predicted Monday.

"I would think the average is going to be $55,000 to $60,000" the executive director of the National Hockey League Players Association (NHLPA) said in an interview.

Eagleson, who will meet with legal representative of the WHA in New York Friday, says there won't be a merger between the two leagues.

But it won't be the NHLPA that stands in the way of a merger, says Eagleson.

"Our position is, if we (the players) are going to be free agents at the end of each year, we'll give you the merger and a common junior draft.

"There's enough larceny in the NHL and WHA owners hearts that there still would be competition for players if all teams were in one league. COULDN'T JOIN

The real obstacle in the way of a merger, says Eagleson, is the same anti-trust pressure that kept the Americans and National basketball associations from joining forces.

Eagleson and NHLPA lawyer Ira Millstein will be at Friday's meeting.

"They want to hear about things objectively, which is to say their side," said Eagleson.

Eagleson said that if a Philadelphia judge rules that Mike Walton must remain with Boston Bruins of the NHL instead of jumping to Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA, the Saints will have to pay the $50,000 difference between his WHA and NHL salaries.

Brewer And Marrin Are Signed

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association announced Monday the signing of former National Hockey League all-star defenseman Carl Brewer and third-round amateur draft pick Peter Marrin.

The Toros also announced training camp dates in Toronto and Sudbury, the dates for their 1973-74 schedule and signing of a working agreement with Mohawk Valley Comets of the North American Hockey League.

Both Brewer, 34, and Marrin were signed to three-year contracts. Marrin turned down a contract with Montreal Canadiens of the NHL.

A centre with the Memorial Cup-champion Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last season, Marrin signed for $125,000 a year and a $75,000 bonus.

Brewer last played defence for St. Louis Blues in 1971.

"I hurt my knee in Toronto and the doctor told me I would be out anywhere from six months to a year," he recalled Monday.

"That's the way it turned out. I tried to go back, but Al Arbour (then Blues coach) didn't want me back on the team. After he left, they didn't contact me."

He also played in the NHL for Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, taking two years out to play amateur hockey. He was a first-team NHL all-star in 1962-63 and a second-team pick three times.

Toronto coach Billy Harris said he will meet Brewer soon to discuss his role in teaching the Toros' young defencemen. The oldest of them is 24.

"There's only one defenceman in hockey with more talent than Carl and that's No. 4 in Boston (Bobby Orr)," said Harris. "Otherwise, nobody has more ability."

The Toros announced plans for a rookie camp in Toronto Sept. 8-13. The team training camp opens Sept. 14 at Sudbury, with the first of their eight exhibition games against New England Whalers Sept. 21 in Dynaboro, Mass.

Captain Jack Butterfield holds the silver cup he was awarded to him at the Bisley rifle competition held in Bisley England recently. Butterfield finished sixth out of 1100 entrants in the prestigious Queen's Prize competition and emerged the top Canadian in the event.

Top Canadian Shooter

Jack Butterfield on Target

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

Corbyville's Jack Butterfield may not be able to light a match with a rifle shot or shoot off a man's ear at 100 yards but he can be secure in the knowledge that he is one of the world's top rifle shooters, and he's done it without Hollywood stunts.

Capt. Butterfield of the Canadian Armed Forces Air Element and based at CFB Trenton has proved himself on the rifle range against probably the best competition of shooters in the world each year at Bisley, England and this past meet propelled him into more prominence when he finished sixth of 1,100 entrants in the general individual competition, the Queen's Prize. His 38th out of 360 competitors was also a vital part in the Canadian team's record shattering win in the Kolapore Challenge Cup.

Jack started his rise to international rifle competition while in the cadet corps where a rifle range in the attic of his high school gave him a start. A vacant period followed in his rifle aspirations and not until 1960 did he start again when he and fellow members of a small club in Greenwood, Nova Scotia got things rolling in both large and small calibre practice.

"Shooting is a sport very few become interested in and subsequently very little interest is generated for the public. It isn't a spectator sport and if you don't shoot, then usually you just aren't interested," commented Jack.

He did stay involved in shooting however and with very little monetary investment has become an expert in his endeavors.

"You can buy a rifle from $150 up and usually two rifles are needed if you really want to get into the sport. A telescope is $75 or more but after that there isn't his much more involved. Clubbing perhaps and maintenance may run around $100 a year but it is still probably a lot cheaper than golf to play each year."

Time consumption is strictly a personal affair and it need not be an all enveloping habit.

"Naturally the more practice you get the better you get but personally it is hard for me to get any practice sessions there aren't any ranges around this area. The closest range is in Kingston and with the shortest distances we shoot at being 200 yards you'd have to have a good size back yard to practice at home."

The lack of practice didn't hamper him any at the Bisley competition however where he totalled 290 out of 300 points in the Queen's Prize and 541 out of 605 in the Kolapore Cup event. His sixth place finish topped his previous best of 34th at the four times he has attended Bisley for the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association.

"We get to Bisley early enough to practice and get used to the weather and ammunition which is supplied by the Association at the meet. The weather is probably the major obstacle to become accustomed to. Everything affects your shooting, the light, the rain, the fog and of course the wind."

With this past Bisley being his fifth trip he has become used to the pattern that he and the 17 other members of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association fall into.

"We all live in the same building and eat at the same table so it becomes a family affair. Everyone is helping each other out the time and everyone is working for the team."

There is a cause of competition amongst the men because the members of the team competing don't have to meet until the event will begin and after the practice rounds give an indication of who's shooting well.

"There is competition to do well to make the team but not to the detriment of the team performing well overall."

Unlike many other sports, shooting is pretty well an individual battle and psyching up is important.

"You try to reach your peak during the matches so you can get your best scores. I feel if I do well in practice rounds I'll do poorly in the matches. The matches are the topic of conversation amongst the men so you find yourself pepping each other up. You feel pressure in team matches to do well for the team but in the individual events there really isn't that much pressure.

Jack is also a veteran of the Palma Cup competition which is held each year and was a member of the Canadian winning teams of 1967 and 1972. He hopes to attend the meet this August in Ohio where teams from the U.S., Britain, South Africa, Scandinavia and others take part.

He hopes to make the Palma Cup competition but the Canadian Championships at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association Bisley Aggregation being held next week at Connaught Park in Ottawa. This meet decides the 18 shooters that will attend next year's Bisley and Jack very much wants to go.

These meets do take some time away from the family but my wife, Joan, and children (Richard, Linda and Karen) don't discourage it and I would like to go back to England very much and this next meet will tell me if I can or not."

4-Way Fight For Top

By AL TEXWORTH
Sports Staff

A total of only four points now separates the teams in the top four positions in the Belleville Softball League after last night's games. Deverlin still leads with 36 points but Auger Men's Wear and Deverlin Motors are tied in second with 32 each. Howard and Robert Printing is in third with 30.

In the games last night, Howard and Robert Printing downed Barden Supplies in the first game 3-1 and Auger's shut out Deverlin 1-0 in the nightcap.

Howard and Robert got all three runs in their half of the second inning, and held off the Barden team in all but one inning to pick up their 10th win of the season.

John Campbell led off the rally in the third with a single and was safe at second when Ted Wallwork threw to get the lead runner on Bob Ebbert's infield bouncer, putting men on first and second. Moe Hunter then drove them in with a double. Hunter was chased home himself on Rusty Garvin's base hit.

Bardon scored their only run of the game in the third, when Brian Hineman tripled and was driven in on Bernie Coughlin's infield shot.

Ebbert went the route for the winners, allowing only four hits. He fanned 11 and did not walk a man. Jamie Hunter went the distance for Bardon, giving up three runs on five hits. He struck out six without walking anyone.

John Campbell was the only player with more than one hit, collecting two safeties. Paul Paddon had a triple and Moe Hunter a double with Rusty Garvin adding a single to round out the batting for the winners.

The only run of the ball game in the nightcap didn't come until the sixth inning, but Auger's didn't mind waiting for it. That run enabled them to grab a second place tie with Deverlin, with 22 points each.

The run came on a walk to Auger catcher Larry Mavety, his second of the game, the first was intentional. Roger Drake cashed the run with a game winning double.

Deverlin was unable to get anything going for the second night in a row, getting only four men on the baselines last night.

Wayne Woods had two singles for Deverlin while Marv Stacey and Rick Rosebush each had a single base hit. Scott Reid went the entire distance without walking anyone.

Consecon downed second place O'Brien's Tree Service 11-6 in the first game of the doubleheader, while Palmer downed Wannamaker and Boily Stables in the second game by a 10-8 margin.

Wayne Clarke pitched the win for Consecon giving up seven hits and fanning nine. Rick Goulah and Bruce Sutherland took the loss for O'Brien's, giving up nine hits and striking out five.

Dennis Snell had the win for Palmer, allowing 13 hits and striking out two. Earl Colton gave up 10 hits for the losers, while Rob Robbin had a trio for the losers.

Cosy Upsets BYBF

BYBF have been riding high all season in the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League but the Cosy Grill chanced on them in one of their few lows in a Monday night game.

The Grill upset the present leading Yardmen 5-3 and the win enhanced their Restaurateurs second place hopes.

Sandra Claus picked up the win scattering 10 hits and walking four. She added a pair of singles to her pitching efforts and Sharon Francis is double for the winners' seven hit production.

Romano collected a triple, double, and single to lead the the Juniors on a 7-0 win over Deverlin Motors Sunday night.

Independents Third, CTC Squad Slipping

The Independents can breathe a sigh of relief in the Industrial Softball League west but Canadian Tire isn't sure whether their next breath will be their last.

The Independents clinched third place in the ISL western division by stopping Canadian Tire 10-3 and the loss left CTC teetering precariously on the brink of elimination. The Firemen are tied with the Public Utilities for fourth spot in the west but the Utilities hold games in hand.

In other action UIC crept to within three points of division leading Mead Johnson by defeating Bonds 8-7 and Stewart Warner continued their bad for a berth in the east by winning a 9-0 forfeit from Constellation.

Doug Campbell hurled the win for the Independents giving up five hits and fanning seven. George Foote provided most of the hitting for the winners stroking a triple and two singles.

Paul Sharpe's grand slam home run erased a 1-0 UIC lead and led to a tie game for Bonnie Bond but the Unemployment men weren't phased and pushed across a run in the seventh inning to record the 8-7 victory.

Pete Hampton picked up the win allowing eight hits. He decisioned Sharpe who was touched for 10 hits on the Bond mound.

Ron Jury had a home run and two singles for the winners with Ron Embury and Clint Halliday adding triples.

Profitable Weekend For Trenton Auger's

Pitchers George Ferguson and Scott Reid of the Trenton Auger's Men's Wear entry in the Belleville Commercial Softball League were in a stingy mood on the weekend.

The two right-handers clashed up the tournament's win without a loss as the club swept to the championship in action at Sharbot Lake and qualified for the final at postponed things there.

Auger's got started on the big effort Friday by picking a 3-1 win over Campbellford Intermediates in the annual Kinnon tourney at Campbellford. In their second start, the Trenton team blanked Campbellford Midgets 5-0 to score nine runs and 11 hits in a 9

Expos Win Two

Bucs Blanked By Phillies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Steve Carlton, Bob Boone and John Mayberry teamed up to help the Philadelphia Phillies blank the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 in a National League baseball game Monday night.

Carlton pitched and Boone catches for the Phillies, so their roles in the victory were all in the line of duty.

McSherry wasn't supposed to help the Phillies win. He's an umpire.

But Carlton's shutout was saved in the seventh inning when Dave Cash's single struck McSherry behind third base.

In Monday's other National League games, Chicago Cubs downed St. Louis Cardinals 3-1, Los Angeles Dodgers topped San Francisco Giants 5-2, Montreal Expos defeated New York Mets 1-0 and 5-2, in 10 innings, and Atlanta Braves downed Houston Astros 7-3.

Weiskopf Second Only To Crampton

NEW YORK (AP) — With his victory in the Canadian Open, Tom Weiskopf became the second player to earn over $200,000 this season. His $35,000 first prize boosted his winnings to $200,077, the Professional Golf Association's Tournament Player Division reported Monday.

Weiskopf, with four tour victories and a triumph in the British Open which does not count on the money-winning list, jumped ahead of Jack Nicklaus into second place but still trails Bruce Crampton, who tied for sixth in Canada and has $241,301.

Weiskopf, whose previous best on the tour was in 1968 when he won $152,842, also joins Nicklaus and Crampton as the only four-event winners on this year's tour.

Forrest Fezler's second-place Canadian Open finish pushed him from 31st to ninth on the list while the runner-up money of $19,950 raised his earnings to $86,250.

Course Record For Trevino

MONTREAL (CP) — Lee Trevino shot a course record 63 Monday in an exhibition charity golf match as part of the Royal Montreal Golf Club's centennial celebrations.

Trevino's total was six under par and he finished four strokes ahead of South Africa's Gary Player.

Gary Cowan Canada's top amateur from Kitchener, Ont., carded a two-over-par 72, while Arnold Palmer was lured by strokes back with a 75.

Boone's contribution was a run-scoring single in the fourth inning. Carlton pitched in with a six-hitter and what Ozark termed "the best game he's pitched this season."

Rick Reuschel allowed only five hits in outdueling Bob Gibson and pitching the Cubs to within 1 1-2 games of the Cards' nails in the National League East.

Dave Lopes drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Joe Ferguson also homered as Dodgers boosted their lead in the National League West to five games over the idle Cincinnati Reds and seven over the Giants.

John Boccabella's three-run double in the 10th inning gave the Expos their doubleheader victory.

Rookie Steve Rogers pitched his second shutout in his second major league appearance in the opener. After allowing one hit against the Phillies last week, he gave up seven hits Monday.

In tonight's games, the Cardinals are at Montreal, the Pirates at New York, the Dodgers at Houston and the Giants at San Diego. A pair od doubleheaders have the Cubs at Philadelphia and the Reds at Atlanta.

Blair Fooled By Hiller

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Hill with a $50 bill stuck to his forehead following a national television interview, admitted Monday night that he saved Detroit's 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles with a "pitch that never got there."

Paul Blair of the Orioles fanned on a 2-2 changeup in the ninth inning which bounced near the plate as the Toronto-born Hiller notched his 22nd save of the American League baseball season. He got the $50 for being the TV guest on the post-game show.

The Tigers' bullpen ace revived Mickey Lolich after Andy Etchebarren's two-run homer had tied him at 4-4 lead.

Lolich, struggling most of the game, gave up a one-out double to Brooks Robinson prior toEtchebarren's first homer of the season, and then was lifted after issuing a two-out walk to Merv Retkenmund.

Hiller, who said he had trouble controlling his fast ball, also walked Bobby Grich on a 3-2 pitch to put the potential winning run on base.

Bibby 'Up'—So Is His Pay

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Things are looking up now," said Jim Bibby. The Texas Rangers' pitcher couldn't have been any more "up" Monday night in a 8-0 American League baseball victory over Oakland A's.

He had his fastball up, down and everywhere else—within the strike zone, that is—and had the world champion A's flailing away helplessly.

In Monday's other American League games, Chicago White Sox thumped Minnesota Twins 9-1, Boston Red Sox edged New York Yankees 4-3 and Detroit Tigers shaded Baltimore Orioles 4-3.

Not only was Bibby up. So was his salary, despite a baseball rule against performance bonuses.

Rangers' owner Bob Short gave the 28-year-old righthander a $5,000 raise—not bad considering Bibby had a contract with the big-league minimum $15,000 on the bottom line.

RICO PETROCELLI

Oakland's Vida Blue, a strike-out artist in his own right and an expert in the no-hit department, was the victim of Jeff Burroughs' grand-slam home run and Bill Sudakis' solo homer, both in the first inning. Cago's Stan Bahnsen, who scattered eight hits, Buddy Bradford and Jerry Hairston homered for the Sox.

Rico Petrocelli, who had hit a two-run homer earlier, singled off ace New York reliever Sparky Lyle, took second on a wild pitch, moved to third on a grounder and scored the winning run for the Red Sox in the bottom of the ninth on Rick Miller's single.

The Tigers and Brewers play a doubleheader in Milwaukee, while in tonight's other games, the Rangers visit California An-

Theatre Veteran at Stratford

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The world of theatre depends on traditional architecture. The better is fresh and lovely, the hero manly and stalwart, the villain dark with a shifty look and the nurse, the keeper of the tea-stall and the barmaid-prostitute cheerfully rounded and vibrant.

Ella Kaye has lived with this and profited from it all her life.

Miss Kaye has come from England to appear at the Avon Theatre as Anna in Turgenev's A Month in the Country and later as Fyokla in Gogol's The Marriage Brokers.

People on the street might remember her as the keeper of the London stall who serves tea on a television commercial, or as Peregrine in the recent BBC film, David Copperfield.

Although much in demand in British television and films, Miss Kaye points out that her livelihood has come from the stage, and for the last six years, England's illustrious Royal Shakespeare Company.

Miss Kaye is aware that her size and beauty disposition are her greatest assets, though far from her only ones. In an era of willowy, dieting women, there is always a theatrical demand for portly people.

With the RSC she has played Mistress Quickly in The Merry Wives of Windsor, Ursula in Bartholomew Fair, Gran in The Revenger's Tragedy, the nurse in The Relapse and Mrs. Pepperium in Subject to FAs, all good fat parts.

But the stereotype began long before then. Miss Kaye's career began at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art when she was 15.

"I had two charming brothers so I had to show off," she said. "Especially when I knew I was going to be fat."

Her roles at the Avon give her a double opportunity to establish herself in Canada. It is her second visit and she feels she would like to stay here at least a year.

"I can go back there and work," she reflects, then plunges on, "but I'd like to work here. I'd love to work in Canada."

Deadline August 3

The Ontario Golf Association reminds those interested that the deadline for parents and child championships must be in by Friday, August 3.

Dates of play are Tuesday August 14 for mother-son, father-daughter teams with the action taking place at York Downs Golf and Country Club, Unionville.

Bayview Country Club, Thornhill will be the site of the mother-daughter, father-son championships on August 15.

Bantam Playoff Tied Up

The EOBA Bantam series between Belleville and Peterborough has been forced to three games as a result of the weekend's games.

Peterborough took the first game in Peterborough Saturday by a 6-5 score, and Belleville came back in the second game 5-4 to force the series to the third and deciding game.

Mark Collins took the win for Peterborough on Saturday, with Peter Hall taking the loss. Peter was relieved by Tony Samard in the seventh.

In Sunday's game, Bill Whalen went all the way for the win. He allowed seven hits and struck out 10. Mike Pearson took the loss for Peterborough, giving up eight hits, and fanning six.

Gary Stapley had two base hits for the winners, while John Merrill bagged a triple.

Pewees Connect

The Belleville Broadsom tykes bit off more than they could chew as a Belleville Minor Baseball Association game Monday night when they backlashed the Motorland Chrysler pewees.

The older Chrysler boys pounded out 17 hits en route to a 20-3 victory over the tykes.

Steve Carr led the way with a double and three singles for the winners with Paul O'Brien adding a triple and single and Jeff Hayward three singles.

Improves His Times

John Sheppard's run at the Metro Police Games on Saturday was not all in vain. Although the 17 - year - old middle distance runner from Quinte Secondary School did not win any prizes, he did set two personal bests in the 800 and 1500 metre runs.

He was timed at 2:01.8 for the 800 metres, shaving 6-10 of a second off his old time. In the 1500, he covered the distance in 4.:3:0 taking a full two seconds off his time.

Mosport Curfew

Mosport officials have announced a 11 p.m. curfew on the operation of motorcycles, mini-bikes and dune-buggies at major races.

Mosport President, Harvey Hindes, said complaints were received from spectators and campers at the Labatt's Blue Can-Am and the Dominion to Independence Day Sprints.

"Following the complaints, we looked at a number of alternatives, including banning these vehicles from the track completely," said Hindes. "The curfew idea seemed to be the best compromise. People who own these vehicles can use them during race weekends but by stopping them at night, campers will have peace and quiet."

A complete ban on motorcycles, mini-bikes and dune-buggies was considered, but the feeling was that people who operate these types of vehicles have a right to make use of them as long as they don't interfere with the rights of others.

The curfew will be enforced by the track's volunteer security force.

"We're calling Mosport the Happy Track" said Hindes, "and we hope all who come here to enjoy themselves."

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Senator James Buckley of New York accused the recording industry Monday of what he described as "drugola"—paying money and drugs to people for "promotional favors."

Buckley told a news conference here that he has asked the Federal Communications Commission and the Justice department to investigate the charges.

Buckley, a Republican-Conservative, refused to identify individuals or record companies saying he did not want to prejudice the legal actions he felt would follow.

GLASGOW (Reuter) — Two of Charlie Chaplin's young children may be preparing to follow their famous father on to the stage or into films after putting on a weekend show at a Scottish Highland resort.

Annie Chaplin, 13, wrote the script for a murder mystery called The Witch, and she and her brother Christoper, 11, starred in its production at a hotel in Nairn.

Charlie Chaplin, now 84, and his wife watched the show and the reason where they are on holiday with their family.

VALLAURIS, France (AP) — A major exhibition of the works of the late Pablo Picasso in Paris next month will include paintings never before seen in public and rarely seen Cubist works from Soviet museums, it was announced Monday.

Roland Arnaud, a member of the politburo of the French Communist party, said the painter's widow Jacqueline had promised to lend a number of his works to the exhibition for which the painter had never been publicly.

To paintings loaned by French and foreign museums would be added Ukish and Soviet work's from Soviet museums, five from the Hermitage in Leningrad and one from the Pushkin in Moscow and "many more" from Prague.

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — Jerry Garcia, lead guitarist of the Grateful Dead rock group, was placed on one year conditional probation Monday on charges of possession of narcotics.

Garcia, 30, of Marin County, Calif., had pleaded not guilty to the charge. Judge Herman Beloppsky said that under the conditional probation he would entertain a motion for dismissal of the charges at the end of the one-year period if Garcia followed the terms of the probation.

Garcia was ordered to report to a New York psychiatrist every two months.

Garcia was arrested last March 27 after police stopped his car for speeding and found marijuana and cocaine.

NEW YORK (AP) — A man-ager of the British rock group Led Zeppelin was arrested Monday on a charge he stole a news photographer's film and threatened the photographer.

Police said it started in the early-morning hours when Peter Grant, 38, the manager, returned with others in the group from a concert at Madison Square Garden.

A group of reporters was waiting for them, after a story broke about the apparent theft of more than $200,000 from a safety deposit box in their hotel.

Police said Grant got angry and forced a photographer to hand over film on which he had photographer the group outside the hotel. The photographer told police Grant punched him and threatened him. .

LONDON (Reuter) — Singer Janie Jones, accused of trying to promote drug-free sessions sex bribes, lost a bid to get out of jail Monday on bail bond.

A judge at London's Old Bailey Court ruled she must stay locked up until her trial in September because police on night frighten witnesses if allowed to go free.

Police told the Old Bailey judge that before her arrest, Miss Jones had tried to scare off one girl out of giving evidence. One girl collapsed in fright and had to be taken to a hospital.

NEW YORK (AP) — The manager of the British rock group Led Zeppelin told police Sunday that more than $200,000 in concert receipts was missing from the group's safety deposit box at the Drake Hotel.

Police said Richard Cole told them that at 1:30 a.m. Sunday $203,000 from four nights of Led Zeppelin concerts at Madison Square Garden was in the box along with five passports. Cole discovered the box Sunday afternoon and found only the passports, police said.

To Your Good Health

Liver Damaged But Still Drinks

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband is 67 and a heavy drinker. The doctor told him he has about 65 per cent liver damage. He quit for a few months but now is back to drinking harder than ever. He sometimes bleeds through the nose and I can't get him to the doctor. So what can I do? I expect every time this bleeding coming from? He says he drinks to kill the pain.—M.

What are you to expect? All I can say is: "Nothing!" You have a patient with liver damage that keeps on drinking.

The blood through the bowel can originate anywhere along the digestive tract, but in people like this, there are two sources which are common among heavy drinkers. One is from the stomach (alcoholic gastritis).

The other is that varicose veins develop at the end of the esophagus, the tube to the blood. They also can rupture. Massive, fatal hemorrhage.

His excuse about "drinking to kill the pain" is typical of the kind of thinking that would dream up to justify drinking.

There is nothing you can do for him unless he stops drinking entirely and goes to his doctor.

If it's any consolation, and no pleasure to write about, but this is not rare.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For two weeks my eyes have been bloodshot and they itch and burn all the time. I wear contacts but I don't think they can be the cause of it because I've worn them five years without any trouble.

A friend said it could be my sinuses, but I've never had sinus problems before. Is this possible?—Mrs. M.

I see no reason why sinusitis should cause eye trouble with your eyes, any more than I can see why an eye condition should give you sinus trouble.

Whether your contact lenses have any connection with it is something I wouldn't care to guess about. It is possible that prolonged wearing of contacts, without sufficient rest periods between wearings, can irritate the eyes, even after five years.

However, let's not jump to conclusions. Have a specialist examine your eyes. Eyes are too precious to take chances with.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a patient of 30 years on hair on my chest. My wife teases me about this. What can I do?—M.K.

After all the bare chests I've looked at as a physician, I see no reason unusual about not having hair, and can't figure out why your wife thinks is so extraordinary about it. Since it seems to bother you, I hope she will have the kindness to forget about it. Heavens, there are even world champion heavyweights who don't have fuzz on their chests. Some men have none, others have a little or a lot. Depends on the hair pattern of the individual.

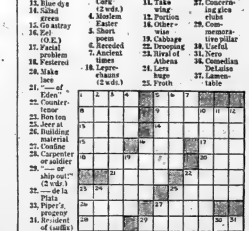
The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♣	1♥	Pass	4♥
Pass	6♥



Opening lead—ten of clubs.

Let's assume you're in six hearts and West leads a club. The object is to make 12 tricks without seeing the reverse cards, though you know from the bidding that East surely has the King of spades and that relying on a spade finesse will lead to disaster.

The situation you face is by no means uncommon. The problem is to find a way of playing the hand so as to avoid the luck normally associated with a finesse.

In the present case you start with the knowledge that East has the A.K. of clubs. And actually this is all you need to know to assure yourself of a happy ending.

Let's assume you cover the ten of clubs with the jack and draw two rounds of trumps, ending in dummy. Then, with master afterthought, you ruff a club, re-enter dummy with a diamond, and ruff the third round of clubs.

When you lead the queen of clubs and declarer a spade on it, East wins it with the ace and finds himself at the end of the line. He is well and truly endplayed. Your generosity in providing a club trick that you obviously could have prevented him from making pays excellent dividends.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Howden of Toronto were visitors at the home of Mrs. Howie's mother, Mrs. Clarence Desmond, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Bignell of New Haven, England, are guests of Mrs. Kay Hood, of Deseronto. On Sunday they have plans for a lot more sightseeing before visiting home.
